87th Year No. 128 ★★ VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1970 PRICE: 10 CENTS

Lack of Business Support Hurting Appeal

United Appeal chairman responsible for business and industrial divisions predicted Monday that their areas would not meet their 1970 goals.

But Victorians as individuals, through the residential canvass, have reached 91.5 per cent of their quota — $119,284.

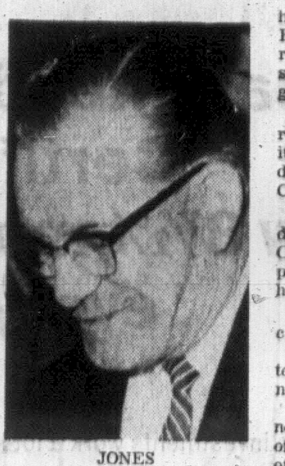
Chairmen for the large corporations, general firms and business districts divisions told an Appeal progress report meeting at Spencerhouse that a decline in corporate donations as well as the closure of some downtown Victoria businesses is responsible for sluggish returns in key areas of the campaign.

The Appeal's backbone division, large corporations, has reached 44.2 per cent of its $253,939, having raised $112,157 by Nov. 9.

Four areas of this division have yet to reach 30 per cent of their goals. Chairman Glyn Jones told the meeting that several large corporations remain to be canvassed.

But he said he expected a shortfall. Large corporations account for 35 per cent of the Appeal's hoped-for total of $701,314.

General firms chairman Bob Coltman also predicted a shortfall. He said donations from reporting firms are down considerably from 1969. Of the 227 firms in his area, he said, 39 remain to report. Even if these show strong returns, his division would still fail to meet its $31,000 goal.



JONES
. . . little from corporations

General firms division has raised $16,992, 54.8 per cent of its goal. A few firms did not donate at all this year, Coltman said.

Figures for the business district division also are low. Chairman Richard Reeve reported $3,711, 24.7 per cent of his division's $15,000 goal.

Reeve said his staff had called 1,300 small businesses.

"Many have moved out of town and gone out of business," he said.

He said he had especially noticed that several business offices in older downtown office buildings had closed. Reeve joined Jones and Coltman in predicting a shortfall for his division.

Residential area reports show Oak Bay-Victoria raising $44,581, 83.5 per cent; Oak Bay-Saanich raising $42,225, 105.1 per cent; Esquimalt-View Royal raising $5,626, 105.2 per cent; Colwood-Langford-Metchosin raising $3,922, 107.5 per cent; Sooke raising $751, 107.4 per cent; Central Saanich raising $4,414, 73.6 per cent; and Sidney-North Saanich raising $11,441, 86.7 per cent.

"We're certainly going to have as much as last year, and maybe even more, so I can say that this part of the campaign has been a success," said campaign chairman Commodore R. V. Henning.

Donations from the professional division — doctors, lawyers, dentists, accountants, architects and engineers — stand at $26,780, 59.2 per cent of the division goal of $45,200.

The construction industry is very low, with donations at $1,316, six per cent of a goal of $22,100. Chairman Cecil Prowse said labor-management troubles this summer have been a factor in this year's returns.

The strongest area of the campaign remains the federal service division. It has raised $63,163, 120.8 per cent of its goal.

The public service division continues a poor showing at 29.7 per cent of its $15,418 goal. Chairman Bob Peterson predicted a shortfall here, too.

This year's campaign is $100,000 behind figures for the same time in 1969. So far the Appeal has raised $450,383, 64.2 per cent of its goal.

Henning said the over-all total is not as bad as it looks. However, he said the large corporations division would have to pick up if the drive is expected to approach its goal.

He said he expected a 10 per cent increase in other

New France Architect Is Dead

COLOMBEY-LES-DEUX-EGLISES — Charles de Gaulle, towering figure of modern French history, died suddenly in his country home Monday night and will be buried in the simple churchyard of this east French village.

His death, at the age of 79, shocked France and the world, and appeared to have resulted from a condition often linked to a hardening of the arteries.

INSIDE

He slipped to the floor, and a servant immediately called the doctor and Rev. Claude Jaugey, the village priest. Father Jaugey said that when he arrived he was hurried to the second-floor room where he saw de Gaulle stretched out on the floor, fully dressed in a dark suit.

Father Jaugey said de Gaulle was not dead, but seemed to be suffering terribly.

"I gave him the last rites of the church."

The priest said that when he left the de Gaulle home the former president was dead. Father Jaugey was asked to promise to remain silent. Mme. de Gaulle, he said, reacted to her husband's death "with perfect dignity, even nobility."

France Is a Widow—Pompidou

De Gaulle died at approximately 7:30 p.m. Monday night (10:30 p.m. PST), 13 days before his 80th birthday.

The leader of the Free French in the Second World War and the founder of the Fifth Republic will be buried Thursday in a simple ceremony at the country churchyard here. He will be interred in the same tomb as his daughter Anne, who died of tuberculosis shortly after the war.

No official government delegation will be at the funeral, in accord with de Gaulle's wishes—which he left with Pompidou, then his aide, in 1952.

But a religious service will be held in Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris for government members and foreign dignitaries.

The death of the heroic and controversial figure removes from the world scene a man who devoted his life to keeping France proud and independent. He left a foreign policy aimed at keeping France free of entanglement in great power blocs.

The former president stepped down dramatically April 28, 1969, and vowed to take no part in active politics.

He warned, at the time of the referendum on regional reform which led to his downfall, that his departure would mean chaos. But the Gaullists and their allies have

CHIANG KAI-SHEK LAST OF 'BIG FIVE'

LONDON (Reuter) — The death of Charles de Gaulle leaves only one surviving member of the Big Five of the Second World War—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, 84, of Nationalist China.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga., in April, 1945, and Stalin died in Moscow in March, 1953. Sir Winston Churchill's death in London in January, 1965, marked the end of the central Big Three of the war.

War Act Talk Fans Emotion

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused Monday of leading the Canadian people on an emotional binge after invoking the War Measures Act to deal with trouble in Quebec.

Commons debate continued on the proposed Public Order Temporary Measures Act, 1970.

David MacDonald (PC-Egmont) said the government has "fanned the flame of emotion" and polarized public opinion since the War Measures Act was invoked Oct. 16.

Arnold Peters (NDP-Timiskaming) said that Canadians have gone on a "psychedelic trip" as a result of the act's invocation.

The public order bill, on which debate continues today, carries on but limits government powers proclaimed under the War Measures Act that would be revoked when the new legislation is enacted.

Troops to Get Police Powers

The bill, being studied clause by clause in committee-of-the-whole, outlaws the Front de Liberation du Quebec and makes membership in the organization punishable by a jail term of up to five years.

The Commons approved Monday an amendment by John Burton (NDP-Regina East) that would ensure that troops only be given police powers when assigned to specific duty by order-in-council. The motion carried 31 to 28, with only the Liberals opposed.

A surprise vote on the amendment was that of Pierre de Bane (L-Matane) who left party ranks and voted with the opposition. Some 200 members were absent from the House when the vote was called.

The Senate held an unusual Monday night sitting. It usually meets Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Mr. MacDonald, the lone MP to vote against second reading of the public order bill, said that one of the "greatest dis-services of the government" has been that it has built up emotions rather than damping them since the early days of the kidnapping crisis.

'Height of Dishonesty' by PM

The government had not tried to explain the situation through "a reasonable process of facts."

Referring to remarks by Prime Minister Trudeau on television last week about "wishy-washy thinking," MacDonald said:

"It was the height of dishonesty for him to suggest in the public media of this country that this kind of problem can easily be resolved by resorting to strong opinions, to disagreements or to simple answers."

Peters said that there is no doubt 97 per cent of all Canadians supported the government action in invoking the War Measures Act. "We might as well have been taking LSD."

There might be a need for curbing the news media so that news is based on facts, he said.

He also said that police forces failed badly in the kidnapping crisis. The RCMP was more accustomed to dealing with drug problems than with the FLQ.

"Dogs are trained to sniff out marijuana but they are not trained to sniff out explosives."

Illegal Censorship Imposed

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said that illegal censorship is being imposed throughout Canada.

He said that censorship is not permitted under the War Measures Act but there is censorship and "therefore it is censorship that is being illegally applied."

Various radio stations had been made aware that certain types of information would not be in the public interest to broadcast. Certain student newspapers in some universities had been "given to understand" that they were subject to censorship.

This was a "subtle kind" of censorship.

Referring to a remark by Justice Minister John Turner that under the regulations there should be an offence only if journalists were used as a "propaganda vehicle" for the FLQ, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"I should like to know who determines whether they are being used as propaganda agencies."

The former prime minister also said that if the evidence of Bernard Lortie, self-confessed member of the FLQ, to a coroner's inquest in Mont-

Shippers May Agree To Pollution Controls

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The international shipping industry may not seriously object after all to the federal government's proposed stiff oil pollution controls within 12 miles of the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, the Commons committee on environmental pollution was told today.

The transport department has been braced for strong protests from shipowners ever since it introduced a bill to amend the Canada Shipping Act which would require all tankers entering Canadian waters to carry up to $14 million pollution liability insurance and pay 15 cents per ton of petroleum cargo into a special fund for covering cleanup costs beyond the insured limits.

But marine regulations director R. R. MacGillivray told the committee studying the bill that no objections have been received from the world shipping industry yet and only minor points may be raised for discussion.

Sir Frederic Harmer, president of the International Chamber of Shipping and an assistant, S. A. Cotton, will fly from the organization's London headquarters next Tuesday, to appear before the committee.

MacGillivray, under questioning by MPs, indicated that at one time he thought he knew what their objections would be but recent indications have suggested there will not be vehement opposition to the precedent-setting Canadian initiative.

"I know they're giving the whole matter very serious consideration," he said.

"It may be that they will say they do not have too serious objection and just want to raise some details for discussion."

"We'll just have to wait and see what he (Sir Harmer) has to say when he gets here."

He told the committee that the 15-cents-per-ton surcharge would produce about $3 million annually for the pollution damages fund without adding too substantial a burden on present costs of about $12.50 per ton of sea-transported oil.

MacGillivray also assured the committee that transport department enforcement of the pollution controls would be meshed with the enforcement program of the proposed environmental affairs department.

SASKATCHEWAN PCs VOTE TO JOIN WITH SOCREDS

REGINA (CP) —Saskatchewan Progressive Conservatives at a convention voted in favor today of the principle of joining with the provincial Social Credit League.

Of the about 50 people attending the annual meeting of the Conservatives, none raised a hand against the idea and only one person spoke against it. (See earlier story on Page 38).

Saskatoon lawyer Ed Raney said the move would be an "unmitigated disaster in which the party is piling stupidity on top of stupidity." He abstained from voting.

The actual resolution, as passed is vague and makes no mention of the terms "merger" or "Social Credit League" but calls for support of two-party unity from all wanting to establish a credible alternative to the government.

Ed Nasserden of Saskatoon, provincial P.C. leader, speaking in the course of a 75-minute debate on the topic, said he wantel to have the wording vague.

"One of our pressing needs is to develop strong grass roots, rather than keep an exclusive club going. We want to bring the Social Credit together with us, rather than play into the hands of the Liberals and the New Democratic Party."

He said other provinces likely will follow Saskatchewan's lead in political realignment.

The resolution does not propose a new name, nor does it say which aspects of each party's philosophy would be kept and which discarded.

The' fame o' de Gaulle lies not so much in whut people will say about him but thet ever'body will say SOMETHIN'.

divisions would, if the large corporations finished strongly, push the drive nearly to the top.

Education division chairman Donald Macdonald told the meeting that area teachers have been giving good support to the drive, but non-professional workers in education have not.

"People are confusing welfare and the abuses there with the Community Chest. They're getting fed up and are less inclined to give," he said.

Only one of the Chest's 26 member agencies, the St. Vincent de Paul Society, is solely committed to dealing with poor people's needs.

The remaining agencies provide a wide variety of health, recreation and counselling services to all age groups in the region.

Several other people at the meeting agreed with Macdonald's charge that a confusion exists between the needs of welfare recipients and the services provided by Community Chest agencies.

Fred Usher suggested that Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi place newspaper and radio advertisements saying, "Sorry for the inconvenience."

He was referring to road signs which as Highways Minister Gaglardi used to post in areas where construction crews were building roads.

the largest National Assembly majority in history.

The cabinet today declared the day of burial, Thursday, as a national day of mourning.

Schools, government offices and theatres will be closed.

Flags will fly at half mast until the end of the month.

De Gaulle said he wished his funeral to take place in complete silence. He refused in advance any posthumous award of any kind, whether French or foreign. The former president recently stated that he had not changed his last wishes.

The general's body lay today in a drawing room of his country house. Mme. de Gaulle and the general's daughter and son-in-law were in attendance.

During his retirement, the general made two foreign trips — to Ireland and to Spain.

But he devoted most of his time to writing his memoirs. A volume covering the years 1958 to 1962 was published ahead of schedule last month and became an immediate best-seller.

De Gaulle, who escaped at least half a dozen assassination plots during his 10-year presidency, died after a routine day spent peacefully at his country home, members of his staff said.

In the afternoon, he worked on his memoirs after a walk in the garden. Then, waiting for the television news, he suddenly collapsed.

There had been no previous indications that any recent ill-health had struck the man who became a world figure as leader of the Free French forces in the Second World War after the humiliating fall of France to the Germans, and who rallied France in 1958, when dissension in the government threatened to tear France apart.

FORMED FREE FRENCH

An obscure army bragadier when France fell in 1940, de Gaulle seized the leadership of those who would not give in to defeat and welded the Free French movement.

After leading his forces back to Paris, he headed a provisional government until January, 1946, when he took his first walkout from the factional politics which plagued pre-war France and revived quickly after the war.

He returned to power in June, 1958, when the Algerian war threatened to split France apart. Ruthlessly brushing aside his military supporters who wanted to keep Algeria French, he ended the war in North Africa, freed France from her colonial encumbrances, and then founded the Ffith Republic, giving it a strong presidential form of government.

De Gaulle occupied a towering place in the history of the 20th century as a soldier-statesman driven by a vision of the greatness of France.

For more than a decade, he dominated the scene in Europe like an autocratic and sometimes arrogant colossus. As president of the Fifth Republic, he gave France stability and confidence and Algeria independence.

He never doubted that he was a man of destiny—first as the embodiment of free France during the Second World War and later as his country's savior from political chaos.

He saw Western Europe as a potential third force in the post-war polarization of East and West and spoke about the glory of France in the manner of the monarchs of the past.

A giant in physical as well as political stature, his view of himself is perhaps best summed up by a remark he made to Winston Churchill in the dark wartime days of 1940—"I am France."

real Saturday is to be believed the kidnapping of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte was the "most infantile example of amateurism that could have been put together."

EXPLAINS OPPOSITION

Max Saltsman (NDP-Waterloo) said that while he supported the War Measures Act regulations he opposes the public order bill on psychological grounds.

People were aware of the dangers of the War Measures Act. But there was a tendency to accept the public order bill as a way out of the problem.

But the psychological victory that had been won by the government action in invoking the War Measures Act could be lost in continuing the powers in a more limited form under new legislation. There was no justification for continuing "emergency legislation."

David Orlikow (NDP-Winnipeg North) said there was unanimous support from the press when the government invoked the War Measures Act but now there was growing criticism of the government.

Police had not been as successful at infiltrating the FLQ as American police in getting into terrorist organizations in that country.

POWER PLANT TO BE BUILT

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro announced Monday the awarding of a $3,674,000 contract to Cana Construction Co. Ltd. of Richmond for construction of a generating station on the Arrow Lakes reservoir. The new station will be built on higher ground to replace one displaced in 1968 by rising water following the construction of Hugh Keenleyside Dam. A 50,000 kilowatt generator will replace three 11,000 kilowatt units previously in operation.

Crash Victim Dies

Emil Olson, of 1045 Rockland Avenue, was pronounced dead on arrival at the Royal Jubilee after being transferred from Resthaven Hospital in Sidney.

He was fatally injured in a crash at Littlewood Drive and Mills Cross Road.

Olson was a passenger in a car driven by Charles Scott, 47, of 2355 Belmont, in Victoria. The two were returning from a day at the races at Sandown track.

KENT STATE PRESIDENT BLASTS JURY'S REPORT

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Robert I. White of Kent State University charged Monday that the special grand jury report on events at his campus last May was inaccurate and potentially destructive.

White, in his first public statement on the Oct. 16 report that harshly criticized Kent State administrators, said it "reflects a frightening misunderstanding of the role and mission of higher education."

The Kent State president declined, during his press conference at a higher-education convention, to comment on whether the state grand jury was unfair in failing to indict any Ohio National Guardsmen whose bullets wounded nine others at a May 4 campus demonstration.

But, he said in his prepared statement, "in my opinion, the grand jury report was inaccurate, disregarded clear evidence, and, if pursued in all its nuances, would eventually destroy not only Kent State but all major universities in America."

Asked later if National Guardsmen should ever carry loaded weapons onto a campus, White called such a move "a very, very last resort." He said he has made it clear that if Kent State needs outside help again, it would ask for the Ohio Highway Patrol, which he termed well-trained and respected even among campus groups.

The special panel indicted 25 persons—students, other young people, and at least one professor—and criticized the university administration for fostering permissiveness and dissent. Its assessment of blame differed from those of the President's campus unrest commission and, reportedly, the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

White broke silence six days after a federal judge in Cleveland threw out a local court's ban against public comment by those involved in the grand jury's investigation.

In picking a national forum for his comments, the Kent State president called the panel's report "a local manifestation of a national problem."

Project Learning Gets Ideas From Every Side

Project Learning proposes optional school attendance above the elementary level, elimination of corporal punishment, open schools year around both day and night and the freedom of students to choose teachers and teachers to choose students.

The final report of the Greater Victoria school board's year-long public involvement study in educational planning was received Monday by the board's education committee which set aside special meetings Nov. 23 and 30 to study recommendations.

Dropouts Included

The six and one-half page report presented to the trustees summarized recommendations made by six advisory committees set up in September 1969 composed of school trustees, principals, teachers, parents, students and dropouts.

The committee met regularly over a five-month period to discuss the aims of education and what schools should be like in five or 10 years.

Mrs. Frances Thompson, former school trustee, past president of the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation and chairman of the three-member committee that wrote the report, told trustees she didn't think the proposals would be hard to implement.

'Already Done'

"I think about half the recommendations are already being done," she said.

In a press conference earlier, Mrs. Thompson said the lack of knowledge among lay people of what is going on in the educational system was evident in some of the resolutions put forward.

She said lowering of teacher student ratios has been discussed for about 12 years by educators.

Elimination of corporal punishment is not new. The Greater Victoria school board attempted to abolish it in the district two years ago but ran into opposition from some teachers who felt punishment was necessary in some cases.

Board Challenged

The board was also challenged at the time on jurisdiction to abolish. The provincial rules of public instruction state that corporal punishment should be avoided and used only when necessary.

At Monday's meeting, the board received a letter from the department of education saying it was studying the board's proposal to have schools open the year around. The letter said such a move would mean a change in the public Schools Act.

Les Isaacson, core committee member as well as principal of George Jay Elementary and president of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association, noted the interest generated by the project, pointing out that many people had tried to get on the original committees but were unable to because of size limit.

He added that the report shows a need for stress on the individual that present rigidities do not allow.

He said resolutions sumbitted by the six committees revealed "remarkably similar opinions."

The majority of the proposals in Monday's final report were ratified by all six committees. Recommendations not supported unanimously are noted.

Dr. John Wiens, school board director of instruction and instrumental in launching Project Learning last year, said in selecting members of the six committees a somewhat different attack was used.

Instead of trying to make sure all sectors of the community were represented he said major purposes of education were outlined.

Students Interested

Alastair Murdoch, the third member of the core committee, pointed out the enthusiasm of students involved in Project Learning, saying that students presented over half of the accepted resolutions.

Murdoch is a second-year arts and science student at the University of Victoria and a graduate of Oak Bay Senior Secondary.

"We have never before invited parents like this to work on curriculum," Isaacson said.

Wiens said Central Junior Secondary school plans major revision of curriculum and invites parents with youngsters at Central as well as parents with youngsters who will attend the school in the next few years to participate.

"Student involvement is the other factor," he said of the planning program.

De Gaulle's Wit Always Sharp

PARIS (Reuter) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle once said of himself: "De Gaulle is not of the left. Nor of the right. Nor of the centre. De Gaulle is above."

The statement illustrated his wit more than his arrogance. If he often used strong language, he salted it with humor.

He once remarked of his beloved France, "How can you govern a country with 246 varieties of cheese?"

When he escaped death after a parcel of explosives planted by would-be assassins failed to go off, the general said: "There is no point in taking special precuations, is there, when those who want to kill me are as incompetent as those who are supposed to protect me?"

De Gaulle was particularly withering about the United States presidents he knew.

CALLED FDR GROCER

Of Franklin D. Roosevelt, he said he was "more of a grocer than the grocer who succeeded him (Harry S. Truman)."

Of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower: "I am told that on the golf links he is better at putting than he is with the long shots. This doesn't surprise me."

Of John F. Kennedy: "Kennedy had the style of a hairdresser's assistant—he combed his way through problems."

Of Lyndon B. Johnson: "Johnson has the style of a truck driver or a stevedore. . . . He shows her (the U.S.) to us as she really is, rough and raw. If he didn't exist, we'd have to invent him."

Other remarks attributed to de Gaulle:

"The worst calamity after a stupid general is an intelligent one."

We've added 13 more horsepower to an already powerful engine, giving us a grand total of 73. All the power and speed you need to overtake the biggest rigs is there. Top speed is over 91 mph, cruising speed is a smooth 78, and you still get up to 40 miles to the gallon.

The extra horsepower is another good reason why Corolla is considered to be the best all-around small car around.

But can the Corolla handle all that power?

You bet your bug it can. We realize that a car that can go has to be able to stop. For that, the Corolla has finned brakes and a dual circuit system.

Plans Replace Memories

THE GENERATION TO WHOM the term "the war" meant only one thing — the 1914-1918 conflict — is now entering the pensionable category. Its two successors — one to whom "the war" meant only the 1939-1945 fighting, and the other more recent generation, which on hearing of "the war" would ask which one — are themselves being superseded by a generation which has in its background so many major and minor military conflagrations that wars require a name rather than merely a definite article.

They speak of Biafra, Vietnam, the Middle East, and other wars. But there is a difference. For "the war" to earlier Canadians meant a conflict in which their country was, or had been, vitally involved. Wars to today's young generation in Canada are events mainly of political or social significance; the military aspect is a dim and distant rumble of guns and bombs, with occasional photographic evidence of close-up individual horrors.

It is difficult to realize that well within an individual's lifetime war has changed from a matter of patriotism and adventure to one in which physical misery was the dominant element, and from that to a phenomenon that is philosophically despicable. The Vietnam conflict has become, for Americans, the first major shooting war which could be opposed by individuals claiming to be just as good patriots as those who willingly participated. And even the participants, by report, are largely cold to the objectives of the war, if these, indeed, have been clearly defined for them.

War, in short, has lost face. Barring a people's response to plain aggression against its territory, war may never regain its one-time status as something a patriot simply had to take part in. Cowardice has ceased to be the automatic allegation cast at a war objector.

Where do such thoughts lead on the eve of a day devoted annually to remembrance of the men and women who died in Canadian wars? It was said that they died to stop future wars, but that did not become a fact. It was said that they died for the cause of peace — but the peace-making too often only set the scene for a later war. If there is an applicable ideal, it is that they died for the cause of humanity — but they were forced to do it in a brutal, wasteful, inhumane, self-defeating way — parts of a vast machine which, as individuals, they could not control.

Peacefulness, of course, has to be more than one-sided. History has its toll of peaceful peoples who had no defence against warlike peoples, and hence disappeared in death or engulfment. But the nuclear age has brought new viewpoints on the returns from aggression. Possible total destruction in an all-out conflict leaves little incentive to become an aggressor. This situation has assisted the gradual social revulsion against war, the striving of the common man to get out of the cannon-fodder category and live out his life while letting the other fellow live out his.

That is perhaps the best function of November 11 observances in this age: to serve as a looking-back point each year to see how far we have come along the road away from the ideas and ideals that made past wars possible. To many observers the distance backward may seem pitifully short, even hard to discern, and the way ahead correspondingly long and endless. But if we are on the move, that is progress. Ideas can win out, by creating the physical conditions in which those ideas may flourish. November 11 therefore is not merely an occasion for sentiment, memories and outmoded historical recollections: it can be an annual reminder, a launch pad for today's ideas about tomorrow — a workable and valid device to help ensure that there will be a tomorrow.

Before It Goes Too Far

SIR FRANCIS CHICHESTER, the veteran British seadog who won a knighthood in 1967 for his success in sailing solo around the world, has just returned from a 4,600-mile voyage to the Mediterranean. He reports a situation of which we undoubtedly will hear more each year. In brief, he says that from the south coast of England to Gibraltar, and from Gibraltar to Majorca in the Mediterranean, he saw "signs and effects of oil at intervals all the way."

Oil slicks have become a major pollutant of the oceans of the world. Even the Thor Heyerdahl reed boat expedition reported pollution in mid-Atlantic to an extent which deterred the crew from swimming. We have heard in recent months of the tens of thousands of gallons of oil pumped deliberately into the open sea by ships cleaning their tanks. And to this source must be added the numerous accidental oil spills which threaten coastal areas and wildlife with lethal contamination.

This is a danger to our planet which should not be viewed with complacency, even by people who may never go to sea. It should not require the newsworthy comments of so eminent a figure as Sir Francis to arouse the public to the immediate need for strict control of oil pollution of the sea, and heavy penalties for persons or companies which so befoul the environment.

Canada and some other countries are taking steps to impose restrictions on shipping in coastal waters, and setting forth penalties which should be severe enough to serve as a deterrent. But controls on the high seas are another matter. The maritime nations should act without delay to impose laws and regulations for the preservation of the seas from pollution by shipping.

In terms of the modern pace of contamination, the sea is limited in its ability to absorb the near indestructible petroleum compounds which now are being found almost universally on what used to be considered the boundless and self-cleansing oceans of the world.

That Big Hazard in the Home

WITH PERHAPS MORE COURAGE than prudence an American safety expert, Howard Pyle, president of the U.S. National Safety Council, has informed a British Columbia audience that "indifferent and lousy housekeeping is often the cause of accidents in the home" — and he points out that next to highways, homes are potentially the most dangerous sources of accidents in our society. But before the lady of the house picks up the rolling pin and heads for Mr. Pyle, a realistic apportionment of blame for hazards in the home should be made.

The kitchen cupboard door that swings open spontaneously to catch the unwary a pointed blow on face or head, usually swings open because a husband hasn't yet got around to putting the new catch on. The club-laden golf bag that slips from its moorings in the hallway creates its obstacle course because the master of the house hasn't developed the habit of putting it properly away.

And down in the basement, where random bits of lumber, roll ends of building paper and an accumulation of inflammable trash await disposal, the risk from fire is probably greater than from milady's misused electrical appliances in the kitchen.

The home has its dangers, as statistics prove. But having made his point we have one word of advice for Mr. Pyle: Duck.

A Move to Help Restore Federalism

Greer

THE reservations expressed by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart about the War Measures Act and its successor legislation herald a return, one hopes, to some degree of political normalcy and rational dialogue in this country. It is at least a sign that the unwritten, subtle and all too unsatisfactory modalities which have evolved for limiting power in Canada are beginning to reassert themselves.

I do not mean by this to belittle the efforts of some New Democrats at Ottawa and some of the editorialists and commentators in urging restraint on the federal government during this October convulsion. But patently these efforts have not been very successful, and indeed the national NDP has almost destroyed itself, such is the temper of public opinion, in the process.

Silent Provinces

I mean rather that they have been unsuccessful because they do not dispose of any real political power, while those that do have the capacity to influence the federal government—the provincial governments—have either supported Ottawa or have been remarkably silent on the issue.

This is not the normal pattern of Canadian politics, and it is no answer to say these are not normal times or that the FLQ in Quebec is not a normal problem. Given the loose federalism of Canada and the failure of the "watertight compartment" approach to the constitution, it is difficult to conceive of any Canadian problem in which the provinces, certainly the larger ones, do not have some legitimate role to play, either constitutionally or in the broader political sense. That, surely, is the major lesson of Canadian politics in the last 25 years.

The use of the War Measures Act and the successor emergency powers act to put down FLQ terrorism is no exception to the rule. True, it appears to be entirely, one might say unhappily, constitutional: the federal government does have these total powers under the "peace, order and good government" sections of the British North America Act. But where does that lead? The legislation must still be enforced and here the situation is anything but clear, depending for its resolution as much on the provinces as on the federal government.

Responsibilities Defined

The administration of justice, of course, is a provincial responsibility. But an amendment to the Criminal Code in 1968-69 provided (I am paraphrasing) that the provincial attorneys-general are responsible for enforcing the Code while the Attorney-General of Canada is responsible for other federal statutes. Despite this (it was quite legal, since the War Measures Act supersedes everything) the War Measures Order provided—again paraphrasing—that it would be enforced by the provinces.

This was fine for Quebec, where the maintenance of provincial authority appears politically essential. But in Ontario Mr. Wishart made it quite clear he wanted as little as possible to do with it: Ontario police forces and Crown attorneys were instructed to leave "primary responsibility" to the RCMP and federal prosecutors, and told that if they did anything at all it was to be done under the Criminal Code and the protections for accused persons contained therein.

The new federal legislation is silent on the question of enforcement. Presumably, since it is not as sweeping as the War Measures Act, it must be enforced by the federal government as required by the 1969 amendment to the Code—which raises an interesting problem for Quebec. Mr. Wishart has now revealed he (and presumably other attorneys-general) were able to induce Ottawa to make many modifications in the first draft circulated confidentially by Justice Minister Turner, but he still is not happy with it, he does not want to see it used in Ontario and he may again instruct his policemen and Crown attorneys to stay clear of it.

All this, surely, can only have a salutary effect. Whatever may be said about the need for these federal laws, no lawyer, no responsible politician, no liberally-minded person can be happy with them: they are overzealous, too repressive in many respects, badly and broadly drafted. The New Public Order Act, for example, is directed at FLQ violence and terrorism but it could easily be used and probably will be to suppress the freedom of speech, press and assembly of persons who have nothing to do with the FLQ. It is the product, as was the War Measures Order before it, of pressured men who have not had the benefit of full public debate or advice from less impassioned minds before they have acted, and if Mr. Wishart can cause them to think yet again, he will only be fulfilling the role which the Canadian federal structure demands of the Attorney-General of Ontario.

Because surely the irony, indeed the tragedy, of the FLQ drama is that it has encouraged separatism and the dissolution of Canadian federalism. If it is agreed that the separation of Quebec cannot come, at least in the foreseeable future, by revolution (all the evidence, after all, is that the FLQ is not strong enough, or the police and army weak enough for insurrection to succeed), then what counts is whether the measures taken, the tactics adopted, the politics pursued in the repression of terrorism are such as to enhance the possibilities of separatism over the longer term. And in this respect, it must be obvious that we are further along the road to separation than we were before the crisis broke out.

The federal government, riding a wave of public support which is motivated as much by a desire to see Quebec stomped on as terrorism stamped out, has more than done its part with its over-kill legislation, its despicable smear of Claude Ryan and other middle-grounders, its joyful participation in the destruction of Drapeau's meagre opposition. Can it be seriously argued that these things will endear French-Canadians to the rest of Canada?

Abdicating to Ottawa

But the English-speaking provinces, and Ontario in particular, have also done their share, partly by jumping on the hysteria bandwagon — "it's war, total war," Premier Robarts declared after the kidnapping of Pierre Laporte, "we have to stand and fight" — and partly by simply abdicating to Ottawa. It is a Quebec problem, Mr. Robarts repeatedly told the Legislature; it is a federal decision and responsibility, there are members of Parliament to represent Ontario opinion, and the Ontario government was not going to get involved.

This is simply separatism in reverse and the substitution of hatred by indifference. It is not simply a Quebec problem, or a federal problem, or a Quebec-Ottawa problem. It is a Canadian problem, touching the very spit and string that holds this country together. By speaking up, Mr. Wishart at least is trying to get the federal system working again.

Letter to the Editor

Just Walk Away

The letter appearing in the November 3 issue signed "Correspondent" and concerning police questioning, raises some interesting points. I did not read the statements by the Rev. Morriss and therefore am unable to judge whether the questioning was valid or not. However two points should be understood by the public and these are (1) the police can lawfully question anybody they wish on any subject and (2) no one is obliged to answer any police question.

As was once admitted to me by the Victoria City Police Chief, and as is pointed out in the B.C. Civil Liberties "Arrest" booklet, anyone can lawfully turn around and walk away from any policeman any time he wishes, unless the policeman actually places him under arrest.

It would seem to me that any one questioned by police — and who resented the questioning, ought to do just that — turn around and walk away — quietly and politely, without developing a hostile attitude or using colorful expletives in addressing the police.

I feel that some confrontations between police and youth can be avoided by a less aggressive attitude on both sides—Ross Leighton, B.C. Civil Liberties Association.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"I'M NOT S'POSED TO TALK TO YA. YOU MAKE TOO MUCH AN HOUR!"

Looking Back

From the Times of Nov. 10, 1910:

"The lesson taught by the election is clear," said Gifford Pinchot in commenting on the showing made throughout the country by the insurgent branch of the Republican party.

"Taken as a whole it is an overwhelming repudiation of the reactionaries and an unmistakable sign of a demand for the kind of progression for which the Insurgents stand . . . Where the administration figured in the campaign, as in Ohio and New York, the Democrats won.

Chance For A New Start

By JAMES RESTON
from New York

Reston

THE election tells us quite a lot about the American people—most of it reassuring. Taken as a whole, they see a lot out of one eye. You can fool them, but not for long and not everywhere. They are skeptical and practical, allergic to big ideas, bigshots and bigmouths, non-ideological, non-partisan, and non-flappable, — on the whole fair and sensible.

They didn't give anybody a mandate to do anything in this election, except maybe to cut out the nonsense and get on with the nation's business. They elected some dubs and bores, maybe because there were so many of them on the ballot, and they fired some good old souls, but in general they gave us a better balance between the parties in the Congress and the State House, and mainly they gave us a chance for a new beginning.

Unfortunately, President Nixon apparently did not get the message. Even after he had divided his party, violated all his calls for unity, morality, and integrity, he was still claiming he had won a great victory and strengthened his hand at home and abroad, and particularly in the Senate.

"I believe our hand has been strengthened," he said, speaking in party and ideological terms, and while this is the usual partisan nonsense, one thing is fairly clear. Even his own colleagues in the White House and the cabinet were not swallowing this baloney. They were looking very hard and objectively at the future, rather than at the propaganda of the past campaign.

Main Point

Maybe this is the main point. It was a disgraceful and divisive campaign, planned and led by the only two men elected by all the people to unify the nation, but let it go. The voters refused to be bamboozled or frightened by the president and the vice-president, or persuaded by the Democrats or the commentators.

It could easily have gone the other way. If the voters had bought (1) either the Nixon-Agnew line that the Democrats invented sin, crime, sex, war, dope, and smut, or (2) the Democratic propaganda that the Republicans loved the rich, and unemployment, and hated the poor, the blacks and the young, we would really be in trouble, but instead, they seem to have said that we are all very human, fallible, not very smart, not very wise, liable to do mean and foolish things but maybe capable of doing better next time.

Accordingly, the question now is how to put things back together. The quicker this squalid election is forgotten the better. The facts are plain. The nation is confronted with momentous problems. It has a war to end. Almost 6 per cent of our people are unemployed — and almost 30 per cent of our young city blacks are out of work. Bankruptcies are running at the rate of 250 a week. The economy has run over the poor with inflation, and then backed up and run over them again with deflation.

Overseas, we are at another critical and even historic point in the arms race, which is now costing the world the staggering sum of $180 billion 300 million a year but there is now a chance in the new U.S.-U.S.S.R. talks in Helsinki to get this tragic madness under control. And in Berlin and the Middle East, the two really dangerous flash-points in the contemporary world, diplomatic talks are proceeding.

Trust Needed

None of these problems can be resolved in the vindictive and wounding political atmosphere of the last few weeks in this country. There is only one president, and he cannot deal with any of these problems on his own: Therefore, there must be trust between the White House and the new congress.

Similarly, there is no way for the Democrats, with their new power in the state capitals, and their proper concern for the unemployed, the poor, the blacks and the young, to deal with the economic or the generation gap without the help of the White House: Therefore, somehow there must be a political truce for a while and some honest talk for a change between the leaders of congress and the president's official family.

It will not be easy to establish new lines of communication between the administration and its critics on Capitol Hill and in the press after this election campaign, for the president and the vice-president have argued that the opposition was a barrier to good government and the security and well-being of the nation.

Stated this way, reconciliation with the new congress seems unlikely if not impossible, but the politics of this country are intensely human and very odd. (For example, the "effete East" did better by Agnew and Nixon than the South, or the silent majority of the Middle West or the West).

Much depends now on how the president reads the election returns, and the guess here is that he will look at the mathematics, put aside the ideology of the campaign, and reach out to the opposition for a compromise.

This is about where we are now, and the chances are that, after all the silly claims of victory on both sides, the administration and the Democratic opposition will, like the voters, deal with realities.

Growing Two Ears From One

By NIGEL CALDER
New Statesman

Nobel Prize winner Norman Borlaug

It would be too much to expect the world to notice a man like Norman Borlaug before he won a Nobel prize, or even afterwards.

He is one of the band of agricultural scientists with unsung names who deserve better of mankind than the whole race of politicians put together, by Swift's criterion of making two ears of corn to grow where one grew before.

In awarding this year's peace prize to Borlaug, the Norwegian Parliament acknowledged as much, and also covered up for the academic narrowness of the Nobel science prizegiving; a green-fingered plant breeder is not easily slotted among all those particle physicists and neurophysiologists.

Borlaug's achievement has been to enable Mexico to export wheat instead of importing it, and India to double its wheat production in six years. The son of an Iowa farmer, he began his career in forestry, but in 1944 the Rockefeller Foundation sent him to Mexico to work on wheat.

Experience with maize in the U.S. had shown that certain hybrids produced great benefits. Could plant breeding help to improve the poor yields of wheat that seemed to be taken for granted in tropical countries?

* * *

The present revolution in tropical cereals depends on dwarf varieties that rise no higher than a mini-skirt.

The reason is not hard to grasp. If you supply plenty of fertilizer and water to shoulder-high plants, they can become top-heavy and fall over, or else bad weather will easily flatten them, and yields are greatly reduced.

The traditional cereal varieties of the tropics were adapted to poorly nourished soil and low standards of irrigation.

When hungry nations began putting great effort into fertilizing the soil and improving the use of water, the results were disappointing. The need was for new varieties, short, stiff and greedy for fertilizer.

Cross-breeding from wheat plants is ticklish and time-consuming. From every one of the intended 'mother' plants, men armed with tweezers have to remove the hundreds of little pollen-bearing anthers, to prevent self-pollination; they then cover the flowers against wind-borne pollen until the time comes to paint them with pollen from the chosen 'father' plants.

* * *

The resulting seeds produce all sorts of different plants over succeeding generations, from which the breeder selects those containing the desired blend of ancestral features.

Ten generations may have to pass before a consistent new variety of satisfactory quality is ready for the mass production of seeds and their release to farmers.

The key ancestor of Borlaug's varieties was a Japanese dwarf wheat called Norin 10. The U.S. Department of Agriculture imported it for breeding purposes, not long after the surrender of Japan.

Orville Vogel, working at Pullman, Washington, used Norin 10 in elaborate cross-breedings that were to lead eventually to a valuable new wheat.

In the early 1950s Borlaug began using some of Vogel's first hybrids in his work in Mexico. He produced genetic mixtures with wheats from widely scattered parts of the world and, in a fortunate stroke, grew them in winter and summer in very different environments.

* * *

The result was a series of new, high-yielding dwarfs which would flourish almost regardless of latitude or season, throughout the world's hunger belt of the tropics and subtropics.

The benefit of the new varieties is due as much to their ability to give two or three crops a year as to their other virtues.

Mexico's production nearly doubled between 1960 and 1964, with no increase in the area of land devoted to wheat; Mexican farmers who had said that their climate and soil were quite unsuited for wheat soon found they were equalling the yields of north-west Europe, and the best in the world.

The UN's Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) was quick to spread the news about the Mexican dwarf varieties through the Near East and Asia. Pakistan and India seized the opportunity.

In 1963-4, when the production of wheat in India was 10 million tons, famine seemed inescapable and India was exhausting the granaries of the United States. Today India has an estimated wheat production of 20 million tons.

* * *

Dwarf varieties of rice developed in the Philippines, in a joint operation of the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations, have greatly increased the supplies of that cereal too.

Norman Borlaug's Nobel prize calls attention to quiet scientific achievements of the past decade that are far more relevant than moon rockets or supersonic airliners to the needs of Third World man. The institutes in Mexico and the Philippines together cost less to run for a year than the government of India (for example) spends each day on defence. Even more disconcerting is the fact that, for all the vast investment by rich governments in research and development, it fell to the private foundations, in their stop-gap role, to see this work through.

To Defuse the Terrorists, We Must Study Own Morality

I. F. STONE'S BI-WEEKLY

As a young newspaperman during the world depression I never felt the despair I am beginning to feel now about the future of the U.S.

When I try to analyze the difference I think one reason is that then even the revolutionaries had rational goals, not just a blind frustrated urge to destroy.

And, of course, the election of 1932 soon provided a fresh, electric and responsive leadership. It was as if in 1968 McCarthy or Bobby Kennedy had won the election and transformed despair into hope overnight.

Today there is a loss of confidence that extends into every sector of society, even those which usually find it reassuring to have a Republican President. The feeble little stock boomlet that Nixon and the Federal Reserve are trying to pump up, at the expense of letting up on the fight against inflation, barely covers over a precarious business situation.

The banks are carrying on their books many businesses which are overripe for the bankruptcy courts, lest a general collapse engulf the banks with them. The social landscape does not encourage long-range investment.

Black and Chicano minorities are in revolt, and an urban guerrilla movement confronts us in the cities and on the campuses. Another Kent State could set off a tidal wave of violence on the nation's campuses.

The police have become a target for snipers, as have firemen. Guns are ready everywhere. A tiny minority of firebrand youngsters is making good on its threat to "bring the war home."

It begins to look as if it may be easy to break down the fabric of American society. To rebuild it will be very hard.

At End of Road

Anarchy and barbarity, race war and gang rule, not utopia, lie at the end of the road on which our instant revolutionaries would put us. The power of the guerrillas is that they can start a widening chain reaction it is almost impossible to prevent.

The inescapable countermeasures necessitated by a rash of bombings threatens to precipitate wider clashes in the ghettoes and on the campuses, mobilizing whole communities in war with the police and the National Guard. One looks on, helpless to avoid the collision one sees coming.

The panic, hysteria, and hate which may soon be set loose can hardly provide the crucible in which to create that New Man of whom Mao and Che dreamed.

Forgive, Share

The reforms society needs all require — no matter under what "system" — an increase in every man's concern for his fellows, a greater readiness to understand, to forgive and to share. Without these qualities, communism has already failed. You cannot beat men into angels, nor make them better by calling them "pigs."

But how do you preach to youth the sanctity of human life when established society, in its institutionalized violence and exploitation, treats it so lightly?

How often have we heard it said in Washington, in cold-blooded defence of bombing North Vietnam that "hurting them" would force them to make peace? Now our country is hurting.

There is no moral arithmetic to cancel out the crime of murder. But how do you answer those who say coolly of the young man who died in that Army Mathematics building at Wisconsin, "What if he had been drafted and died in Vietnam?"

How do you restore the moral bearings of the young when we now learn from the private papers in the John F. Kennedy library that he and former Senator Smathers of Florida on many occasions discussed the feasibility of arranging the assassination of Fidel Castro?

The craziest of our mixed-up kids are no crazier than the end-justifies-the-means morality of American imperialism.

Human society, as it grows more complex, grows more vulnerable. Hi-jackings, bombings, snipers, and political kidnappings; fedayeen, Tupamaros, and Weathermen, all reflect the power this gives a desperate few.

But technology is not the essence of their power. At its inner core is a sustaining moral indignation which gives these few the strength to live and die as outlaws.

They will not be stopped until this inner sense of righteousness is undermined, and this can be done only by society's willingness to take a fresh look at the morality of its own behavior, and to begin to right the wrongs which provoke the resistance.

KENNEDY

. . . discussed plot

Isaiah says, "Zion shall be redeemed by justice." Rereading that sublime poetry on vacation last August, I felt that the prophet here offered us the cryptic key to the problem of terrorism everywhere, in the Middle East as at home.

Double Standard

Society's moral weakness is its double standard. The sufferings of the hi-jacked in the desert aroused world-wide sympathy and their release world-wide relief.

But how many stopped to think that several hundred thousand of the Arab refugees from Palestine have been living for two decades in a similar stinking horror in desert camps, stifling by day, freezing by night, on a beggar's pittance?

The papers are full of proposals to deal with the hijackers but little about the need to deal with the grievances behind them.

The editorial outburst about Arab "barbarism" hardly accords with the testimony of all the hijacked travellers — including the Israeli — that the commandos treated them kindly. Such exaggeration is not the path to peace.

The Same Thrill

I covered the Jewish terror against the British in Palestine in the postwar 40s. I know that if the present situation were reversed, and Jews were in the refugee camps, and no one cared, Jewish commandos would be hijacking planes to call attention to their plight, and those of us who are Jews would feel the same thrill over these exploits as the Arabs do over theirs.

What surer way to reconciliation than honestly to recognize ourselves in the visage of our enemy?

The way to deprive the fedayeen of their motive force is to deal with the grievance which fuels it. The way to deal with those who have nothing to lose is to give them something to lose. To erect a Palestinian Arab state alongside the Jewish state would be to redeem Zion by justice.

Men are moral beings, and to take from the terrorists their moral justification is the only way to strike at the heart of the terror spreading around the globe.

A society operates by habit and consent, and if these begin to break down, it is helpless. Police are effective only if they confront occasional and peripheral disorder. If even a sizable minority declines to obey the rules, the task of law and order becomes insuperable.

This is especially true when the authorities confront dedicated, scattered terrorists so loosely organized that they are hard to infiltrate and cannot be crushed by striking at their head, for they have no centralized direction. They are like the Hydra of fable, which grew two new heads for each one Hercules cut off.

Women Suffer Most Under Apartheid Law

By MARVINE HOWE

CAPETOWN, South Africa — Every day they line up in the privately run welfare centre — black women, young brides, mothers of large families, widows, and the aged, all with the same problem: they have been ordered to leave their homes and families.

It is black women who suffer most under the mass of legislation and regulations that underlie the Government's policy of apartheid, or separate racial development.

One aim is to reduce the number of blacks living in white urban areas. Since black labor is necessary to white industry, African men are allowed to remain in white areas conditionally, preferably as contract labor without family or as "bachelors" in hostels.

Black women and children are officially considered "superfluous appendages," and more and more are being forced to go to the black "homelands" — poor, undeveloped areas set aside by the government.

Here in western Cape Province the restrictions on women are the most severe because the authorities have declared that they do not want a permanent black population. Job priorities have been given to the Cape coloreds, or mulattoes, and businesses have been ordered to reduce black employment by 5 per cent yearly.

Labor shortages are such that industry and farmers are being forced to seek African laborers to replace coloreds, who are being admitted to semiskilled jobs usually held by whites. But there is greater official pressure to get black women and children out.

There are two black townships in the Capetown municipality, with a total population of 81,000 in 1968, of whom 25,000 were women. The trend toward a population of men has been accentuated in the last two years.

The Athlone Advice Office reported hearing 1,800 cases last year, concerning family groups and individuals seeking a way to resist official pressure for resettlement.

The office, in a colored area on the outskirts of white Capetown, is run jointly by the Institute of Race Relations and Black Sash. The institute is engaged mainly in research to publicize the facts of separate development. Black Sash is a white women's volunteer group that has led protests against major racist legislation and action by the government for 15 years.

"Great wrongs are being perpetrated upon African women," it declared in a recent appeal to other women's organizations. The main abuses listed are:

- Women are prevented from living with their husbands who work in white urban areas.
- Wives of contract laborers can see their husbands only once a year for a couple of weeks at the end of a contract. They live in unnatural communities, where there are only other women, children and old people.
- Working women in urban areas must send their children to rural relatives; the children then lose all right to reside in urban areas.

Under the widely criticized Urban Areas Act, no black women may remain in an urban area for more than 72 hours unless she can prove that she has lived there continuously since birth, or for a continuous period of 15 years, or for 10 years working for one employer.

'An Oasis of Integration'

By DAN VAN DER VAT
The Times, London

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — An institution named Cold Comfort Farm, which is one of the most extraordinary organizations in white-ruled southern Africa, is facing extinction under the first major piece of apartheid legislation enacted by Prime Minister Ian Smith's government.

In essence, Cold Comfort Farm is a non racial kibbutz, run on a co-operative basis by about 40 persons, mostly Africans but with a handful of Europeans. These include the Englishman Guy Clutton-Brock with whose name (he would say unfairly) the scheme is principally associated in the outside world.

The 88-acre farm, of which about 20 acres are under intense cultivation, lies about seven miles from the centre of Salisbury in the heart of an area designated for European occupation.

Herein lies the threat to its future. Under the Land Tenure Act, which came into force in March, Africans may not own land in a "European" area. Another clause provides that if land is held by a body of people of which the majority is African, the land is owned by "an African" for the purposes of the act.

Thus the members of the Cold Comfort Farm society are an oasis of integration in a country now committed to following the path blazed for them by the South Africans. Legal advice has given them no ground for optimism. They are "an African" owning land in a "European" area under an act specifically designed to stop this kind of thing.

So far, however, in spite of a lengthy and unrestrained attack on the society by one of Smith's colleagues in Parliament last year, no official action has been taken. Clutton-Brock refers to this situation as an "ominous silence."

One possible explanation is the worldwide publicity accorded to the determined opposition shown by the churches here, notably the Roman Catholics, to the Land Tenure Act, which they saw as a threat to their missions.

The dispute between Church leaders and the government, despite a meeting between them and Smith, appears to have been shelved rather than finally resolved.

Cold Comfort Farm came into existence in a rather haphazard fashion some six years ago on borrowed farmland owned by a white couple who had just read the book of the same name by Stella Gibbons.

The farm is a small, shakily financed effort which nonetheless seems to work. Clutton-Brock believes unshakably that the answer to southern Africa's problems lie in full interracial co-operation.

AT LONDON the stock market rallied slightly in quiet trading. Technical action following recent weakness and the firm Wall Street trend were the leading factors, although gains were confined to leading industrials.

Beechams extended Monday's rise while ICI, Unilever, Rank Organization, Plessey, Courtaulds and Glaxo were other leaders to recover somewhat.

Dome, Canadian Husky, Hiram Walker, West Coast Transmission and Noranda were Canadians to decline but Pacific Petroleum, Syracuse, Trans-Canada PipeLines and Inco moved ahead. Nova Scotia was a gainer in otherwise easier banks.

AT VANCOUVER, trading was active and prices were mixed on the stock exchange this morning. Pre-noon volume was 1,812,994.

Consumers' Gas

The Consumers' Gas Co. reports earnings increased by 8 per cent and revenue by 12 per cent for the year ended Sept. 30.

The company's annual report says the number of residential customers increased by 8 per cent and the total of commercial customers by 9 per cent.

Net income, before payment of dividends for preferred and common shares, totalled $20 million for the year ended Sept. 30, compared with $18.7 million for the previous year. Earnings per common share were $1.10 compared with $1.02.

Revenue from gas sales for this year and last year were $144 million and $129.7 million while revenue from other sources for the two years was $11.8 million and $10 million.

Canadian Pacific

Canadian Pacific Railway Co. reports total net earnings — before extraordinary items — of $50.9 million of $3.37 a share for the first nine months of 1970.

Earnings for the corresponding 1969 period amounted to $56.2 million of $3.74 a share.

Including extraordinary items, earnings for the nine months were $52.2 million or $3.46 a share in the 1970 period compared with $59.2 million or $3.95 a share in 1969.

Net railway earnings were up $1.1 million with rail freight revenues climbing sharply in the third quarter.

Pacific Pete

Pacific Petroleums Ltd. had a 13 per cent increase in net profit for nine months ended Sept. 30.

The company had a net income of $11 million or 52 cents a share compared with $9.7 million or 46 cents a share for the nine-month period in 1969.

Kelly H. Gibson, chairman of the board, said improved earnings reflectedincereases in all phases of production and sales.

Revenues at the end of this year's third quarter totalled $72 million up from $64 million in 1969.

Gibson also said arrangements have been made to drill the first exploratory well on Pacific's acreage in the Arctic Islands, at a cost of $3 million.

Manitoba Pool

Combined net earnings of Manitoba Pool Elevators for the year ending July 31 were $1.98 million, a decrease of 30 per cent from the previous year's earnings of $1.5 million.

A statement of earnings shows earnings in the grain division, including country and terminal elevator operations, of $1.24 million down from the previous year's totao of $1.56 million.

A net loss of $36,889 was reported for the livestock division of the company's operations, which includes auction market services at St. Boniface and Brandon, in addition to the pool's pig program and it's cattle feeding department.

Anvil Mining

Anvil Mining Corp. Ltd. of Vancouver reports net earnings of $950,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, compared with a loss of $310,000 in the second quarter.

President Aaro E. Aho said total concentrate production increased from 60,885 tons in the second quarter to 76,102 tons during the third quarter.

U.S. Fears Inflation Stimulation

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Economic Council Chairman Paul W. McCracken suggested in a speech Monday night that "to move the economy forward more rapidly" could re-stimulate inflation or create "an untenably large" balance of payments deficit.

In his first on-the-record statement since the election, McCracken did not rule out a move to re-invigorate the economy. But the main burden of his talk emphasized the "uneasiness" and the "reluctance"—presumably within the Nixon administration—that would accompany such a move.

McCracken addressed the U.S. Council of the International Chamber of Commerce in New York.

There have been reports that the subject of how far and how quickly to push toward full employment is being hotly debated within the administration. According to some reports, McCracken's economic council favors an expansionary push, while the treasury department argues for a cautious approach.

McCracken repeated that the national output is falling far behind potential. In recent speeches, this short-fall has been put at about 4 per cent, but McCracken Monday night said that production now is running 4 to 5 per cent below potential. (This is without regard to the impact of the General Motors strike.)

If the nation could boost its output up to potential, it could add $120 billion in goods and services in the next two years, he said.

"Such an increase in output," McCracken said, "could be of enormous use in our growing concern about providing more assured incomes, cleaning up our environment, and making possible the realization of rising level of real incomes on the part of families generally.

"Yet, we must in all candor face the fact that there is substantial uneasiness about whether we can realize the promise of our economic position, or whether we should try."

On the inflation side, McCracken mentioned the push from high wage settlements. But he did not go so far as Herbert Stein, who in a speech over the weekend said that a meaningful reduction in the rate of inflation would require wage increases below the 8 per cent rate recorded in the third quarter of this year.

McCracken declared that those who advocate an "incomes policy" are using an "empty phrase" unless they come up with something specific. But he acknowledged that assurance of more stable wages and prices would allow a greater fiscal-monetary push.

Chamber Denies Taking Position

MONTREAL — A. Gordon Archibald, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, says it has not taken a position with respect to the programs being reviewed by the Prices and Incomes Commission to combat inflation beyond 1970, contrary to some published reports.

Archibald said the Canadian chamber will make its decision known after further discussions with the Prices and Incomes Commission and consultations with its board of directors who are meeting in mid-December.

Highlights of De Gaulle's Life

September, 1939: De Gaulle, a First World War veteran, was 49 and a colonel in the French army when the Second World War broke out.

June, 1940: He was provisionally promoted to brigadier and was called in as undersecretary of state for war by Prime Minister Paul Reynaud. But he refused to recognize the government's resignation, left for London, and June 18, 1940, made a radio speech in London calling on the French to continue the war against the Germans.

June 25, 1940: He created the French national committee in London.

May 30, 1943: He created the French national liberation committee in Algiers. The committee then became the French provisional government.

Aug. 29, 1944: De Gaulle became head of the provisional government in liberated France.

Jan. 20, 1946: He resigned from his post to avoid political friction.

January, 1946-May, 1958: De Gaulle stayed out of government activities and lived in his country home at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises, where his followers often went to get advice. From there he led a political party, the Rassemblement du Peuple Francais, which had 115 deputies in the National Assembly in 1952. De Gaulle later dissolved the party when it was split by internal quarrels.

May, 1958: France was threatened by a revolt of the French settlers in Algeria and de Gaulle announced he was ready to serve again. The settlers supported de Gaulle, hoping he would step up the war against Moslem nationalists.

June, 1958: He was named premier by President Rene Coty.

Sept. 30, 1958: A new constitution drafted by de Gaulle was approvel by a referendum with 78.5 per cent of the vote. The constitution opened the way for independence for Africa's colonies.

Dec. 21, 1958: De Gaulle was elected president of the republic. His first main task was to restore peace in Algeria by granting independence to the French colony.

January, 1960: De Gaulle crushed a revolt started by French settlers in Algeria who opposed independence.

Jan. 8, 1961: He asked the French to approve his plans for self-determination in Algeria. The plan was approved with a 75.2-per-cent majority.

April, 1961: He put down another revolt started by the French military leaders in Algeria.

September, 1961: Plotters sought to set off a bomb on the road about 60 miles east of Paris as de Gaulle was riding past towards Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises. He was not hurt.

April 8, 1962: Agreements granting independence to Algeria were approved by referendum with 90.7 per cent of the vote.

August, 1962: Another attempt was made on de Gaulle's life by terrorists who sprayed bursts of sub-machine-gun fire at his car on a Paris street. Again, de Gaulle was not hurt.

October, 1962: De Gaulle called a referendum on a plan for universal suffrage in presidential elections. The reform was approved with 62.2 per cent of the vote.

June, 1968: De Gaulle's party won in National Assembly elections with an unprecedented majority, taking 299 seats out of 467.

November, 1968: France survived a deep financial crisis with de Gaulle refusing to devalue the franc.

THE MAGIC that was De Gaulle healed deep rifts among the French and returned the nation to a major power status. De Gaulle addresses a crowd in Lyon, France, in 1963. (AP Wirephoto)

Moscow Bouncing Back Fast In Space Mission Triumphs

By MICHAEL JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet space program appears to be making a strong recovery both in manned flight and space-robot missions after several years in the shadow of United States triumphs.

Although the Russians lost the moon race, they have rebounded this year with their own moon-scooping machine and have just completed their fourth unmanned round-the-moon shot in the Zond series.

In addition, they have contributed to space medicine by testing man's endurance in a record orbital experiment lasting 18 days.

If public statements by cosmonauts and scientists can be taken at face value, more impressive feats with men and robots will be attempted in the near future.

Cosmonauts Vitaly Sevastyanov and Andrian Nikolayev started the comeback in June when they set the duration record and concluded that the dangers of prolonged weightlessness still constitute a barrier to flights of more than a few weeks.

BRINGS BACK SAMPLES

The Luna 16 mission three months later gave the Soviet Union its own samples of moon soil and also had the effect of restoring credibility to a space program which had not scored a major first between 1964 and 1970.

Then in October, Zond VIII zipped neatly around the moon on a photographic expedition and splashed down by remote control in the Indian Ocean, the fourth Soviet round trip to lunar space.

A new Venus shot, a refined version of earlier Venus capsules, was launched in August and is due to reach that scorching planet in mid-December. If it lands in operating condition Soviet space authorities can look back over a successful year.

The swelling of national pride that goes with these achievements is bound to help counter the feeling among many Russians that money is being wasted in space while the Soviet consumer is neglected.

No Soviet moon landing is in preparation, frequent disclaimers in Moscow say, but it is likely that more unmanned scoopers will see more soil samples.

GIVES VINDICATION

Any Soviet space planners embarrassed when Apollo 11 and 12 landed on the moon must feel somewhat vindicated now. Besides the prestige of their Luna 16 moon-soil mission, they have the satisfaction of watching the U.S. re-evaluate the need for manned flights.

President Nixon's science advisory committee has recommended after a special study that unmanned shots take precedence over rides in space by U.S. astronauts. The committee decided that man's presence aboard spacecraft "could not be shown unequivocally to be essential for any of the probable scientific objectives in the next decade."

Looking toward the future, cosmonauts and Soviet space administrators on tour abroad have spoken only in general terms of what comes next from the Baikonur launch pad—the manned space centre 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow.

The Academy of Sciences president, Mstislav Keldysh, says manned flight to Mars is "theoretically possible," and might take place by the end of this century.

Unmanned round trips to Mars and Venus, using the knowledge gained from the Luna program, apparently are in the works for the 1970s.

Cosmonaut Sevastyanov said in Washington last month that a long-term orbital space station is the next objective in the manned program.

The Soviet Union has expressed tentative interest in a joint U.S.-Soviet orbiting station manned by an international crew.

Trade Pact Signed

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union signed a commercial agreement aimed at increasing trade exchanges by 43 per cent during the next five years, Tass news agency said.

U.K. Goals Worry Ottawa

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Canadian authorities are reported to be increasingly concerned over the Conservative government's decision to reshape import policies so that the cost of supporting British farmers falls more on importers and consumers than on the British treasury.

The United States and Australia already have expressed their anxiety in strong terms, and informants said it is likely the Canadian government will add its voice to the others, expressing concern that the policy switch could injure Canadian wheat and other grain.

All three grain exporters—Canada, the U.S. and Australia—have agreements with Britain which guarantee terms of access to the British market. This agreement expires next June. If in the meantime the Heath administration takes action which increases the price of imports and thereby discourages British consumers to buy from abroad, supplying countries have the right to take counter-measures which can hurt British exports.

BEST TERMS

In separate discussions which Britain is undertaking with each of the contracting countries, the Heath government will emphasize that it wants the changes to take place as quickly as possible. This has led the New Statesman—the Labor-supporting weekly—to suggest that Heath already has committed himself secretly to get into the European Common Market and to accept the best terms obtainable.

The switch in British import policy would gradually bring it into line with the Common Market, which protects its farmers by high import levies.

"The writing is on the wall," one Canadian official in London commented after the British administration announced Oct. 27 that it has decided to change its system of farm price supports. The switch to import levies, including higher levies on grain and new duties on beef, mutton and lamb and certain dairy products such as powdered milk, is to become effective at "an early date."

British authorities have been a bit surprised by the sharp public reaction of the U.S. administration, which bluntly warned that it is determined to safeguard its agricultural interests "by all appropriate means."

But in the Canadian view it appears unlikely that external pressure will dissuade the Heath administration from its course. Heath wants to encourage British farmers to grow as much food at home as possible and to prepare British consumers for the dramatic price changes that will result from Britain's entry to the Common Market.

Imposing higher import duties will give the government a new source of revenue while reducing the public treasury burden of subsidizing domestic farm production.

In Canada's case, wheat sold in Britain is mainly of the hard variety which Britain may have difficulty getting elsewhere at Canadian prices. But one Canadian official suggested that high import prices may encourage British millers to increase their use of softer varieties, even if this results in a less attractive loaf.

WANT LIGHT DUTIES

While protests from the food exporting countries continue, the strategy of the negotiators is likely to concentrate on persuading Britain to impose only paper-thin import duties. It is the range and height of the duties that are likely to determine whether the supplying countries finally take counter-measures.

But even if the British government agrees to make only small changes initially, it is likely that they will be followed by more later, especially if Britain succeeds in her Common Market membership bid.

Britain has asked that the drastic agricultural changes which will be required to bring the country within the Common Market rules should be spread over a six-year period. Some observers predict that the Common Market partners, especially France, will allow only a shorter transition period and that Britain will have to accept this shorter period if she wants membership.

That would mean faster rises in British consumer prices and similarly fast increases in import tariffs.

Oak Bay to Ban Septic Tanks

Oak Bay council Monday gave first, second and third readings to two bylaws, designed to cut down pollution in the municipality.

Both would prohibit the installation of any more septic tanks in Oak Bay.

In other business, council gave permission to members of St. Philip's Church's Young People's Group to hold a logsaw on Willows Beach on Saturday, Nov. 28.

Speaking for the group, John Grubb, 1998 Cochrane, said the funds raised would be used for the group's activities which include helping multiple sclerosis patients and assisting at Mount St. Mary.

Nixon Raised Money, Morale . . . Little Else

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON — Despite scattered successes, there is little evidence the strenuous campaign efforts of President Nixon and Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew did more than raise money and morale for the Republican party in last week's elections.

They even may have caused damage, driving dissident Democrats back into party ranks this year and creating bitterness in the moderate wing of the Republican party likely to take the form of cries for Agnew's replacement on the 1972 ticket.

Only 18 of the 52 Senate and governor candidates for whom Nixon and Agnew campaigned in 38 states were elected last Tuesday.

Many of those who won probably would have been elected without any help from Nixon or Agnew. In addition, a dozen Republican governors aided by one or the other were thrown out of office.

Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Ronald Reagan of California, William G. Milliken of Michigan and Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts were re-elected generally on their own.

Of these, the only state in which Nixon and Agnew actually campaigned was California.

MURPHY TROUNCED

Although Reagan won a second term, by a reduced margin, the major object of the Nixon-Agnew push, Senator George Murphy, was trounced by Democrat John V. Tunney, and the Republicans lost the legislature.

Many Democratic leaders feel the aggressive Republican "law anl order" push, and Senator Edmund S. Muskie's election eve television appearance to answer Republican charges, did more to unify the Democratic party than anything in the last two years.

In two states, Connecticut and Tennessee, where both Nixon and Agnew appeared, the Republicans captured both the governorship and a Senate seat from the Democrats.

In Maryland, Republican J. Glenn Beall's victory over Senator Joseph Tydings was mainly due to antagonism to the senator, and, in Ohio, Republican Robert Taft Jr.'s win in the face of a Democratic triumph in the race for governor is credited largely to his famous family name.

Only in New York, where Nixon and Agnew never really campaigned directly, can the Republican leaders claim success.

Their efforts to undercut Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell because of his anti-Nixon votes on key issues had the intended double effect of making it respectable for Republicans to support Conservative nominee James Buckley while driving some liberals to Goodell from Democrat Richard Ottinger.

Despite the short-range success in New York, Nixon and Agnew probably have bought themselves a peck of long-range trouble. The resentment stirred among Liberal Republicans by Nixon's and Agnew's efforts in New York is likely to carry over into 1972 in a state where a sharply divided and leaderless Democratic party went for Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968 over Nixon.

So much for the successes.

In state after state where the national administration had recruited Republican candidates, campaigned strenuously for them and provided heavy financing, Republicans were unsuccessful in efforts to dislodge Democratic senators.

In North Dakota, Nevada, Wyoming and Utah, where Nixon and Agnew recruited Republican contenders, Democratic Senators Quentin Burdick, Howard Cannon, Gale McGee and Frank Moss equalled or bettered their 1964 winning percentages. The congressional seats held by Republicans in North Dakota, Wyoming and Utah went Democratic.

Agnew appeared at least once in each of the states, and Nixon campaigned in all but Wyoming.

In Texas, where Republican optimism was evident during a two-stop swing by the president six days before the election, Democrats held the governorship and a Senate seat by comfortable margins.

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Donations of a huge art treasure to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria — a gift which will give it international status — was announced today by director Colin Graham.

It consists of 170 examples of rare and ancient porcelains, carved jade, bronze, lacquer and cloisonne, some of them more than 1,000 years old, he said.

"It's a windfall," he said. "Like the Royal Ontario Museum, we will have a major Oriental art collection.

The gallery's Japanese collection is already widely known and with the addition of the Chen art treasure it would make Victoria one of the important centres for Asian art on the continent, he said.

The large collection is at Djakarta, Indonesia, packed in 25 crates and weighing five tons, waiting to be shipped to Victoria. It is scheduled to arrive here at the end of November.

●

Graham said the Indonesian government has granted an export permit.

"The gift will give the gallery the largest collection of Oriental art in Western Canada and one of the most important in North America," he said. "The tremendous benefits to the city are obvious."

The donor is Mrs. King Foh Chen, temporarily residing in Toronto.

She made the gift to the Canadian people with the proviso that it become the permanent property of the National Art Gallery and held here in trust for the nation.

The story of the art treasure goes back three generations to the time when the grandfather of the late King Foh Chen began to build up a collection in Peking in the latter years of the 19th century.

His son and grandson added to it, the latter leaving Peking to settle eventually in Djakarta. By the time of his death four years ago the collection had grown to the point where it contained over 400 works of art.

●

"We have been given this extraordinary gift," said Graham, "because Mrs. Chen is impressed by the quickening pace of relations between Canada and the Asian countries."

"She also felt it would be a fitting memorial to her late husband," he added. "It's her contribution to the 1971 centenary."

Graham said a year ago last May Mrs. Chen and her daughter, Mrs. Michael Yang, visited the gallery and decided that it should form part of the institution's permanent collection.

But making arrangements to bring the Oriental collection to Canada involved a good deal of planning and organiztng.

Bertram C. Butler, a retired Canadian diplomat, who represented Canada in southeast Asia for several years, was the key man in making the arrangements to bring the treasure to Canada. He is a member of the gallery's board.

Butler went to Ottawa last summer to arrange the technical details and received the assistance of the National Museums board and the co-operation of a number of government departments.

●

Last month he travelled to Djarkarta to arrange final clearances with the Indonesian government.

Graham said Butler praised the Indonesian authorities for their spirit of co-operation, expecially in view of the fact that the country has long had on its books laws forbidding the exports of works of art of a kind not represented in the collections of its museums.

Geoffrey Greenhalgh, president, said the project has cost the gallery a substantial amount of money.

"The maintenance of and insuring the Chen collection on behalf of the Canadian people will place a heavy obligation on the gallery," he said. "It is absolutely essential that we receive strong financial backing if the good name of the city is to be maintained."

No 'Enemy' Now Mao-Happy Ship Warmly Greeted

By PAT DUFOUR

The first Chinese freighter to dock at Ogden Point since Canada and China established diplomatic relations began loading 8,000 tons of Manitoba wheat today.

For the crew of the 557-foot Hong Qi, it is the first glimpse of a capitalist country.

Once aboard the Hong Qi there's no mistaking her identity. Quotes of Chairman Mao Tse-tung hang in every cabin, both in English and Chinese.

There are others. One by Lin Piao states:

"Sailing the seas depends on the helmsman, making revolution depends on Mao Tse-tung's thought."

Conversation is difficult. Only the purser, Lin T. Y., speaks any English. He is helped out by a young Chinese journalist, Lo Yi-ching, who has spent a year in Ottawa, reporting for the New China News Agency.

Two "political counsellors" sit in on the conversation. The reporter explains the counsellors are carried aboard to help with the crew's "education."

How do they feel about Canada establishing diplomatic relations with China?

After five minutes of staccato talk, mostly from the elder of the two counsellors the reply is:

"We hail the establishment of diplomatic relations between our two countries."

The reporter is asked what kind of stories he sends back to China.

"Mostly on the friendship of our two countries, like when the people came here to greet our ship."

★ ★ ★

He expands: "A Canadian taught us international understanding. He was a doctor, Dr. Norman Bethune, who came out to help us when we were resisting the Japanese."

Do they think that China will be admitted to the United Nations soon now that both Canada and Italy have established diplomatic relations with China within the past few weeks?

Again, much conversation and a short answer: "We don't know—do you?"

All the officers and men on the ship wear badges, centred with a profile of their chairman.

The purser says, "All our people love to wear the badge of our beloved chairman."

"It is much too cold and the rents are too high. In China the rents are one per cent of what they are here."

Through him, the senior counsellor asks questions about the Front de Liberation du Quebec. What are their problems, their aims?

Built in 1964, the Hong Qi gleams with fresh paint. Below decks, her passageways are muffled in red carpet.

Her captain and crew hope to show her off before they slip lines and head for Vancouver Thursday to take on another 4,000 tons of wheat, then sail for home.

Today they announced they will hold open house from 1:30 to 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Bawdy House Charge Laid

A 23-year-old city man was charged in provincial court this morning with keeping a common bawdy house between Sept. 20 and Oct. 16 at 450 Simcoe Street.

Sidney Fry, whose address was given as 739 Burke Street, was remanded to Monday without electing trial method or making a plea.

Bail was set at $750 cash or one surety by Judge William Ostler after prosecutor Cory Stolte suggested the amount. Ostler commented that the bail seemed to be exceptionally "moderate."

Ostler also informed Fry that another charge that he lived on the avails of prostitution between Sept. 15 and Oct. 16 was outstanding and would be officially read when he next appeared in court.

Fry requested the remand to Monday.

Pickets Upset Hospital Union

The Hospital Employees' Union is "embarrassed" because its members have to cross picket lines at some of the hospitals struck Monday by stationary engineers.

HEU business agent Ray McCready of Vancouver said today two kinds of picketing are taking place at 13 hospitals where engineers have walked out.

At most hospitals, McCready said, picketers are in the area of the heating plant.

But at a few — including the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's — the picket line extends around the entire hospital, and other employees must cross it to get to work.

"Because we're not doing the engineers' work we are respecting their picket lines," McCready said.

"They have assured us over and over that they don't want us to stay outside their picket lines, but our people are trade unionists and they feel very uneasy about crossing any picket line."

At Lions Gate Hospital in North Vancouver Monday, between 20 and 25 clerical staff did not go to work Monday until engineers' pickets were moved back to the heating plant area.

The International Union of Operating Engineers, which bargains for the stationary engineers, announced prior to the strike hospital personnel and vehicular traffic would not be impeded.

Only fuel trucks will be prevented from making deliveries.

'I Know It Looks Funny'

"I know it looks funny," said Ed Callan, the union's international representative for B.C., "but if we stopped the Hospital Employees' we would be interfering with the welfare of the patients."

The union will not interfere with operation of the hospitals because the government has indicated it would retaliate with compulsory arbitration.

Callan said other unions in a position to respect the picket lines are painters, building trades, telephone workers, and the Canadian Union of Public Employees (representing municipal garbage collectors).

In any emergency workers will be able to enter a hospital, Callan said. At the Jubilee Monday a plumber and electrician responded to a request for repairs to an autoclave, a device used to sterilize instruments and dressings.

Engineers at the Nelson and Williams Lake hospitals did not report for work today, bringing to 13 the number of hospitals being struck. Strike notice has been served at 15 other hospitals.

McCready said the Hospital Employees' Union, which represents some 9,000 B.C. workers, could influence the outcome of the stationary engineers' strike.

"Once they have got the situation stabilized I've told both parties I'd like to sit down with them and act as mediator," he said.

"We are in a position to make them sit down.

"The engineers are on strike for the same things we negotiated. Naturally, we're sympathetic to their cause."

In negotiations with the B.C. Hospitals Association, the engineers were offered a 37½-hour week to replace the current 40-hour week and an increase of $50 a month in each year of a two-year contract.

However, the association withdrew the reduced work-week offer when the union sought parity with other tradesmen, an additional $50 to $60.

The union said it is willing to submit the pay issue to arbitration, but the Hospitals Association is not. The union does not want arbitration on the work-week issue because other hospital workers will get a 37½-hour week starting Jan. 1.

Engineers now have five wage classifications ranging from $500 to $780 a month.

New Charge Against Businessman

Saanich businessman Siegfried Marquardt, of 2841 Sea View Drive, was charged today with defrauding V. I. Shipyards of approximately $15,000 in United States funds with a single cheque between Jan. 15 and June 1, of 1969.

He appeared in provincial court before Judge William Ostler and was released in his own recognizance of $1,000 bail.

Marquardt elected trial by judge alone and requested the waiving of preliminary hearing procedures which usually take place in provincial court before a trial before a higher court.

The businessman was committed for trial in a higher court on a 12-count charge of fraud after a six-day preliminary hearing in August.

THE SALMON THAT Victoria saved are hosting into a replenished Goldstream. These three and four-year-old fish wear the marks of death to come. But the cycle decreed by nature for their species will be renewed.

The fertilized eggs will winter under inches of sterile gravel. In earliest spring, the alevins will hatch, to feed from the yolk-sacs attached to them until their transition from egg to fish is complete.

Then while the catkins on Goldstream's alders are still tight and brown, a chum salmon run of a different sort will begin. It will be a run in reverse, its course downstream to the saltchuck.

All manner of hazards await the free-swimming fry. Still, a fraction of their multitude will survive. Those fish, grown to maturity, will return to the creek as three and four-year-old spawners in their turn.

The cycle has not been broken. In a unique act of conservation, a city has seen to that.

Victorians made a personal issue of the Goldstream crisis. They took to their telephones. They wrote to city hall.

Their letters arrived at the mayor's office in such numbers that Mayor Haddock was forced to resort to a form letter in reply.

And, matching the deed to the word, many householders began to save water where and as they could.

How many? Right now, that's an open question. I've heard from a mother who has taken to dubbing her three little boys as a job lot in a bath that would scarce float a toy duck. Perhaps that family's effort will balance the water-wasting of the man who last weekend chose to flush fallen leaves from an apartment lawn with an open hose.

The water bills that go out late in December, and Greater Victoria Water Commission's dispersal charts, should tell part of a continuing story.

Meanwhile, with the drought-bared bones of Goldstream covered and the night-running chums piling in, city hall's "salmon mail" has pretty well petered out.

A lone letter turned up Monday morning. It was from a pleased citizen who thanked city authorities for bringing the water to the fish.

The car is a spoiler. It permits its owner to forget that feet are for walking. I will circle a parking lot serveral times, looking for a space up front which will save me a few steps.

Ridiculous? Of course! However, I'm not alone in this ingrained disinclination to walk when I can ride.

But last weekend wafted us a guest from the mainland who scoffed at such self-indulgence. She had brought a pair of no-nonsense walking shoes, also plastic galoshes to go over them, and she looked forward to a go-round in Beacon Hill park.

So I spotted my car as close to the duck ponds as could be managed, and we took off at too brisk a pace along autumnal paths.

We walked to the duck ponds where British Columbia's fattest mallards compete for handouts with gulls who should be out catching herring.

We walked to the ancient Chinese temple bell that has hung in its hutch since 1904.

We marched on to inspect the impressive base topped by its peewee bronze of Burns and lass.

We walked to the sun-dial that makes a hub for a wheel of rose beds — gift to the park, the inscription reads, from Victoria's Round Table Club. (Question here that I couldn't answer, although perhaps some reader can: what is this club, and does it still exist?)

Finally, well-exercised, we hiked back to the car. By that time, I had made a discovery worth remembering in this automotive age.

Letter here from a Victorian who suspects that the month-opening words we were talking about may be corruptions of old and probably archaic good-luck charms once spoken in the north of England.

"While I know nothing about 'Swan'," she writes, "'Rabbits' has been the magic word in my family for many years. I picked it up from my mother, who got it from hers, and now my daughter is carrying on the practice."

And a note on a different theme from a retired RCMP officer who maintains a sturdily cheerful outlook on life. He has a beef, however. The London Sketch, he feels, was guilty of an unaccountable omission when that sheet came out with its list of top-rated male heart flutterers.

What were they thinking of, he wonders, when they failed to include the Canadian Mountie?

MAN, WOMAN STRUGGLE FOR LIVES

A 25-year-old man and a young woman remain in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital today after being injured in a three-car pileup early Sunday.

Killed in the crash was James Maude, 22, of 2nd Street, Sidney.

'Chicken' Man Foils Dastardly Clucks

By STEVE HUME

Brian Suddards, manager of the Scotsman Motel, 490 Gorge Road, foiled the holdup attempt merely by standing his ground when the two men—wearing brown paper bags over their heads—burst into his office.

Suddards retired to Victoria six months ago from the University of Alberta in Edmonton, where he was manager of the branch doing research on chickens.

★ ★ ★

"Oh, no, you're not going to do that," and pushed the gun aside.

At that point the robbers, described as between 18 and 20, fled.

The faint-hearted gunmen were still at large today.

Suddards said the two men didn't frighten him because they didn't look like criminal types. He said they didn't appear to be "professional" bandits.

Although they were skunked on the robbery attempt "they wouldn't have got much anyway," he said.

'HIGH, THERE . . .'

Looking at six-foot-six Victoria defenceman Dale Pennock, five-foot-three centre Mark Patterson can't be blamed for wondering about being short-changed on size. But Patterson is tall in talent, and will be one of three junior "B" Cubs who will be recruited by Victoria Cougars for tonight's British Columbia Junior Hockey League game against Chilliwack Bruins. The 115-pound Patterson collected two assists in his first fling with the Cougars. Game time at Memorial Arena is 8 p.m. (Times photo by Irving Strickland).

CLIMBING FENCE EASIEST WAY — CHANCES BETTER AT NIGHT

Gate-Crashers Are Versatile People

By PAT THOMPSON

How do they watch the National Football League powerhouse play when the 47,900-seat Metropolitan Stadium is sold out for every home game?

If fans don't have a ticket for next Sunday's game against Detroit Lions, they can get out of the 75-mile blackout radius and watch the game on television.

Or they haggle with the scalpers.

Or sneak in.

Sims has them classified into groups—the scalers, the chargers, the namedroppers and the bribers.

"We have 43 turnstiles," Sims said, "And that's the only legal way to get in. But there must be 50,000 ways people try to get into the stadium."

"The most simple way is climbing the fence," Sims said. "They kind of go at it like an attack at Fort Apache. They even use the same methods—rickety ladders, barrels."

"Some guy even drove a fork lift on the property and was lifting people over the fence. He didn't charge anything. I guess he was just being neighborly. Last year they had the snow pushed up so high behind the scoreboard that a four-year-old could have stepped into the place.

"Relatively few actually get in, maybe 50 or 75 a game. But at night the figure triples. The greatest ticket demand I've ever seen for a game was two weeks ago when the Vikes played the Rams at night. Even women try it."

"The namedroppers are the first guys who try to crash the gate," Sims said. "They'll say anything, be anybody's relative. There was one guy who deserves an academy award."

"The guy said his diabetic grandfather was inside and was four hours overdue for his insulin shot. He even had the syringe with him."

"People will try anything. They'll even try to pay off the gatemen. We are unsympathetic."

"Some guys do what they do out of frustration. They show up two or three hours early and try to buy a ticket. Then it's one o'clock and they don't have a ticket. They're apprehensive. There's only one thing to do—force your way in."

"Five, 10 and 20 of them at a time get together—all nice guys normally—and rush the gates. They'll knock our men down. We get one or two of them. They're charged with disorderly conduct and are slapped with a $50 fine."

Met Stadium is patrolled by Sims' 326-man crew, 43 at the gates. Policemen also are stationed at the turnstiles to blunt the chargers.

"We're not there to defend the place," Sims said. "We are there to protect the seats of people who have paid to get in."

Arnold Eyes The Big Time

By BILL WALKER

The Sandown Park thoroughbred racing season ends on Wednesday with the running of the Vancouver Island Handicap at one flat mile.

There have been several remarkable aspects to the meeting this fall, mainly because it has come as far as it has, being held at such a late date in the season; and secondly, because the racing has been contentious, which is the heart of any meeting, even if the horses have been overworked.

However, there is yet another phase of racing which deserves a place in the sun.

For it may have been noticed that one jockey has made a shambles of the race for riding honors, even if he has learned some respect for some of his seniors at times.

Jim Arnold, 23, has already won 21 races, entering the final day, and besides he has won the B.C. riding championship here.

He now has won 92 races overall, 12 more than Basil Frazier compiled at the Ex-Park meeting in Vancouver.

And it could be that Victorians will have seen the last of young Mr. Arnold after Wednesday's card.

HEADS SOUTH

He is going to ride at Bay Meadows for the balance of the meeting there under trainer Sonny O'Connell, and then follow the U.S. tour until racing begins in the spring at Vancouver.

There will be at least one trip home in that time. Arnold will appear at the Turf Awards presentation at the Bayshore Inn on Nov. 20 to be honored for his riding skills.

Those skills came about mostly "by experience."

"That makes all the difference," Arnold says simply.

"Just when you think you know what to do in a race, something else happens, and you learn something new."

And the fact that he had more mounts this year than any other rider at Ex-Park (504) and at Sandown has provided him with that invaluable commodity, plus belief in his ability as well.

"I also have had some good horses to ride," he says of his association with O'Connell who gave him the big chance this year as an apprentice.

PRAISES SKUSE

Arnold, whose brother Ron is a contract rider in the United States, gives most of the credit for his talents to an ex-jockey Billy Skuse.

"He helped me an awful lot," Arnold says of Skuse, a veteran with a world of talent, but personal problems which have prevented him from continuing his career.

"And I'll say this for Billy, too, he never tried to teach me any of those habits, either," says Arnold. "He's a fine rider, and I don't think I would have done as well without his knowledge and help. I know I wouldn't."

ENJOYS PAINTING

Arnold is an artist as well as a jockey. He dabbles in oils and portraits, has sold several of his works and plans to spend more time at his hobby when he goes south with his wife and family.

How will he fare on the track?

"It will be tough to get rides," he admits, "but that experience is what I want, for now."

Meanwhile on Monday he only had one winner. Princess Willow scored a photo decision over Punch Wave right on the wire in the second to pay $10.60. Otherwise the honors went to veteran Bill Norris, who has ridden over 100 winners this season, mostly on the prairies. He scored on Rotated ($9.00), Bubblegummer ($14.20) and Wise Pride ($13.20) in the feature.

STRONG FIELD

There is a good field of six entered in the Island championship. Times handicap winner Charlie Cheri has drawn the high impost of 129 pounds, giving away as much as 19 pounds to some of his rivals. The others are Saint Mungo, winner of the Percy Fox, at 118; Tru Lotti, junior derby winner, at 112; Raider Boy, 113; Handsome Chief, 110, and Pobrecito, 112.

First post is at 1 p.m.

Canucks Producing Scoring Surprises

MONTREAL (CP) — A look at the East Division standings and at the leaders' list in the individual scoring race shows why Vancouver Canucks are the surprise team of the young National Hockey League season.

With 12 points in 14 games, the Canucks trail Boston Bruins, the East Divison leaders, by six points and New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens, tied for second spot, by five.

The newly formed Canucks are two points ahead of fifth-place Detroit Red Wings, six better than the sagging Toronto Maple Leafs and have seven more than their 1970 expansion brothers—Buffalo Sabres.

The Canucks have the leading scorers among the teams which joined the NHL since its original expansion to a two-division league in 1967.

Wayne Maki, Vancouver's 12th choice in last June's expansion draft, and Murray Hall, who played the last two seasons for the Canucks in the Western Hockey League, are tied for seventh place with 14 points each—the same as John Bucyk and Bobby Orr of Boston, Gordie Howe of Detroit and Jean Ratelle of New York.

ONLY BRUINS BETTER

Only the first-place Bruins have more players in the top 23 scoring leaders than the Canucks.

Boston's Phil Esposito continues to lead with 22 points, three more than team-mate John McKenzie and five more than line-mate Ken Hodge and Jean Beliveau of Montreal.

Esposito and Beliveau share the lead in assists with 14 each. Little Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal, recuperating from a foot fracture, is still the goal-scoring leader with 10.

In addition to Maki and Hall, captain Orland Kurtenbach and Andre Boudrias are the other Canucks in the leading scorers list. The Bruins have five players listed and the Canadiens four, the same as Vancouver.

RECORD IMPROVED

The six teams which joined the NHL in the 1967-68 expansion have an improved record against the six original teams, compared to last season.

There have been 31 games involving the 12 teams and the new teams won 10, lost 15 and tied six for 26 of a possible 62, or 41.9 per cent.

This compares with eight wins, 16 losses, seven ties and 23 points after as many interlocking games last season.

The St. Louis goaltending pair of Ernie Wakely and Glenn Hall lead the goaltenders' race with an average of 1.75. The pair combined for a shutout last week against Boston, the first time since Feb. 14, 1968, that two netminders shared a shutout.

KEN ROSEWALL WORLD'S BEST

NEW YORK, (AP) — Ken Rosewall succeedel his Australian rival, Rod Laver, Monday as tennis player of the year.

Rosewall won by a margin of eight points, 97 to 89, over Laver, who was a unanimous choice in 1969 after completing his second grand slam — winning the Australian, French, Wimbledon, and United States titles.

Thieves Nab Hockey Gear

BOSTON (AP) — Police reported Monday that $371 worth of hockey equipment was stolen from Montreal Canadiens' dressing room some time after the team's 6-1 National Hockey League defeat by Boston Bruins Sunday night.

Police said the thieves broke into the medical room at Boston Garden and then gained entry to the visiting team dressing room by cutting a hole in the ceiling.

Meanwhile, Marc Tardif, Canadiens' forward injured in Sunday night's game, was released from Massachusetts General Hospital Monday.

Tardif, 21, sufferel a possible concussion when checked into the boards by Boston's Don Awrey in the first period. He was taken to the hospital and held overnight as a precautionary measure.

Cents Upset by Royals; Bruins Clash With Cats

New Westminster Royals helped themselves as well as Victoria Cougars on Monday night by upsetting Vancouver Centennials 9-5 during a B.C. Junior Hockey League encounter in Vancouver.

Cougars, who hold two games in hand over Centennials, have a chance to extend that lead tonight while tackling Chilliwack Bruins at 8 in Memorial Arena.

VACHON GETS FOUR

Gerry Vachon, who scored six goals in the New Westminster victory over Chilliwack on Saturday, counted four more to pace the win over Vancouver.

Cougars, who have won all seven home appearances this season and are currently on a six-game winning streak, clouted Bruins 13-0 in their previous visit to Victoria on Oct. 21.

THREE CUBS CALLED

Cougar coach Ron Maxwell has called up three members of the junior "B" Cubs for tonight's game. Mark Patterson, 16, will centre a line made up entirely from the farm club. Ron Poole, 16, and 15-year-old Dennis McLean will be on the wings.

A bad back still prevents Greg Robinson from making the lineup and defenceman Randy Bock is a doubtful starter because of a sore knee.

United Clubs Roll To Easy Victories

First United Aces downed Metropolitans 28-7 in a girls' pre-Midget contest and First United Midgets defeated Lake Hill "A" 33-5 in a midget girls' contest at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

Variety for Fans In Holiday Action

Victoria sports fans will have variety although they won't find an abundance of athletic activities on the Remembrance Day holiday.

It will be a day to bid farewell for another year to horse racing at Sandown Park, where Vancouver Island's 15-day thoroughbred meeting will wind up with an eight-race card, starting at 1 p.m.

Soccer players will provide the fare at Royal Athletic Park as Cosmopolitan Royals and Gorge Molsons battle at 2 p.m. in the final of the McGavin Cup competition.

Out at Western Speedway, the Victoria Motorcycle Club will present its annual "Good Samaritan Fund" race, beginning at 1:30. Eight Vancouver riders, including B.C. scrambles champion Stan Amor, are expected to compete.

Two rugby matches are slated for Macdonald Park with Brentwood and Claremont high school squads clashing at 1 p.m. and Victoria's representative side, the Crimson Tide, playing a trial match at 2:30 against a "president's" team.

Golfers will be teeing-off from 8 a.m. until about noon in the annual Remembrance Day tourney at Uplands Golf Club.

Foster, Leonard On National Side

Al Foster and Dave Leonard of Victoria have been selected to the Canadian rugby side that will face Fiji in Vancouver on Nov. 28.

Foster will occupy the wing-forward slot while Leonard is expected to play wing three-quarter.

Canadian-champion British Columbia dominates the side with 11 players. Three players were picked from Alberta and one from Ontario.

Dick Ellis of Victoria was elected first vice-president of the Canadian Union at the same meeting which selected the team. R. B. Spray of Vancouver was elected president and C. J. Davidson of Oakville, Ont., was chosen second vice-president.

MOTIVES MAY BE GOOD . . . — . . . BUT METHODS ARE WRONG

Avery Chides Militant Youth

NEW YORK (AP) — Avery Brundage chided the world's militant youth Monday for adopting the ideals of the Olympic Games and then using the wrong means to achieve them.

"What the kids are demonstrating for today are the very things the Olympic movement has been fostering for 50 years," said the 85-year-old president of the International Olympic Committee.

"Their motives may be good but their methods are bad.

"They say they want peace. Peace has been the cornerstone of the Olympics since they were started. They say they want equality of races and opportunities. They want to rectify injustices and uproot the establishment.

"The Olympics have the same goals—big and small countries, peoples of different races, colors and creeds striving together. No distinction. The emphasis on the individual and not the nation.

"But the rebelling kids want to burn, loot and destroy to gain their aims. The Olympics do it through sports. I am not discouraged. I think youngsters will realize this and come around to the Olympic ideal."

Brundage, IOC president for the last 28 years who insists this will be his last term of office, was a guest at Olympic House at which 15 lithographs and posters were unveiled in commemoration of the 20th Olympic Games at Munich in 1972.

Some of the world's leading artists participated in the unique series of graphics being distributed by Kennedy Galleries to raise money for the Games. Selling at from $15 to $500, the graphics are expected to bring in millions of dollars for the organizers.

Hawley in Elite Circle; Aims at World Record

The 21-year-old Oshawa, Ont., jockey rode victory No. 400 for the year at Greenwood race track Monday and says he's going after Willie Shoemaker's world record 485.

Hawley's magic number victory in the fifth, his second in a row on the day's card, was aboard Windfields Farm's Sweet Romance. The race for two-year-old fillies was run over a mile in one minute, 38 4-5 seconds.

And it was done in the Hawley fashion that has typified his meteoric career and made him the darling of the racing fans on the Florida circuit last winter—in a photo finish.

His victory in the fourth, aboard Gardiner Farm's Domineer III, was by a nose. He just missed in the first—by a nose—running second on Darian to Noel Turcotte's Head Usher.

COMPANY EXCLUSIVE

Hawley's 400 victories in a season places him in exclusive company. In addition to the Shoe's record 485 set in 1953, only Bill Hartack (417) in 1955 and Jorge Velasques (438) in 1967 have reached that figure in a single season.

Even last winter, riding on the tough Florida circuit at Gulfstream, Hialeah and Tropical, the shy, unassuming Canadian was being compared to the great Shoemaker who this year set a record of his own.

Hawley, who won the apprentice title last year with 238 wins, has the same cool, calculating approach to his rides that for years made Shoemaker the continent's leading jockey.

RETURNED HOME

Sanford Desmond Hawley stormed on to the Florida race circuit last winter with 19 winners in 15 days at Tropical and was the leading rider at Hialeah when he decided to return home to race at Fort Erie, Ont. He returned against the wishes of Tom Hays of Oakville, Ont., who holds his jockey's contract until June 29, 1971, and Duke Campbell, the trainer who gave Hawley his start four years ago.

"If he'd followed my advice he'd be many dollars ahead of where he is today," Hays said recently. ". . . he could have easily beaten Shoemaker's record."

SUGGESTED BAD ADVICE

Hays implied at the time Hawley was accepting a lot of bad advice from the wrong sources. Campbell expressed equal dismay because his protege preferred staying in bed rather than rising at 5:30 a.m. and working the horses.

A shiny new car and comfortable living have replaced the two-year-old model and cramped living quarters he enjoyed in Florida while being hailed as the Arnold Palmer of the racetrack. It seemed he was always coming from behind to nip the field at the wire.

"Hawley draws the people like flies," said a veteran racing writer last spring. "No matter what he's riding on, they come to him like a magnet."

The fans still come to see Hawley ride.

Tendler Bowed Only To Champs

SOMERS POINT, N.J. (AP) — Lew Tendler, 72, who made close to a million dollars as a lightweight boxer and later operated a famous restaurant in Philadelphia, died in Shore Memorial Hospital here Saturday.

Tendler fought 167 bouts before he retired in 1928 just before his 30th birthday, but never won a championship.

New Wrinkles by Colts Help Confuse Packers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two new wrinkles set the tone as Baltimore Colts continued their charge toward a National Football League playoff berth Monday night by downing Green Bay Packers 13-10.

One of those "new wrinkles" was unveiled on the first play of the game when running back Sam Havrilak, a former quarterback, took the ball on an apparent reverse and threw to wide receiver Roy Jefferson.

"It was one of those high school plays," Baltimore coach Don McCafferty said. "We have been using reverses all season, but that's the first time we have thrown off of it."

Then there was Jerry Hill's 15-yard scamper around right end for the Colts' only touchdown of the game. Quarterback John Unitas faked to Havrilak on a plunge through the centre of the line, then pitched out to Hill, who turned the left end with nothing but a host of Baltimore jerseys out in front of him.

"That was a great call by John," McCafferty said.

"That's the first time we used it this year. You have to come up with new wrinkles now and then to keep everybody honest."

GAME NOT CLOSE

Although the score was close, the game wasn't. Green Bay took an early 3-0 lead, then watched Baltimore explode to a 13-3 advantage before the Packers score their final points with less than two minutes remaining in the game.

Havrilak's pass on the first play, which was good for 54 yards, was the only real long gainer of the day as intermittent rain forced both teams to play more conservatively than they wanted to.

The drive started by the pass fizzled, however, when Jim O'Brien missed a 30-yard field goal attempt.

CAPS LONG DRIVE

After Dale Livingston capped a 71-yard Packer drive with a 20-yard field goal, Unitas took the Colts 80 yards leading to Hill's 15-yard sweep around left end.

O'Brien then booted three-pointers from 42 and 29 yards before Green Bay finished the scoring when Jim Grabowski plunged one yard for the final touchdown.

The victory raised Baltimore's record to 7-1 in its bid for the American Conference's Eastern Division title.

JUMP WON'T BE RATIFIED

LONDON (Reuters) — A world high-jump record claimed by China's Ni Chinh-Chin will not be ratified because China is not a member of the International Amateur Athletics Federation.

The New China news agency reported Monday that Ni leaped seven feet six inches Sunday at Changsha City, Hunan province. The existing world record of seven feet 5¾ inches was set by Valery Brumel of the Soviet Union in 1963.

IAFF officials are hopeful that feat will provoke fresh discussions on the possibility of China rejoining the federation, of which it was once a member.

Views Stretch Streak By Clipping Claremont

Mount View and Victoria, who meet Friday in the championship playoff, closed out the regular Inter-High School Boys' Soccer League schedule with victories on Monday.

Mount View extended its undefeated streak to 11 games by nipping Claremont 2-1 at Lochside Park and runner-up Victoria trounced visiting Oak Bay 6-2.

In other matches, Esquimalt downed visiting Mount Douglas 8-3 and Belmont battled host Reynolds to a scoreless draw.

THREE-GOAL EFFORT

Theo Van Den Berg paced Victoria with three goals, all in the first half. Terry Dheensaw (2) and Bob Duncan added the other Victoria goals while Robert Gutierrez counted both Oak Bay goals.

George Hyne and Bob Ferguson each scored three goals to lead Esquimalt while singles were chipped in by George Pakos and Doug Casperson. Kn Jones, Jose Carmona and Rick Wardle scored for Mount Douglas.

Fort Marcy Sizzles in Workout

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Fort Marcy turned in a sensational workout on Monday, lending further credence to his role as favorite in the $150,000 Washington, D.C. International at Laurel on Wednesday.

Paul Mellon's 6-year-old gelding was clocked in 59 3-5 seconds for five-eighths of a mile on Belmont's main track in New York Monday morning before being vanned to Laurel.

Fort Marcy, who could top the $1 million mark in earnings if he takes down the $100,000 first prize in the International, won the 1½-mile turf race in 1967 and finished third in 1968.

Fiddle Isle, the other U.S. entry, beat Fort Marcy in two of three meetings this year and has been installed as the 4-1 second choice.

English jockey Lester Piggott will try to win the Invitational for the third straight year. He will be aboard England's Lorenzaccio, a 5-year-old who beat the one-time super horse Nijinsky in the Champion Stakes.

When Imperial Oil was founded in 1880 we were already celebrating our 16th year.
Sixteen far-sighted businessmen started Imperial Oil in the town of London, Ontario.
We also started in London.
On March 18th, 1864, some sixteen years earlier.
That was the day 25 pioneer businessmen held the first meeting of what is now Canada Trust.
Now that has all passed.
The people and the buildings and the events of the day are Canadian history.
But the approach of our 25 founders still lives on in our present company philosophy:
"To bring the maximum amount of energy and intelligence to bear on the project in order to most effectively serve the client."
Which is exactly what we've done.
Now after following it for over a century, we're one of Canada's largest trust companies with more branches coast to coast than anyone else.
And our philosophy of service has made it all possible.

Bureau Claimed Toothless If Under Landlord Act

By BOB MITCHELL

A bureau to handle tenancy disputes should be set up under the Rent Control Act, not the Landlord and Tenant Act, the president of the B.C. Tenants' Association said Monday.

Bruce Yorke of Vancouver said in an interview advisory bureaus set up under the Landlord and Tenant Act—while better than nothing—will turn out to be "toothless."

They have only the authority to advise, and no power to act, Yorke said.

"I agree the advisory bureaus are very weak and not terribly effective," Yorke said, "but I don't want that to be construed that they serve no use.

Boards in Vancouver and Surrey were set up in 1969 under the Rent Control Act, while in New Westminster an advisory bureau was created this year under the Landlord and Tenant Act.

Municipal governments have the authority to create either kind of board, but Victoria city council has not indicated whether it intends to act on a proposal to create one here.

ADVISE ON DISPUTES

Support for a board which would either arbitrate or advise on disputes between landlords and tenants has come from the Capital Region Tenants' Association and the Victoria Labor Council.

The kind of authority Yorke thinks tenancy boards should have is exemplified in a bylaw passed during the summer by the Surrey board.

Under the new regulation an eviction notice can be appealed to the board, and will be revoked unless the landlord justifies the eviction.

"The principle is that the onus of proof must be on the landlord, not the tenant," Yorke said.

He would like to see the same bylaw extended throughout B.C.

Security deposits, which now are outlawed under the Landlord and Tenant Act, can only be reinstated by a board set up under the Rent Control Act, Yorke said.

WANT DEPOSITS

He said some real estate companies have supported establishment of boards because they hope to bring back the security deposit.

Ironically, Vancouver, which is not affected by the Landlord and Tenant Act, is still stuck with security deposits, $50 for a furnished apartment, $25 for an unfurnished apartment.

Yorke said most cases dealt with by the Vancouver board have to deal with security deposits.

He said he is not satisfied with the makeup of the board, whose members include a past president of the Board of Trade, a retired insurance executive and a woman who several years ago was named Vancouver's citizen-of-the-year.

City council has refused as a matter of principle to appoint a tenant to the board, Yorke said.

Another complaint about the Vancouver board is that it does not hold night hearings, a fact which discourages people from appearing before it.

WASTE OF TIME SAYS REALTOR

An advisory bureau to air landlord-tenant disputes would be a "waste of time," according to the head of a local real estate firm.

John W. Dickie of Dickie Agencies Ltd. said on the weekend an advisory bureau would serve no useful purpose because it would not have the authority to actually settle disputes.

Tenants and landlords held separate meetings Oct. 21, and both groups were to submit briefs to city council urging creation of an advisory bureau.

However, Dickie now says: "I've changed my thinking on that a little bit.

"I think it would be a waste of time because it wouldn't settle anything."

Dickie said he now supports Mayor Courtney Haddock's view that city council should not set up an advisory bureau, even though it has the authority to do so under the amended Landlord and Tenant Act.

"I'm glad Mayor Haddock has taken the action he did," Dickie said.

Haddock said Thursday he did not want Brian Jewitt, president of the Capital Region Tenants' Association, to appear before city council's finance committee to speak in favor of an advisory bureau.

Jewitt said Saturday aldermen have an obligation to tenants to create the bureau to protect them from exploitation by landlords.

Dickie said landlords and tenants can get advice on grievances from solicitors in the attorney-general's department.

A spokesman for the A-G's department confirmed Monday that solicitors get many letters on tenancy matters from all over the province.

The spokesman explained the purpose of advisory boards at the municipal level was to enable landlords and tenants to air complaints to see whether it would be worth the expense of hiring legal assistance and taking their case to small debts court.

DUNCAN-COWICHAN

(Duncan Office Ph. 746-6181)

Amalgamation Poll Bid Condemned as 'Gimmick'

DUNCAN — A bid by the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce to get a public opinion poll on amalagamation into the December elections is a gimmick, Ald. Allan Kerr of Duncan said at Monday city council meeting.

It is not possible to amalgamate all of North Cowichan with Duncan, Kerr said.

"Let's be honest and frank about it," he said. "We don't believe a word of this. North Cowichan is a vast piece of land with a few small towns in it.

"You know it's not possible to amalgamate. Chemainus would no more amalgamate than we would. I suggest we ask North Cowichan to get rid of the motion in their books that there will be no fragmentation of North Cowichan. It would be ridiculous to amalgamate to Chemainus.

'LET'S CUT IT'

"Let's cut it off and say we are just pulling each other's leg."

Mayor Jim Quaife said he agreed with Gerry Smith, mayor of North Cowichan, that any poll would be premature until the newly completed feasibility study on joint services is made public. Although he said he did not want to enter into a public debate at this time, Quaife allowed each alderman to comment to chamber president Les Atchison's request.

Ald. Dick Benzies, who had recently submitted a similar motion but was not allowed to discuss it before, stressed that "it is about time to start listening to little breezes blowing into the council chamber."

'INTEGRAL UNIT'

"If this community is going to live together it is going to have to as one integral unit."

Benzies suggested that a steering committee be formed between both councils and gather facts on amalgamation.

"I feel that future councils should give leadership in this area," he said.

Atchison has approached three North Cowichan ratepayers' groups recently with the same request and all have agreed to wait until the joint services study is made public before forming an opinion.

He said he will approach North Cowichan council with the same request next week.

DEEP-SEA SHIPS IN PORT

Crofton — Sergey Yesenin, Japan; New Zealand Star.

Duncan Bay — Lattuga.

Chemainus — John M. Redher.

ELECTED in a tight vote as president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, Crofton local 2, was Pat Clements, 26, of Duncan. Clements defeated Bob Stuart of Ladysmith 216 to 212 in a recount which was necessitated by a tie vote last week. The incumbent was Fred Mullin of Crofton. Other new executive members are Ian Walmsley of Chemainus, first vice-president; Harvey O'Keefe of Duncan, second vice-president; Carey Adams of Crofton, secretary; Bruce Anderson of Duncan, business agent; and Bob Waddy of Duncan, treasurer.

Chamber Wants More Grant Aid

DUNCAN — The Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce has asked Duncan council for an $800 increase in its annual grant.

It got $630 last year, plus $665 in tax exemptions.

Pat Mullins, tourist committee chairman, told the council Monday that "the department of travel industry does an outstanding job of bringing people to B.C., and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau does an excellent job of bringing visitors to the island.

"It is the job of whoever promotes tourism for this area to see that visitors to Vancouver Island are made aware of the attractions, activities, and events this area has to offer."

"Tourism will provide jobs for the people of this community, including summer jobs for our young people."

Mullins said his committee would like to see that every service station and eating establishment within the Cowichan Valley is made aware its many tourist attractions.

The request was referred to finance committee.

By PAT DUFOUR

A local shipping company, in a bid to revitalize the commercial port of Victoria, has "taken on the big boys in Vancouver" and started its own stevedoring subsidiary.

Hector Campbell, manager of Westcan Terminals Ltd., said the move was unavoidable if Victoria was to avoid being strangled out of business by highly-organized competition.

Campbell, around the docks since the 1930s, remembers the days when Victoria was a major port, "especially for the Orient."

That position changed "when the big Vancouver stevedore companies decided to get into the dock business. From then on, more and more business was diverted from Victoria to the mainland."

"In those days we were only concerned with lumber and didn't fight back."

The fight began in earnest Jan. 1, 1969, when A. Hershell Smith bought the business and made Campbell his manager.

"He's really for developing the port of Victoria and has given me a free hand to get moving."

Jan. 1 of this year the company started its subsidiary Westcan Stevedoring and appointed Andy Kotowich, past president of the International Longshoremen's Union, to head up its stevedoring operations.

Some of the big ships that normally bypassed Victoria began putting in at Ogden Point in March.

Biggest ever to dock in Victoria, the 810-foot bulk carrier Strathearn, was here this week to take on oil seed and wheat for Rotterdam. Campbell is sure that she's the forerunner of many more huge ships that will be brought here because of "the package deal" his company now offers.

Package Deal Scores In Attracting Ships

To back up their bids, Westcan has invested more than $300,000 in jitneys, dollies, lift trucks and other equipment and a new $65,000 concrete garage is more evidence that the company intends to stay in there punching.

One of the means they've used to stimulate port activity is to haul lumber from California and Oregon ports to Victoria, storing it here, then shipping it out on freighters bound for its final delivery point in Britain.

The red tape of federal departments, says Campbell, has hampered the growth of the docks.

"We've been getting the big run-around."

The Canadian National Railway is trustee for the docks but the departments of public works and transport also become involved in the big decision-making.

A tour of the facilities with Campbell shows that the CNR hasn't been asleep at the switch when it comes to improving dock facilities. But it's a slow process, hampered by the subsidizing that CNR has to do to keep grain shipments moving out of Victoria.

Victoria's grain elevator was built in depression years as one of the projects to provide work.

Transportation regulations stipulate that the cost of shipping grain to Vancouver and Victoria must be the same. This means that the CNR must underwrite the substantial cost of shipping grain from the mainland to Victoria.

And, as Campbell explains: "The CNR, like us, can't pour back in what they don't have. There are limits."

According to Campbell, the federal government has been niggardly in the financial assistance it has given the Victoria dock, compared to the money poured into other B.C. ports.

"Seaboard Shipping in Vancouver was given $5 million this year. Port Alberni received $2.5 million and Nanaimo, $400,000. I'm not absolutely certain, but I think they covered a bank loan for Kitimat to the tune of $4.5 million.

"Victoria didn't get a red cent."

Victoria companies, too, have bypassed the local facilities.

"We're not shipping out any plywood or lumber from the local area. This goes to ports up-Island. The closest company we ship for is at Sooke."

In spite of difficulties, Campbell is confident his company's efforts to bring back Victoria's port will pay off.

"When we started in 1947 there was just gravel here, railway cars, a few scows and some hard-topped fill.

"The pessimists figured we wouldn't handle 400,000 feet of lumber a month. Now we have an average of a million feet a day coming in."

'I MOVE ... WE MOVE'

WEST MORDEN, England (UPI) — When Mrs. Mavis Caver refused to leave the closed local county council meeting on building conservation, the councillors decided to leave her. They moved the session to a parking lot outside.

From Bea Wright

Apple Pie, Baked Apples, Apple Crisp, Candied Apples, Apple Dumplings, Apple Jelly . . . There's an endless list of the appetizing ways apples can be prepared. At this time of the year, apples are in good supply and reasonable in price. Here we've mentioned only five favourite apple varieties and their characteristics.

Delicious

There are two members to this family — Red and Gold Delicious. Both are mainly dessert apples with smooth, firm, crisp pulp. When cooked they have a smooth and firm texture.

McIntosh

The popular 'Mac' is an all purpose apple, excellent for eating as well as cooking. Deep red in colour, the McIntosh has firm, crisp pulp and soft, smooth texture when cooked.

Newton

Rome Beauty

Spartan

A cross between a McIntosh and Newtown, the Spartan is another of the all purpose apple group. When cooked, it's pulp is smooth and soft.

IMPACT OF DE GAULLE ON CANADIAN EVENTS

He Spurred Separatism and Polarized Opinion

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

MONTREAL (CP) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle was blamed by some and credited by others for the upsurge in Quebec separatism and nationalism in the last three years.

The former French president, who died in France Monday night of a heart attack, caused an international furore when he came to Canada on an official visit in 1967 and promptly made what many considered was a deliberate intrusion into Canadian political affairs.

He came primarily to visit Expo 67, the first world's fair ever held in Canada, but the complexion of the visit quickly changed when he was caught up in the enthusiasm of a separatist-oriented crowd in front of Montreal's city hall and shouted from a balcony: "Vive le Quebec libre" (Long live free Quebec).

The slogan was one used by groups favoring separation of Quebec from Canada and the establishment of an independent state.

Many Quebecers, both French and English, and all of the English-language provinces were furious over the incident.

RAPPED BY PEARSON

Lester Pearson, then Canadian prime minister, called a hurried meeting of his cabinet and a sternly-worded statement was issued rapping the French president solidly on the knuckles for interfering in Canadian affairs. The action was considered unprecedented.

Miffed, General de Gaulle cancelled a planned visit to Ottawa anl returned to France and from there carried on a diplomatic war against the Canadian government.

Shortly before his departure, he was guest at a luncheon tendered by the City of Montreal. In a brief speech, he told of France's love for what he described as the French of Canada and how his government planned to help Quebec preserve its language and its culture anl strengthen its ties with France.

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal stood to reply and in what many considered to be the most outstanding speech of his career he reminded the general that French-Canadians had built up their society for 200 years without any help or interest from France.

Mr. Drapeau said French-Canadians realized that their destiny was in North America and not in Europe.

At a news conference on his return to France, President de Gaulle said:

"In Montreal, the second French city in the world, which was the end of my journey, the upsurge of passion for liberation was such that it was a sacred duty for France to respond, without hesitation and solemnly.

"This is what I did, when telling the multitude assembled around the city hall that France does not forget her children in Canada that she loves them, that she is determined to support them in their efforts for liberation and progress and that in return she expects them to help her in the world of today and tomrrow . . ."

The general increased relations with Quebec through cultural and educational agreements. Quebec premiers and cabinet ministers were invited to Paris for frequent consultations and were treated as representatives of an independent state.

The French government virtually ignored the Canadian ambassador in Paris. French government officials visiting Quebec pointedly ignored Ottawa, discarding the normal diplomatic practice of giving the federal government advance notice of their visits.

Relations between Paris and Ottawa have improved since the general's retirement, but political observers predicted the wounds he inflicted would be slow to heal as long as he remained in the background.

War Act Charges Laid

MONTREAL (CP) — Two men in their 20s, detained by police under terms of the War Measures Act, were sent to Court of Queen's Bench trial Monday on charges of conspiracy to steal machines-guns and military uniforms from a military base at St. Johns, Que.

Jean-Guy Lelievre, 25, unemployed, and Victor Daudelin, 26, a shoe salesman, were the first to have been charged after sweeping emergency powers were proclaimed Oct. 16. Both men are from Montreal.

Sessions Judge Georges Sylvestre set bail in each case at a personal bond of $950. No trial date was set.

At the arraignment last Monday the police said the two men were not members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec, responsible for two political kidnappings.

A juvenile was also charged in social welfare court in connection with the affair.

36 Per Cent Wage Hike 'Not Enough'

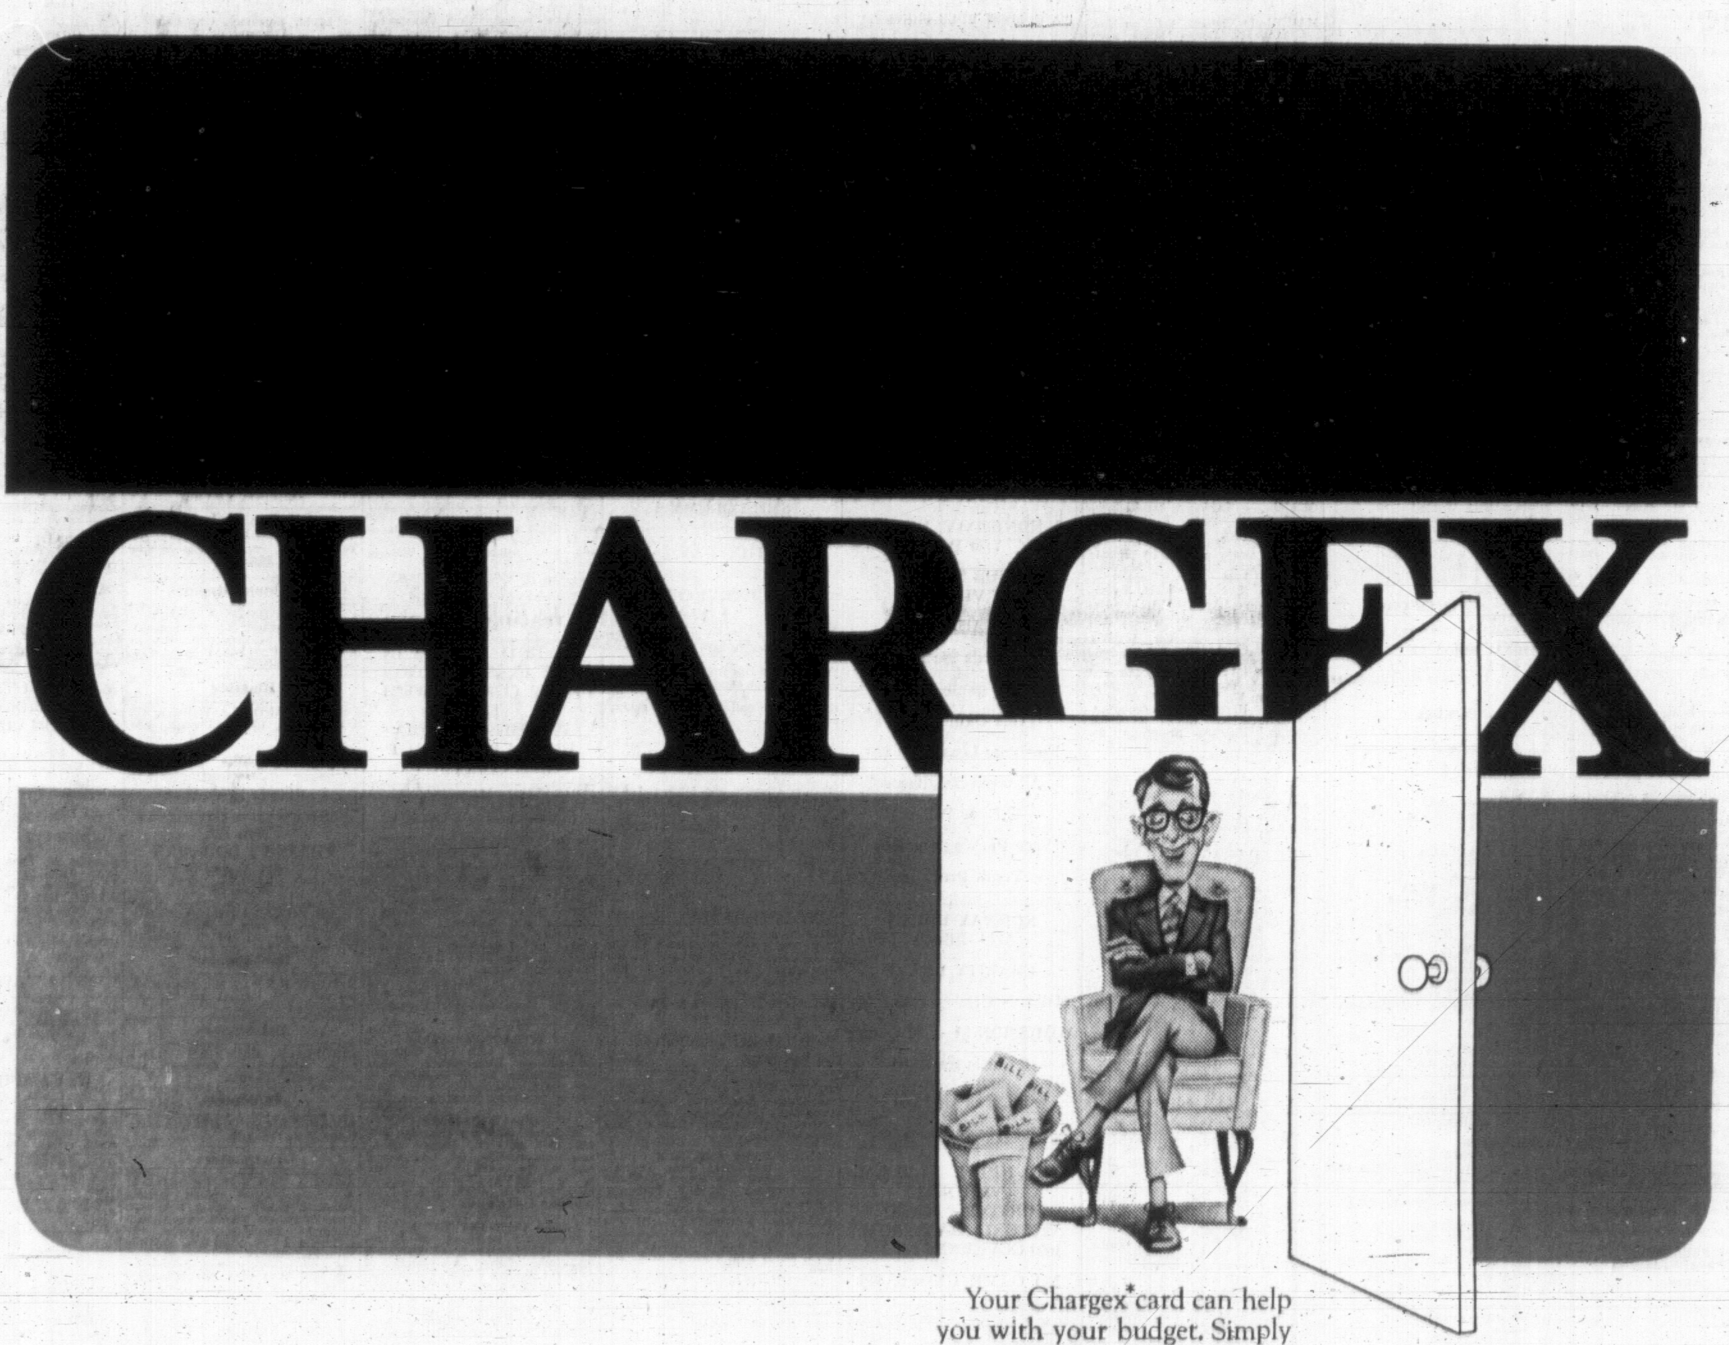
WASHINGTON (AP) — A key union official has spurned a White House board's recommendation for the largest wage settlement in U.S. railway history —a 36 per-cent pay increase over three years for more than 500,000 workers.

"It's not enough," said C. L. Dennis, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, after the recommendation was made public Monday. The panel called for boosting the average wage of the workers from the current $3.68 hourly level to $5 over the life of the contract.

Dennis, however, said the recommendations of the five-member board, appointed by President Nixon to head off a threatened nationwide rail strike, could serve as the basis for further talks.

Under the Railway Labor Act, the earliest the unions could strike is 12:01 a.m. Dec. 10.

Budget on it.



Your Chargex* card can help you with your budget. Simply by taking a lot of the confusion out of budgeting.

For example, when you use your Chargex card, you only get one bill every month. Instead of a whole pile of bills.

That means you only have to write one cheque. Which, you'll find, is a lot easier (and cheaper) than writing a whole pile of cheques.

At the same time, your Chargex billing gives you a complete record of your monthly purchases. It tells you where and when you bought it, and how much you paid.

So you know exactly where you stand. And that's half the battle.

After all, what's the sense of putting yourself on a budget, if you can't tell whether you're sticking to it or not?

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

At the recent meeting of the American College of Surgeons, Drs. Harold Laufman, Herbert and Irving Dardik, of the Montefiore Hospital in New Yrok, reported what looks like a great discovery—a new and much more easily absorbed suture material, the surgeon's "thread" that he uses to hold a wound closed. For years, surgeons have used cat gut, but this, being foreign material, can cause imflammation in the wound. The new material is absorbed much as a food is obsorbed in the bowel. It is to be marketed under the name of Dexon and has already been used with success in 3,000 operations performed by surgeons all over the world.

Of late, a number of physicians have been uttering warnings, saying that aspirin has been causing the stomach lining to bleed a bit. I have not got excited about this because during the many years in which I have been prescribing aspirin or talking to patients who were taking much aspirin, I never saw a case in which the person showed enough bleeding from the stomach to alarm either him or me.

Recently, it has been shown that aspirin can produce some oozing of blood from tne inner lining of the stomach. So far as I can learn, this oozing is nothing to be worried about, unless the patient is taking more than six doses of the drug a day, perhaps for a severe arthritis.

★ ★ ★

Recently, at the meeting of the American College of Surgeons, Drs. Adele Gottschalk and Rene Menguy, of the University of Chicago, reported the remarkable fact that aspirin does not appear to produce bleeding by acting on top of the lining of the stomach. Little gastric ulcers due to the drug are just as easily produced when the aspirin is injected under the skin. Experiments on rats with stomachs so treated with X-rays that they could not make much hydrochloric acid (the acid normally in the stomach) showed that the difficulty came because aspirin stimulated the stomach wall to produce an excessive amount of hydrochloride acid. The rats treated with X-ray whose stomachs could not make much acid did not develop the tiny ulcers when given aspirin.

TOP TELEVISION SHOWS

Tonight

NANCY. 6 p.m., Channel 2. Now they're newlyweds, the veterinarian and the daughter of the president. They're looking for a quiet, romantic ... and most of all private ... place to have a honeymoon. They plan to slip away to scenic Lake Bageneehawk, but ...

★ ★ ★

THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Fans will get a boot from the fantasy sequence created for Granny's unique imagination. She has been worried by Elly's new beau, a frog man whose scubadiving gear has conjured up the vision of a giant frog in Granny's fertile brain. In a nightmare, she dreams Elly Mae is going to marry the man-frog, and desperately tries to prevent it.

★ ★ ★

THE DON KNOTTS SHOW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. Never let it be said that the star of this series is from the Milton Berle school. Instead of insisting he be featured in every act, Don practically turns the show over to his guest star, Bill Cosby. But then, that should be the case as the low-keyed but high-powered Cosby slides in such diverse characterizations as a boxer, baseball manager, heavenly tour guide and investments counselor. Florence Henderson and Glen Ash are also featured.

★ ★ ★

JULIA. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. Sports, of one sort or another, take over tonight. It's bowling for Julia and marbles for the boys, with Cesar Romero as Bunny Henderson coaching the lads in the latter. Far more serious at least to Julia is the bowling lessons she's taking on advice from friends to "get involved" with Steve's hobbies.

★ ★ ★

THE MOVIE OF THE WEEK. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. "Tribes" this should have been saved for father's day since the opening is a special treat for dad. It shows a Marine barber separating 30 long-haired young Marine recruits from their shaggy locks. The story centres on one of these young men, a new Marine who arrives for boot training, garbed in a hindu meditation role, sandals and shoulder-length hair. But what is more important is what's on the inside: a personality and character that is soft and sensitive, yet fired to steel strength in the life style convictions he's espoused. Earl Holliman and Darren McGavin are two drill sergeants whose ideas of how to deal with the hippie are miles apart. Jan-Michael Vincent co-stars.

★ ★ ★

TUESDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. "The Intruders" Don Murray and Edmond O'Brien star in this "World Premiere" production as a pair of lawmen in a small frontier town. They close ranks in preparation for an unwanted visit by the notorious Cole Younger-Jesse James gang. Then they are split by the arrival of a town outcast, a half-breed recently released from jail. The Colonel wants the man evicted from the town while the Marshal insists he has a right to stay and prove himself in the coming confrontation. John Saxon and Anne Francis are featured.

★ ★ ★

JACK BENNY SPECIAL. 9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. This show celebrates Benny's 20th anniversary on television. On hand to assist with the festivities are Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Dinah Shore and cameo guests Mary Livingstone (Mrs. Benny) Lucille Ball, Dean Martin and Red Skelton. High point of the hour is a series of film clips from Jack's old shows.

★ ★ ★

MARCUS WELBY, M.D. 10 p.m., Channel 4. Ricardo Montalban frighteningly sincere as a scientist who believes he is about to die. The researcher had been working with Mexican Indians and their use of hallucinogenic drugs. He believes his experimentation cannot be complete unless he himself experiences the effects of the narcotics. Afterwards it isn't known if death really is beckoning him, or if the drug has had a longer and more deadly effect on him than on the Indians.

Tonight's Movies

5:30, Channel 12: Flight of the Lost Balloon (1961 adventure), Mala Powers, Marshall Thompson. A little science fiction, a little jungle adventure and a little plot.

5:30, Channel 13: Case of the Babysitter (1947 comedy), Tom Neal. A private eye nabs a pair of jewel thieves.

9:00, Channel 5: The Intruders (1970 western), Don Murray, Edmond O'Brien. Small-town marshal awaits the arrival of the Jesse James gang.

11:30, Channel 7: To Hell and Back (1955 biography), Audie Murphy. Second World War story.

12:00, Channel 6: The Projected Man (1966 English science fiction), Bryant Haliday. Scientist plans to project himself through space but the experiment goes awry.

REMEMBRANCE DAY SERVICE. 10:30 a.m., Channels 2 and 6. This special production offers coverage of the annual ceremonies at the Cenotaph in Ottawa. Among those offering wreaths are Prime Minister Trudeau, and Governor-General Roland Michener.

★ ★ ★

MOD SQUAD. 7 p.m., Channel 6. Welcome to the Human Race, Levi Franzee! Police Brutality is the subject of this episode. Pete tries to help a young Apache Indian arrested for murder in an isolated town in the southwestern desert of the U.S.

★ ★ ★

THE MEN FROM SHILOH. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. "The Price of the Hanging" More and more dramatic series this season depend on the size and quality of guest casting to provide impact. That's the case tonight in the story of a doctor unjustly sentenced to hang for murdering a gambler. Series regular Lee Majors gets the lead tonight, investigating the death-sentencing after the doctor saves the life of Colonel Mackenzie. Edward Binns and Jane Wyatt play the medical man and his wife, with Lew Ayres as the hanging judge, Tom Tryon and sheriff and Pat Harty the accuser.

★ ★ ★

ROOM 222. "The Fuzz That Grooved." This is a good topical tale that oldsters and youngsters alike will appreciate. John Schuck plays a cop who gets along with the kids and even supports them in a student demonstration backing the 18-year-old-vote proposal. He gains their favor but not the good will of vice-principal Gil Casey. When orders come down transferring him to another post, the young people change their current cause to getting him back.

★ ★ ★

CIVILISATION. 8:30 p.m., Channel 9. "Protest and Communication" Sir Kenneth Clark takes a brief respite from his architectural wanderings to look at a highpoint in the theatre, the writings and William Shakespeare. The program moves to the 15th century and the beginning of the age of communications and protest. Among the highlights are the impact of Guttenberg's press, the protests of Martin Luther and the Shakespearean productions, with extracts of his plays performed by the Royal Shakespeare Company. Other influences touched on are those of Erasmus, Montaigne, Durer and Cranach.

★ ★ ★

THE KRAFT MUSIC HALL. 9 p.m., Channel 5. "The Kopykats." The consistency of quality in this series is again exemplified by this desirable format that nobody has yet to produce: an entire hour devoted to impressionists. Producers Hermion and Smith signed the best in the business, and brought in a lady to vie with the men. It's Edie Adams along with George Kirby, David Frye, Frank Gorshin, Rich Little and Will Jordan. It would be easier to list the politicians and personalities left out than it would to tab the names of those used. It's done singularly, in comedy skits, such as a presidential cabinet meeting, and in song and dance. In this musical group you swear you're hearing the likes of Carol Channing, Pearl Baily, Dean Martin, Ethel Merman, Barbra Streisand and Al Jolson.

★ ★ ★

MEDICAL CENTRE. 9 p.m., Channel 12. The witchcraft yarn spun here would have disentigrated had the producers decided to use a star given to melodramatics rather than straight acting. Their choice of Dana Wynter as the college librarian and local witch was a good one. She has gathered about her a cult made up of students who have become such complete believers that they try to treat a genuinely sick college with incantations rather than medicine. Dr. Gannon makes a move to ferret out and disband them.

Wednesday Movies

5:30 Channel 12: The Spy Killer (1969 drama), Robert Horton, Jill St. John. Ex-agent, earning his living as a shady private eye, is offered an assignment by British Security.

5:30: Channel 13: Shoot to Kill (1947 drama), Susan Walters, Russell Wade. A crooked district attorney double-crosses everyone until a reporter gets the goods on him.

8:00: Channel 8: The Guns of Navarone (1961 adventure), Gregory Peck, David Niven, Anthony Quinn. Tension-filled war drama involving a group of soldiers and Greek guerrilla fighters in the Aegean.

11:50: Channel 2: Paths of Glory (1957 drama), Kirk Douglas, Ralph Meeker. One of the half dozen quality anti-war films of all time.

12:00: Channels 6 and 8: Dr. Strangelove: Or, How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb (1963 English Satire), Peter Sellers, George C. Scott. A cinema classic making a personal, pertinent and devastating statement about our troubled society.

Press Ordered to Leave Library Meeting

Saanich's special library committee met for two hours Monday night with representatives of the Vancouver Island Regional Library.

The press had to leave the meeting, in a motion opposed only by Ald. Foster Isherwood, because it was exploratory and no decisions would be made.

Last month, Saanich council decided to review its role in the present Greater Victoria Public Library agreement and consider the advantages and disadvantages of service through the Vancouver Island Regional Library.

Special library committee chairman, Ald. Alan Newberry, said later the meeting discussed services the Vancouver Island Regional Library would offer, the branch library program, tax revenue required from Saanich and expansion programs generally for island library service.

The next step, he said, is for the committee to meet the Library Development Commission, the provincial secretary's citizens advisory committee on provincial library policy.

"We will meet them to discuss their view regarding Saanich joining the Vancouver Island Regional Library service, merger of the two libraries, having the Greater Victoria Public Library serve the entire Capital Regional District or maintaining the status quo," he said.

"Then the committee will look at the Greater Victoria library agreement."

Residents of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich are served by the Greater Victoria library. Service to the remainder of southern Vancouver Island is via the Island regional library.

Trustee Gets B.C. Appointment

Greater Victoria school trustee Dr. Donald Shorting has been appointed to the provincial elementary curriculum committee by the British Columbia School Trustees' Association.

"For the first time, the public has a real voice in determining curriculum in the public schools," Peter C. D. Powell, president of the B.C.S.T.A., said in announcing the appointments.

The other three trustees are from the lower mainland and interior school boards.

Powell said the department of education had invited the association to nominate two trustees to each of the elementary and secondary curriculum committees responsible for setting school curriculum province-wide.

"These appointments are a significant breakthrough in our long-standing attempt to bring lay concerns to the area of curriculum formation," Powell said.

"Previously, the committee consisted entirely of professional educators and the public had no opportunity to participate."

BIG OK!

OK
says Mrs. L. Logan of Pictou, Nova Scotia.

We gave Mrs. Logan an advanced pack of new lower phosphate SURF, reformulated with substitute materials. Here's what she had to say:

"SURF has always been a good buy. I have tried the new lower phosphate formula. It still gets my clothes really clean and I'm saving money too. So I will stay with SURF."

This is just the beginning. Lever research will continue to try to find ways to use substitute materials to lower phosphate levels while maintaining SURF's high quality performance.

Star System Far From Dead; Just Less Money

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If the film business is ailing and the star system is dead, somebody forgot to tell Paul Newman.

The actor's company, Newman-Foreman, with producer John Foreman, has a new film in release, WUSA, and is completing another one, Sometimes a Great Notion, which Newman took over as director midway in shooting.

Newman-Foreman has also completed They Might Be Giants, starring George C. Scott and Joanne Woodward, and Puzzle of a Downfall Child with Faye Dunaway. There can be no doubt about the firm's solvency, since it shares in the bonanza Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid.

The Newman office at Universal was abuzz with activity, including the First Artists Co. which he formed with Barbra Streisand and Sidney Poitier — "No immediate plans; we're waiting until our projects develop." Newman took a lunch break from his cutting of Sometimes a Great Notion to discuss the state of the industry.

WANT CHEAP FLICKS

"All this talk about making another Easy Rider is so much nonsense," said the actor. "Naturally the studios want you to make pictures cheaply. But it can't always be done.

"I've never made a picture for $20 million, but if I thought it was necessary, I would.

"The important thing is to make pictures good—at any price. I can save money; I made Rachel, Rachel for $770,000 and the latest gross on that picture is $9 million."

He pointed out that Sometimes a Great Notion was budgeted at $2.9 million despite an important cast—Newman, Henry Fonda, Lee Remick—and Oregon location. Even with six days of retakes and a hiatus when he broke an ankle, the film only cost $3.1 million.

"But of course, I didn't take any money for the picture," Newman said. "That's what the companies want nowadays: for us to take part of the risk by working for less money.

"I'm perfectly willing to do that, but—this is the important part—they have to make some sacrifices, too. The companies have to give a little on their side."

COST TOO MUCH

WUSA cost $4.8 million, which Newman said was "too much." But he is more enthusiastic about the picture than anything he has done in years.

"I was so high on this film and what it has to say that four months ago I made a decision to put my name on it as producer," he said. "That was some thing I hadn't done on Butch or any of the other productions I have been associated with."

Outspoken Banker New Envoy

LONDON (AP) — The new British ambassador to the United States is an outspoken banker who says "it will be important to explain to the Americans why we must move closer to Europe."

The government announced Monday the 52-year-old Earl of Cromer, head of the great 19th century banking family of Baring, will replace journalist-politician John Freeman in Britain's No. 1 diplomatic post.

Cromer was British economic minister in Washington from 1959 to 1961, and for the next five years was governor of the Bank of England. His plain speaking in that post was at times a thorn to both the Conservatives who appointed him and the Laborites who inherited him in 1964. But his prestige in the international banking world was considered a major factor in the rescue of the pound early in the Labor term.

Many observers also credit Cromer with a decisive influence in the June election that brought Prime Minister Edward Heath to power. Speaking on television, he challenged the Labor Government's claim that it had strengthened the nation's economy by wiping out the balance-of-payments deficit.

"When you take a closer look at it, as bankers do, the figures are not so glamorous as they appear on the surface," he said.

DRAWS CHEERS

Cromer's appointment to Washington drew cheers in British financial circles, but The Financial Times warned that his success "will depend partly upon whether he can establish a close personal relationship with the president."

The new envoy told well wishers today:

"I see the important part of my new job in the area of commerce and trade and in the dollar-sterling relationship during the Common Market monetary developments. I look forward to working to further the interests of Britain and the United States."

Born George Rowland Stanley Baring and known to his friends as Rowly, Cromer was educated at Eton and Cambridge, was an officer in the Grenadier Guards during the Second World War and in 1942 married Esme Harmsworth, daughter of Lord Rothermere, the owner of The Daily Mail.

'Calling All Laundromats'

BOURNEMOUTH, England (UPI) — Police called to a laundromat to investigate reports of "voices" coming from a washing machine found that they were actually police radio calls. Engineers said the machine's copper bowl was acting as an aerial.

NO APARTHEID at the Miss Work contest in London. South Africa is represented by two beauties, Miss South Africa Jillian Jessup (left) and Miss Africa South, Pearl Jansen, both 20. Both objected when reporters asked them about segregation and how they felt representing the two races. "Jolly unfair," was their reply. (AP Wirephoto).

BLACK, WHITE EMBRACE

LONDON (AP) — White Miss South Africa and black Miss Africa South embraced and kissed Monday.

They are here for the Miss World contest.

This is the first time one country has sent two entrants and the first time a non-white beauty—Miss Africa South—has been a representative of South Africa.

When reporters asked the girls about segregation and whether they thought it right that both of them should enter from the same country, both flared up.

"Please don't go all political—it's jolly unfair of you," protested blonde Jillian Jessup, 20, a student.

Brunette Pearl Jansen, 20, a Cape Town shoe factory machinist, said: "Can't you understand? We are beauty queens, not politicians. We don't know anything about politics. Jillian and I are friends, and will still be friends when we get back home."

They agreed: "We feel it gives our country two chances to win."

The contest will be decided on Friday, Nov. 20, at the Royal Albert Hall. The entrants were chosen from thousands of girls in national beauty contests held around the world.

Police Court

A 19-year-old man whose "curious mind" led him to marijuana was fined $300 and ordered to pay in $50 instalments by Judge William Ostler Monday in provincial court.

Johann C. Salm, of 407 Newport, was described to Ostler as "a very good student, a good citizen in school and a leader of the band" by a teacher called as a character witness.

The teacher said Salm had a "curious mind" and had been led to soft drug use by his curiosity.

Ostler said the pre-sentence report ordered in the case was "very good."

"But of course you knew this was illegal. If you break the law knowingly you commit an offence . . . I just can't understand you doing it."

* * *

A woman whose husband is unemployed and has been forced to go on welfare pleaded guilty to a charge of shoplifting.

Mary Elizabeth Dillon, 39, of 2533 Blanshard, told court she had never stolen anything before but "I was thinking of Christmas."

She said she was concerned her children might not receive any gifts because of the work situation that kept her and her husband unemployed.

"I've been looking for work," she said, "but I couldn't find any."

Ostler remanded her to Nov. 25 for preparation of a pre-sentence report and released her on her own recognizance.

* * *

Lynn Knight, 19, and her brother, Robert Florence, 17, both of the Duncan area, pleaded guilty to a joint charge of shoplifting.

They were each fined $250.

* * *

Wayne Robertson, 37, address unknown, was fined $50 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of wilful damage by smashing a door at the Drake Hotel.

He was also ordered to pay for the damage.

* * *

John Nicol, 17, of 910 Brock, was fined $250 on a charge of driving with a breathalyzer reading of more than .08 per cent.

Man Freed In Stabbing

NANAIMO (CP) — A 35-year-old Vancouver Island man has been acquitted by a British Columbia Supreme Court jury on a charge of non-capital murder.

The jury deliberated two hours Monday before coming in with a not-guilty verdict in the trial of Douglas White, charged after 32-year-old Larry Patenaud of Surrey died of stab wounds to the stomach suffered in a fight Aug. 8 in Campbell River.

High School Girl New Miss Canada

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario high school student was selected Monday night to reign as Miss Canada for 1971.

Caroline Commisso, 18, of Thunder Bay, Ont., one of 24 contestants from all 10 provinces, was selected winner by a panel of five judges at the conclusion of a 90-minute televised production.

The first runner-up was Betty Ann Hopner, 18, of Edmonton, followed by Mireille Hotte, 22, of Montreal, Laryssa Wityk, 19, of Kingston, Ont., and Lynn Currie, 21, of Pakenham, Ont., near Ottawa.

The five finalists were required to provide snap answers to selected questions, prepared by famous Canadians.

Actress Barbara Hamilton, singer Ian Tyson, figure skater Petra Burka, poet Irving Layton and painter A. Y. Jackson prepared questions for the girls, concerning the role of women in society and the influence of contemporary music on young people.

FACE FIVE JUDGES

Judges were fashion director Pat Gwyer, singer Michel Louvain, playwright and composer Christopher Newton, Miss Canada of 1968 Carol McKinnon Ruschiensky and former Canadian football star Dick Shatto.

The competition was primarily a stage show on the final night. The contestants participated in most of the dance numbers surrounding acts by singers Jacqui and Lindsay and singer - composer Gene MacLellan, who wrote Snowbird a hit song sung by Canadian Anne Murray.

Miss Commisso, a Grade 13 student who plans to remain close to home studying arts at Lakehead University, won a $1,000 scholarship along with national and world travel.

Two awards were made to non-finalists. Debra McCloy, 19, of Victoria earned the $500 talent award and Laurie Henderson, 21, of Calgary was voted Miss Congeniality by fellow contestants.

Mrs. Gwyer, chairman of the judges, explained that the selections were made from three categories. Marks were awarded on the basis of 40 per cent for personality, intellect and charm, 40 per cent for visual attractiveness and 20 per cent for talent.

Other contestants were: Elizabeth Nichols, 18, Burlington, Ont.; Catherine Toms, 18, Saskatoon; Carolyn Black, 20, St. James, Man.; Carolyn Dillman, 23, Windsor, Ont.; Jo-Ann Pinaud, 19, Halifax; Beth Potter, 18, Vancouver; Mary Corcoran, 19, Piusville, P.E.I.; Sally Lynn Breen, 21, Saint John, N.B.; Lesley White, 20, Kitchener, Ont.; Linda Bellefeuille, 19, Trois Rivieres, Que.; Barbara Dove, 19, Harbour Grace, Nfld.; Sharon Pellow, 18, Niagara Falls, Ont.; Annette Villeneuve, 19, Chicoutimi Nord, Que.; Francine Heroux, 20, Quebec; Fanny Flood, 19, Massey, Ont.; Marie Badinski, 18, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Heather Judges, 19, Toronto.

Volcano Threatens

MANILA (Reuter) — Taal volcano, which killed more than 200 persons when it erupted five years ago, has emitted bluish acrid fumes, indicating lava is close to the surface, the Philippine Volcanology Commission reported. A spokesman said that ejections of fragments from the volcano 40 miles south of here had occurred "every minute or so" since early Monday.

MADAME FRANCE CLIDAT

Alliance Francaise Sponsors Recital

Well-known French pianist Madame France Clidat will give a recital with commentary Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. in Room 144 of the MacLaurin Building, University of Victoria.

The recital, sponsored by the Alliance Francaise of Victoria, replaces the November meeting, and is open to the public.

The program will include the Beethoven Moonlight Sonata; 16 waltzes by Brahms (opus 39); St. Francis Preaching to the Birds, and St. Francis Walking on the Waves, Liszt; and two Ravel compositions, Fountains and Alborada Del Gracioso.

Postwomen Return To 50s Hemline

CHESSINGTON, England (UPI) — Britain's post office offered its own solution today to the maxi-vs-midi-vs-mini-vs-micro skirt sweepstakes: A return to the 1950s.

This year's postwomen's uniforms, unveiled today, feature 1950s-style hemlines — just whwere they were before all the fuss began — demure two inches below the knee.

"This is our version of something to fit all ages and all sizes of postwomen in both town and country," clothing officer Barbara Sheppard told newsmen. "It is not a fashion garment. It is a working suit."

As a result, post office girls will be delivering the mail — if not the male — in tailored skirts and jackets, plus trousers for cold weather, redolent of the days when the hottest thing in pop music was Liberace.

For all that, many of the post office's 9,000 women employees were expected to praise their "new look."

By GLENNIS ZILM

EDMONTON (CP) — Part-time modelling sounds a glamorous way to earn money while going to school — but it's not as easy as it sounds.

"When I started I didn't know that modelling would be such hard work said Wendy Jewell, 18, who is earning money modelling while finishing classes before going on to university.

She took a course last spring at Cover Girl, a city modelling school and agency. And she was one of six who completed the course successfully, and was accepted by the agency as one of its models.

She began working in the summer.

"Not that I earned much money last summer," she said. "It takes a long time to get known as a model. So I used the summer to get known.

"But for work while going to school or university it's a lot better than getting a Thursday-Friday-Saturday job."

Linda Speers, a former model who now runs the agency, said Wendy's chances of making it as a model are good.

EMPLOYS HER POODLE

"Most of our models are part-time workers. We have 20 girls, eight children, nine men and one-poodle — mine — all working. I can keep most of them busy."

The female models have a variety of jobs — some are housevies, but there is also a bank clerk who models in the evenings and on weekends, two university students and one secretary.

Even if she doesn't earn a great deal of money. Wendy is still glad she took the course.

"It's given me a lot of confidence. Now I wear what I want, and I try different things."

She's five feet four inches — "short for a model" — and weighs 105 pounds. She's slender and willowy, and says she has to watch that she doesn't put on weight, expecially on her thighs.

"I don't know whether my measurements are ideal — but they are mine. And you have to be honest with yourself about your good and bad points.

"You make the most of your good points and you play down the bad ones — and try to eliminate the ones that are caused by laziness."

APPEARANCE VITAL

"You do have to look good all the time But everyone should be well groomed at all times, so in a way it isn't any more time-consuming."

But she agreed that it was difficult at first to get into strict good health and beauty routines.

"When you are taking the course Linda drills into you that you have to be graceful every minute. I even learned to mount a horse in one graceful movement."

Once the gracefulness is learned, it becomes almost second nature.

EYES ARE ASSET

Wendy was lounging comfortably in white slacks in a wicker chair in Cover Girl's red-and white offices during the interview. She looked as though a photographer could begin to take fashion photos without her moving an eyelash. Non-models in the room shifted uncomfortably, feeling as though they were all knees and elbows.

Wendy says she is not beautiful in the classical sense; but that she has nice hair and that her eyes are good points.

And her big brown eyes — looking bigger because of skilful but unobtrusive make-up — and long, silky, brown hair are attractive assets.

So far, she has done promotional work for two conventions, been photographed at a photographers' convention, modelled for television commercials and posed for several newspaper advertisements.

"And I've done two large fashion shows — which were fun. It's rather like acting.

Even if she doesn't earn much money as a model, Wendy Jewell has learned how to be graceful anywhere — even on the back of a bicycle built for two. (CP Wirephoto).

ASK ADELE

Experts Add to Confusion

I was talking this morning with a group of mothers of young babies and we got into the wierdest discussion — a listing of advice on what position an infant should sleep in.

Some "experts" advocate the back to drain mucous. Some advise the front, to aid bubbling. This is refuted by those who said it causes the babies toes to turn in. They say you should put a baby on his side, left one day and right the other.

We kicked this advice around for 20 minutes and I decided the only safe way for our heir was dangling by one foot holding a roll bar with the opposite hand.

But the discussion did bring home an important point: No matter who you listen to, there's bound to be some other pundit with a rebuttal.

The thing that makes me mad is that there are a lot of girls out in the world who think there's only One Way. Their mothers or in-laws have convinced them that they have the Inside Word.

These girls sit there, feeling inadequate and dumb, because they haven't got the know-how — or at last they don't have that infallible key.

A still have trouble believing this because I'm a believer in Lessons. I'd like to "take" everything, all the time, from Chinese cooking to baton twirling. So I naturally expect baby care to flow from one lecture to another.

Raising a baby reminds me of learning to drive. I was going nuts trying to cope with hand signals, clutch, brake, mirror glances, steering and gear lever all at once so I called out to my instructor, "Hold it — just one thing at a time."

In the same way I'd like Number One Son to need only one skill of mine at a time. Hopefully one I can learn just before he needs it so I keep one jump ahead of him.

When I get most frustrated by differing advice all flowing in on me, I clutch to my bosom the advice (again!) given me by my friend the Child Psychiatrist.

He said I could with confidence clear my mind of all "learned" stuff when in a flap, and the right answer for the time and place would pop out of my head by Instinct. Isn't that Great?

The big problem is to clear one's head. Mine's so cluttered with a lot of do's and don't's.

So, listen closely to the first thing that pops into your head in a crisis. If you can avoid dithering, I'll bet it's "the" right answer.

China Blast Squelches Any 'India' Ideas

By NORMAN WEBSTER

Special to the Times

PEKING — China has fired a blast at India that seems effectively to squelch reports of possible moves toward reprochement between the two countries.

A New China News Agency dispatch minced no words.

* * *

"Recently the Indian government declared time and again that 'India wants to live in peace and friendship with China'," it said.

"But in reality it repeatedly supported and connived at the traitorous Tibetan bandits' acts of high treason, supported the anti-China demonstrations staged by Indian hooligans hostile to China and gave tacit approval to their intensified collusion with the Chaing Kai-Shek bandit gang, common enemy of the Chinese people.

* * *

"All such doings of the Indian government only serve to show that there is not the slightest change in its hostile policy towards China." The article specifically attacked an India-Taiwan friendship week, held recently in New Delhi and other cities. It was "a new and serious provocation against the Chinese people."

Also assailed were the appearance in India of notices bearing the photo of "the political mummy," Chiang Kai-shek, and the holding of a Tibetan youth conference in Dharmsala, presided over by the Dalami Lama, which called for the independence of Tibet.

Relations between China and India have been frigid since the two Asian powers fought a quick border war in 1962 that ended in the rout of Indian troops. India maintains China is still in possession of portions of its territory.

Hopes for an improvement began when chairman Mao Tse-tung greeted India's charge d'affaires warmly on May 1 and said the two countries should live in peace and friendship. Last month the Chinese and Indian ambassadors to Egypt met in Cairo, and reports of rapprochement possibilities appeared.

Indian poured cold water on the reports by saying there was nothing special to the meeting. Friday, in its own way, China also shot them down.

* * *

The timing of the Chinese article is significant. It appeared only four days before the scheduled arrival here of Pakistani President Yahya Khan for a short state visit.

The visit will be the first by a Pakistani head of state since that by Ayub Khan in 1965.

Relations between China and Pakistan are solid—and one of the two countries' main areas of agreement is on a mutual dislike of India. The Chinese re-emphasis that there is no change in Sino-Indian hostility should make the Pakistani visit go more smoothly.

Union Suggested

REGINA (CP) — The leader of the Saskatchewan Social Credit League, speaking to about 65 delegatesat a provincial Progressive Conservative convention Monday, suggested that the parties unite.

Lloyd Avram, 41-year-old Indian Head hotel owner, told the Conservatives' annual meeting, "we would like to join hands with you if the two parties can come forward with policies to improve Canada."

"The time for political realignment is now."

Avran, who assumed leadership of the Saskatchewan Socreds in 1967, said any merger of the parties would have to be based on common philosophical support for free enterprise and individual freedom.

Morale Low

CALGARY (CP) — City hall morale is at a low ebb, chief commissioner Ivor Strong Monday told an inquiry investigating possible civic mismanagement during the last 10 years.

Strong, who volunteered his testimony, said his judgment is based on discussions with fellow commissioners, department heads and other city hall staff.

"If expressions of discontent are any criteria, the situation is at a very low ebb," he said.

Processing Urged

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian government should encourage more processing of natural resources before they are exported, Dr. Leslie Shemilt, president of the Chemical Institute of Canada, said Monday. Dr. Chemil said if this is not done, Canadians could lock themselves into being "hewers of wood and drawers of waer."

Mayor Pleased

EDMONTON (CP) — Mayor Ivor Dent has expressed pleasure that the federal government will spend more than $1.2 million in the next five years to expand Edmonton International Airport. The government announced Monday that the airport would be expanded to accommodate jumbo jets.

Awesome Price Paid

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Man pays an awesome price for his carelessness in pollution, Mayor Andy Anderson told a public hearing on a proposed $4.5 million secondary sewage plant. The province ordered the city to have the plant built after pollution studies were carried out on the Oldman River two years ago.

* * *

Accidents Down

CALGARY (CP) — Despite an increase of 25 per cent in speeding violations, traffic accidents for October dropped to 813 in the city compared with 1,480 for the same period in 1969, Chris Stagg, chief traffic inspector, announced Monday.

Interesting

CALGARY (CP) — Young persons feel it's better "to kill themselves in an interesting way than to live in an uninteresting way," Ken Low, drug education co-ordinator for the Calgary Public School Board, said Monday. He told a women's meeting that warning youngsters about drugs is like giving them travel posters on a new and dangerous frontier.

SALESMAN CHARGED

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Someone has been trying to bring more capital into Saskatchewan but not in the way premier Ross Thatcher wants it.

Police said Monday they uncovered a scheme to sell shares in a copper mine allegedly proposed for a piece of land 15 miles west of here.

ACTION CAME AFTER DUE REFLECTION

CHESTER, England (UPI) — Mini-skirted girls dancing to rock music at the newly-opened Silhouette Discotheque couldn't figure out why their dates spent more time staring at the floor and laughing than doing the frug or bugaloo with them.

"We caught on fast after someone noticed the floor was polished stainless steel and a natural mirror," said 20-year-old hairdresser Pat Dutton. She and some friends complained immediately to the manager who promised to take action.

Car Wash Ban Draws Protest

Oak Bay council passed a bylaw Monday banning car wash establishments in the municipality despite it being dubbed "punitive legislation" by one resident during the public hearing that preceded the meeting.

Gordon McKay, 2320 Tod, said that the bylaw was an "ill-advised and ill-thought-out piece of legislation."

He added that although he agreed with those who wanted to keep Oak Bay a residential area, he felt council was discriminating against one individual who had had an offer to sell his property.

He ended his protest with "I, Gordon McKay, am standing up and protesting this thing. I expect to run as an alderman in Oak Bay in the next election."

Mayor Frances Elford said the bylaw was "not directed at any particular person, or any particular piece of property."

Several residents attended the public hearing to voice their concern about parking problems on Roslyn and Brighton if approval was given to rezone 1286 Roslyn, currently a duplex, to allow the property to be used as a guest house for five elderly people.

Mayor Elford pointed out that a guest house would be required to provide parking facilities on the property.

The council's streets and traffic committee will investigate the parking situation and report back to council before a final decision is made.

Gallery Grant Approved

Oak Bay council voted Monday to pay its $1,030 share of the $8,000 the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria has requested member municipalities of the Inter-municipal Committee to meet its current financial emergency.

Disagreeing with Victoria alderman Tom Christie's remarks that the "white tie and tails set" should finance the gallery, Ald. Allan Hoey said that gallery members had raised $800,000 in the past five years.

He pointed out that Oak Bay had been the first municipality ever make a grant to the gallery.

Ald. Brian Smith said that it was a "bad trend" to expect art galleries and other art institutions to be completely self-supporting and said it was also wrong to suggest that only the white tie set used the gallery.

"Some of the people who benefit from the gallery wear no ties at all!"

Hoey said that the gallery estimated that it spent $20,000 on programs for school children "but so far there have been no contributions from school boards."

Rimmer Top Rider

Heather Rimmer, 641 Happy Valley Road, riding Dun's Mischief, placed first in the senior event of the Garden City Horseman's Club trial ride Sunday.

Sixty-two competitors in junior and senior events competed in the trail ride set out in Elk-Beaver Lake Park. Each course consisted of 15 natural and man-made obstacles that might be encountered while trail riding.

Barry Bissenden, 3963 Quadra, on Beaver's Question, and Walt Detweiller, Downey Road, Sidney, riding Barry, came second and third in the senior event.

Gina Ross, 4889 Townsend, riding Frosty, and Roslyn Ross, also of 4889 Townsend, riding Skylark, were second and third place finishers in the junior event.

200-Room Project Planned

A de luxe residential three-storey complex may be built on the site of the old Mountain View property, corner of Cadboro Bay and Bowker, better known as the Old Men's Home.

Oak Bay council Monday received an application from National Nursing Homes Ltd. to have the property rezoned for building of a complex called Heritage Manor.

It was referred to A committee.

MUSIC ROOM

Described by Vancouver architect Wildred Buttjes as "a residence for gracious living," the project would have 200 guest rooms, plus 36 de luxe suites, arranged around an inner courtyard.

The building would be wooden frame with an exterior mahogany finish. Also on the property would be a library, music room, solarium, beauty salon, barber shop, reading rooms, social areas, television and stereo rooms, an arts and crafts centre, as well as physio and hydrotherapy rooms.

Questioned by council, Neil Cook of NNH, said parking for 100 cars would be provided, 58 of these being underground.

Municipal engineer Geoffrey White noted that the developers wanted to cover 33 per cent of the site while only 28 per cent was allowed under apartment zoning.

Cook said rent would be $12.50 a day and minimum rental periods would be a month.

The city-owned property was sold to Park Pacific Apartments Ltd. for $410,000 in May, 1969. The company wanted to build a 180-suite four-storey apartment complex on the site.

A company official said May 16 of that year that Oak Bay had "thrown a curve at us" by insisting on stringent parking regulations.

The company had planned to provide one parking space for each of the 180 suites but Oak Bay wanted this increased by at least 50 per cent.

Cook said Monday that his project would also include a limousine service for residents. Questioned further, he said his company's complexes in Vancouver, Toronto and other parts of Eastern Canada had provided parking space for one car for every four units.

Questioned after the meeting, Mayor Frances Elford said that Park Pacific Apartments Ltd. had been approached by National Nursing Homes Ltd. and was willing to bow out in favor of the new bidder.

'Vacillating' Charge Blasted By Mayor

Mayor Frances Elford took exception Monday to a letter received from Fred Milne, 2231 Kinriss, complaining that Oak Bay council was a "vacillating body" for reconsidering a bid, rejected earlier this year, to build townhouses on the Uplands Greenhouse property.

The mayor said: "This gentleman was once in favor of building a 52-suite apartment on this piece of property."

TASTEFUL MEMORIES

A request from Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lavertu, 1365 Rockland, to set up a public dining room at 1621 Prospect was "declined" by Oak Bay council Monday.

Mayor Frances Elford said she had "very fond memories" of the food cooked by the Lavertus when they operated Sooke Harbor House but said she would prefer to see such a dining room in one of the municipality's commercial areas.

Ald. Brian Smith said he could not approve because of the parking, screening and traffic problems that would have to be faced.

Ald. Norman Pimlott said:

"I don't feel that area is conditioned to commercial enterprise — even if it is a tasty one!"

A J CLOTH* Towel has many practical uses. Here's an impractical use.

How Robin Paton found true love with a J CLOTH*Towel

"I always carry some in my handbag. J CLOTH Towels are fabulous for fixing make-up or emergency face-cloths.
"This gorgeous man was following me. Too shy to speak. So I dropped a J CLOTH Towel on the pavement. That did it. We got talking, and we're dating steadily now.
"What if he hadn't picked it up? J CLOTH Towels are so economical – as they say – you can simply throw them away. And there are other pebbles on the beach."

HOME GARDEN

Fragrant Scent Sent

By HILDA BEASTALL

As the leaves continue their gentle descent to earth and a silent black-headed junco slips from twig to twig, a sweet fragrance is suddenly free on the air. This is Viburnum fragrans, a winter-flowering species of this genus. You might say it is first to bloom for it will continue in any mild spell right through winter into early March.

Hilda

Then other viburnums will take over, the last ones blooming around the end of June into July. With some that are evergreen, others deciduous, many strongly fragrant and a few more showy but not fragrant at all, a fair-sized garden could be stocked with a dozen or more kinds in splendid groups for year-round garden decoration and individual interest of foliage and flower.

Viburnum fragrans has only just lost its leaves, and long before the last ones fell, the promising clusters of flower buds could be seen on every twig tip.

From a single shrub there is no great show by the small white flowers for they open in succession throughout the winter on any mild day. Quite unharmed by frost, they wait for another mild spell before spilling their perfume freely.

Shrubs which bloom in winter should be given every opportunity to do so by choosing sunny sheltered corners where cold winds are filtered by other dense shrub growth, and where the low moving sun finds them across a few hours in the middle of the day.

A more colorful and just as fragrant hybrid of V.fragrans is V.bodnantense, with pink flowers now opening. Both are perfectly hardy with the Chinese ancestry of V.fragrans enabling the shrubs to go through the most severe winters we experience.

Viburnums like a humus-filled soil with some old manure added. A mulch on the surface by May helps prevent the soil drying out in summer when new growth is being made.

New shoots come from the base after a few years and this is a signal to remove the oldest wood, leaving the new to carry on.

A few thorough waterings are needed during our dry summers, starting in May before the soil becomes too dried for new roots to get their food supplies.

Just now while they scent the air for us we can give each of these viburnums a cupful of bonemeal over the root area. Scratch it into the loose soil with a hand fork so as not to damage any roots. It will go down slowly with the rains as food for more winter sweetness next year.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

When this deal arose in the Life Masters Pairs Championship during the recent Summer Nationals held in Boston, most of the South declarers were defeated at their game contract. At one table, South, through a neat bit of subterfuge, fulfilled his game. The bidding and play, as presented here, occurred at the successful South declarer's table.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

NORTH
♠ J 10 4
♡ 8 5 4 3 2
◇ K 9 2
♣ Q 7

WEST
♠ 6 3

◇ J 10 8 6

SOUTH
♠ A K Q 9 7 5 2
♡ Q 9
◇ 3
♣ A 9 6

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

After having won the opening lead with his king of hearts, West made the excellent shift to a low club. Declarer put up dummy's queen, East covered with the king — and South unhesitatingly followed suit with the six-spot! East then played back a trump, which declarer took with his king. The queen of hearts was now led, West capturing the trick with his ace.

Convinced that his partner possessed the ace of clubs (based on East's winning of trick two with the king of clubs), West now returned a club — and the roof fell in. South won the trick with his ace, after which he led a trump to dummy's 10. A heart was then led, declarer ruffing as each opponent followed suit. Dummy's two remaining hearts had just become the sole surviving hearts in the deck.

South's remaining club was then trumped. On one of dummy's high hearts, South discarded his singleton diamond.

Looking at all four hands, it is easy enough to criticize West for his failure to cash the diamond ace after he had captured South's queen of hearts on the second heart lead. But, from West's position, it seemed quite likely that South, who had opened the bidding with four spades, might be void of diamonds. And if the diamond ace were trumped, the board's king would be a winner.

To me, the beauty of the hand lies in South's refusal to capture East's club king at trick two. Had he won this lead, he undoubtedly would have led a heart next, in an attempt to establish the board's suit. Upon winning with his ace, West almost surely would have returned a club to East's jack.

East perceiving that the board's heart suit was within a trick of becoming established, would then have played back a diamond to his partner's (hoped-for) ace. The diamond ace would now have taken the setting trick.

Frogs Croak In Bloody 6-Hour War

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — More than 3,000 frogs of four different varieties fought a furious battle lasting more than six hours, local reporters said here.

They said the frog war took place in a a swampy valley beside a Hundu temple at a rubber estate near Sungai Siput, 100 miles north of this Malaysian capital.

At first only about 50 frogs were involved but soon the numbers swelled, the reporters said, adding that about 1,000 persons assembled to watch the frogs bite and tear at each other.

Maria Soosay, 30, who has lived for years near the area, said the war is almost an annual event.

"But they have been small fights," he said. "This is the biggest so far."

Local superstition says frog wars come just before big national disasters. Just 12 days before the Malay-Chinese race riots May 13 last year a small frog war was reported to have taken place at Butterworth, 200 miles northwest of here.

Other frog wars have been reported at various times in different parts of west Malaysia. But no one has so far come forward with any theory of why such battles take place.

fun with figures

By J.A.H. HUNTER

It's the numbers game again, with 3789. Using all four digits each time, one of each and no other digits, you form expressions for consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation (that's not the simple plus) or factorial symbols. Don't forget powers and roots (not extra digits) and decimals.

For example, 98-3 plus 7 is a solution for 102.

The limit without a break in continuity seems to be 112. I shall be glad to check solutions, and will send free hints to help in future games if requested.

Bond Sale Nears End

Three days remain in the 1970 Canada Savings Bonds payroll savings campaign, which has reached 92.8 per cent of last year's value on Vancouver Island.

The campaign ends Friday, although bonds may still be purchased at face value, plus accrued interest, after that date.

Island campaign director William F. Munro said he has 4,632 payroll savings deduction applications of a total value of $2.2 million.

Throughout B.C. the campaign has had 67 per cent of last year's record level pledged, or 38,869 applications worth $17.5 million, of which $120,000 comes from new companies.

Forty per cent of previous payrolls have pledged more than they did last year, or $1 million from 1,000 workers.

Ray Kerr Posts Top Chess Score

Ray Kerr of Langford finished on top with an undefeated 4½ to ½ record in the third annual Southern Vancouver Island Open chess tourney over the weekend.

Joe Kaltenecker of Port Alberni and B.C. junior champion Bruce Harper of Vancouver tied for second place, finishing with 4-1 undefeated records.

Tied for fourth place with 3½-1½ records were Harold Brown of Victoria, Brian Foan of Nanaimo and Derek Banks of Vancouver.

Following them were Esquimalt high school student Duncan Haines, playing in his first tournament, Fred Schulz of Nanaimo and Vancouver players Russ Vörler and Ernest Krzyzowski. They compoled 3-2 records.

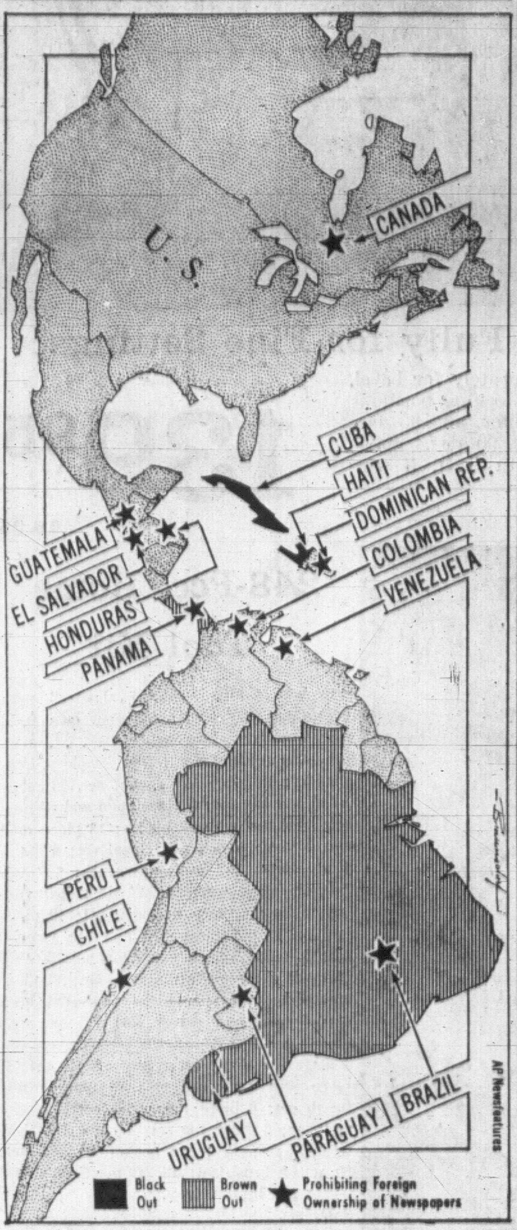
Nations Bring Down 'Curtain of Silence'

PRESS RESTRICTIONS IN THE AMERICAS

Freedom of the press, a basic right in the United States, is not so universally recognized throughout the rest of North and South America. Some form of restrictions are applied in 15 nations in the Americas.



MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Inter-American Press Association ended its 26th annual meeting in Mexico City recently with a dire warning.

"The curtain of silence, censorship and oppression which separates the nations where there is no freedom of the press from those where there is still a free press came down over more countries in the course of the last year," the IAPA's Freedom of the Press Committee said.

The committee's report said Haiti and Cuba are the countries where there is a "total eclipse of press freedom."

The situation has improved somewhat in Brazil, where the military regime has lifted some of its restrictions on freedom of the press. But Panama was described as "one of the dark spots in the panorama of the hemispheric press."

In Uruguay, the IAPA report said, newspapers still are prohibited from using the word "Tupamaro," the name of a terrorist guerrilla group that has been responsible for a number of political kidnappings and assassinations.

The report also listed a number of countries where there are limitations in freedom of the press caused by laws prohibiting foreigners from owning newspapers in those countries.

Those countries are: Brazil, Canada, Chile, El Salvador, Panama, Honduras, Guatemala, Peru, Paraguay, Venezuela, Columbia and the Dominican Republic.
Republic.

A number of Latin American countries have enacted such laws specifically to silence newspapers that were owned by foreigners or persons in exile.

However, some countries with such laws argued that their purpose is to prevent foreign elements from gaining great economic influence in underdeveloped nations.

Advance Party Makes Mark In Peking

(Special to the Times)

PEKING — They have visited the Great Wall and the Temple of Heaven. They have seen revolutionary ballet and ping pong.

They have eated shark stomach and szechwan beef and Mongolian hotpot, and survived more toasts than they care to remember. They have startled Peking's staid diplomatic community with their bright shirts and ties.

They have also — these Canadians in town — been doing a lot of work. Establishing an embassy in Peking takes more than goodwill and the wave of a wand.

The six-man team headed by John Fraser, Canada's first charge d'affaires, arrived here a week ago Saturday. Since Monday its members have been selecting offices and living quarters, investigating communications, deciding on equipment and furnishings and gathering information about life in Peking.

●

The Canadian offices will likely be in the former Pakistani chancellery, located in the diplomatic area known as San Li Tun. The Pakistanis, who have one of the largest missions in China, moved very recently into a large building renovated for them in the other main diplomatic area, Wai Chiao Ta Lou.

Peking scuttlebutt had it that the Sudanese had been promised the Pakistani building, but the Chinese offered it to Canada.

An alternative was space in a nine-storey office and apartment building in San Li Tun. Weighing against this were the layout of the suite and the necessity of special measures so the floors could hold the mission's heavy safes.

The Canadian ambassador will, however, live in the big building, in a suite on the top floor. The Chinese did not offer, as an ambassador's residence, a fine Chinese house downtown which has just become vacant with the departure of the Swidish first secretary.

The aim of the local authorities seems to be eventually, to have all diplomatic offices and residences in the two areas in the east and northeast parts of the city. Only a few are still left downtown.

Canada will likely build its own ambassadorial and office complex in San Li Tun, but not for five years or more.

Next door to the ambassador's big building is a cluster of apartment blocks where other members of the Canadian mission and their families will live. Diplomats from many countries are already quartered there. The office is a 10 to 15-minute walk away.

The Canadian team expects to leave China within the next two weeks to get shipments moving. Most will come via Japan to the port of Tientsin, on the coast east of Peking.

Fraser will return early in January to establish the mission formally. The ambassador, who has not yet been named, should arrive in late February or early March.

Likely members of the mission besides the ambassador and Fraser, who will hold the rank of counsellor, are Stephen Kaufmann, a Chinese-speaking member of the Canadian Trade Office in Hong Kong, Robert Godson, also from the Hong Kong office, administrative officer David Stockwell, who has been been studying Chinese in Ottawa, and John Paynter, currently studying Chinese in Hong Kong.

Canadian diplomats have not been promised any special privileges. Movement anywhere outside Peking will require special permission.

It seems likely, though, that the travel situation will loosen up some in the coming year. More visits by foreigners to Chinese cities and historic sites should be possible.

Fractional Losses Seen

Fractional losses were the order in trading today on the Toronto and New York stock markets.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Falconbridge fell 5¼ to $135, Bartaco 1⅛ to $7½, Union Oil 1 to $37, Moore ⅛ to $30⅝ and Stelco ¼ to $23¼.

Home A rose 1¼ to $23½, B.C. Telephone 1 to $61, Kaiser ⅛ to $7¾, Bright ¾ to $14¾ and Fraser 1 to $21½.

Cassiar lost ¾ to $21¾, Lake Dufault ½ to $14⅝, Ednako ⅜ to $13¼, Opemiska ⅜ to $11⅛ and Noble 30 cents to $3.50. Pine Point rose ½ to $34, Sherritt ½ to $16½, and Chemaloy five cents to $1.27.

Chieftain rose 40 cents to $7.40, Ranger ⅜ to $13¾, Numac 25 cents to $8.00, National Pete 20 cents to $4.60 and Western Decalta 15 cents to $6.10. Scurry-Rainbow dropped 1⅜ to $24¼, Asamera ½ to $15½, and United Bata 10 cents to $4.10.

AT NEW YORK, prices near the close included Telex up ⅛ at $21⅝, General Cable up ⅜ to $22⅝ and A.T. and T. off ⅛ to $44½.

AT MONTREAL, the stock market edged lower in light trading.

Highlighting losses, Falconbridge slumped $1½ to $139, Ronalds-Federated ½ to $11⅜, Belgium Standard ⅜ to $34½, Royal Bank ⅜ to $21½ and Canadian Breweries ⅜ to $6⅞.

International Nickel was off ¼ to $47, Canada Cement Lafarge ¼ to $35¼ and Bank of Montreal ¼ to 14½.

Kaiser advanced $1⅛ to $7⅝, B.C. Telephone $1 to $60, Weston ⅜ to $20, Distillers-Segrams ¼ to $48½, Bell Canada ¼ to $44½, and Canada and Dominion Sugar ¼ to $31¼.

AT LONDON, the stock market rallied slightly in quiet trading. Technical action following recent weakness and the firm Wall Street trend were the leading factors, although gains were confined to leading industrials.

Beechams extended Monday's rise while ICI, Unilever, Rank Organization, Plessey, Courtaulds and Glaxo were other leaders to recover somewhat.

Dome, Canadian Husky, Hiram Walker, West Coast Transmission and Noranda were Canadians to decline but Pacific Petroleum, Syracuse, Trans-Canada PipeLines and Inco moved ahead. Nova Scotia was a gainer in otherwise easier banks.

AT VANCOUVER, trading was active and prices were mixed on the stock exchange this morning. Pre-noon volume was 1,812,994.

Leading industrial was Block Brothers, down .05 at $3.25 on a volume of 5,000 shares. Pace was down .05 at $1.75 and Driver Developments down .01 at .40.

Stampede International was leading in oils, up .10 at $1.80 on a volume of 18,000. Futurity was down .05 at .40 and Midland up one-half cent at .12½.

87th Year No. 128 ★★★ VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1970 PRICE: 10 CENTS

Lack of Business Support Hurting Appeal

United Appeal chairman responsible for business and industrial divisions predicted Monday that their areas would not meet their 1970 goals.

But Victorians as individuals, through the residential canvass, have reached 91.5 per cent of their quota — $119,284.

Chairmen for the large corporations, general firms and business districts divisions told an Appeal progress report meeting at Spencerhouse that a decline in corporate donations as well as the closure of some downtown Victoria businesses is responsible for sluggish returns in key areas of the campaign.

The Appeal's backbone division, large corporations, has reached 44.2 per cent of its $253,939, having raised $112,157 by Nov. 9.

Four areas of this division have yet to reach 30 per cent of their goals. Chairman Glyn Jones told the meeting that several large corporations remain to be canvassed.

But he said he expected a shortfall. Large corporations account for 35 per cent of the Appeal's hoped-for total of $701,314.

General firms chairman Bob Coltman also predicted a shortfall. He said donations from reporting firms are down considerably from 1969. Of the 227 firms in his area, he said, 39 remain to report. Even if these show strong returns, his division would still fail to meet its $31,000 goal.

JONES

General firms division has raised $16,992, 54.8 per cent of its goal. A few firms did not donate at all this year, Coltman said.

Reeve said his staff had called 1,300 small businesses.

"Many have moved out of town and gone out of business," he said.

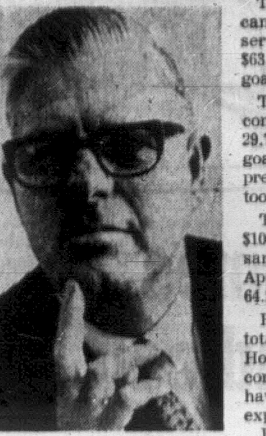
He said he had especially noticed that several business offices in older downtown office buildings had closed. Reeve joined Jones and Coltman in predicting a shortfall for his division.

Residential area reports show Oak Bay-Victoria raising $44,581, 83.5 per cent; Oak Bay-Saanich raising $42,225, 105.1 per cent; Esquimalt-View Royal raising $5,626, 105.2 per cent; Colwood-Langford-Metchosin raising $3,922, 107.5 per cent; Sooke raising $751, 107.4 per cent; Central Saanich raising $4,414, 73.6 per cent; and Sidney-North Saanich raising $11,441, 86.7 per cent.

"We're certainly going to have as much as last year, and maybe even more, so I can say that this part of the campaign has been a success," said campaign chairman Commodore R. V. Henning.

Donations from the professional division — doctors, lawyers, dentists, accountants, architects and engineers — stand at $26,780, 59.2 per cent of the division goal of $45,200.

The construction industry is very low, with donations at $1,316, six per cent of a goal of $22,100. Chairman Cecil Prowse said labor-management troubles this summer have been a factor in this year's returns.



REEVE

The strongest area of the campaign remains the federal service division. It has raised $63,163, 120.8 per cent of its goal.

The public service division continues a poor showing at 29.7 per cent of its $15,418 goal. Chairman Bob Peterson predicted a shortfall here, too.

This year's campaign is $100,000 behind figures for the same time in 1969. So far the Appeal has raised $450,383, 64.2 per cent of its goal.

Henning said the over-all total is not as bad as it looks. However, he said the large corporations division would have to pick up if the drive is expected to approach its goal.

He said he expected a 10 per cent increase in other

COLOMBEY-LES-DEUX-EGLISES — Charles De Gaulle, towering figure of modern French history, died suddenly in his country home Monday night and will be buried in the simple churchyard of this east French village.

His death, at the age of 79, shocked France and the world, and appeared to have resulted from a condition often linked to a hardening of the arteries.

INSIDE

He slipped to the floor, and a servant immediately called the doctor and Rev. Claude Jaugey, the village priest. Father Jaugey said that when he arrived he was hurried to the second-floor room where he saw de Gaulle stretched out on the floor, fully dressed in a dark suit.

Father Jaugey said de Gaulle was not dead, but seemed to be unconscious.

"He was suffering terribly," the priest said.

The priest said that when he left the de Gaulle home the former president was dead. Father Jaugey was asked to promise to remain silent. Mme. de Gaulle, he said, reacted to her husband's death "with perfect dignity, even nobility."

France Is a Widow—Pompidou

De Gaulle died at approximately 7:30 p.m. Monday night (10:30 p.m. PST), 13 days before his 80th birthday.

The leader of the Free French in the Second World War and the founder of the Fifth Republic will be buried Thursday in a simple ceremony at the country churchyard here. He will be interred in the same tomb as his daughter Anne, who died of tuberculosis shortly after the war.

No official government delegation will be at the funeral, in accord with de Gaulle's wishes—which he left with Pompidou, then his aide, in 1952.

But a religious service will be held in Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris for government members and foreign dignitaries.

The death of the heroic and controversial figure removes from the world scene a man who devoted his life to keeping France proud and independent. He left a foreign policy aimed at keeping France free of entanglement in great power blocs.

The former president stepped down dramatically April 28, 1969, and vowed to take no part in active politics.

He warned, at the time of the referendum on regional reform which led to his downfall, that his departure would mean chaos. But the Gaullists and their allies have

CHIANG KAI-SHEK LAST OF 'BIG FIVE'

LONDON (Reuter) — The death of Charles de Gaulle leaves only one surviving member of the Big Five of the Second World War—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, 84, of Nationalist China.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga., in April, 1945, and Stalin died in Moscow in March, 1953. Sir Winston Churchill's death in London in January, 1965, marked the end of the central Big Three of the war.

Shippers May Agree To Pollution Controls

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The international shipping industry may not seriously object after all to the federal government's proposed stiff oil pollution controls within 12 miles of the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, the Commons committee on environmental pollution was told today.

The transport department has been braced for strong protests from shipowners ever since it introduced a bill to amend the Canada Shipping Act which would requires all tankers entering Canadian waters to carry up to $14 million pollution liability insurance and pay 15 cents per ton of petroleum cargo into a special fund for covering cleanup costs beyond the insured limits.

But marine regulations director R. R. MacGillivray told the committee studying the bill that no objections have been received from the world shipping industry yet and only minor points may be raised for discussion.

Sir Frederic Harmer, president of the International Chamber of Shipping and an assistant, S. A. Cotton, will fly from the organization's London headquarters next Tuesday, to appear before the committee.

MacGillivray, under questioning by MPs, indicated that at one time he thought he knew what their objections would be but recent indications have suggested there will not be vehement opposition to the precedent-setting Canadian initiative.

"I know they're giving the whole matter very serious consideration," he said.

"It may be that they will say they do not have too serious objection and just want to raise some details for discussion."

"We'll just have to wait and see what (Sir Harmer) has to say when he gets here."

He told the committee that the 15-cents-per-ton surcharge would produce about $3 million annually for the pollution damages fund without adding too substantial a burden on present costs of about $12.50 per ton of sea-transported oil.

MacGillivray also assured the committee that transport department enforcement of the pollution controls would be meshed with the enforcement program of the proposed environmental affairs department.

SASKATCHEWAN PCs VOTE TO JOIN WITH SOCREDS

REGINA (CP) —Saskatchewan Progressive Conservatives at a convention voted in favor today of the principle of joining with the provincial Social Credit League.

Of the about 50 people attending the annual meeting of the Conservatives, none raised a hand against the idea and only one person spoke against it. (See earlier story on Page 38).

Saskatoon lawyer Ed Raney said the move would be an "unmitigated disaster in which the party is piling stupidity on top of stupidity." He abstained from voting.

The actual resolution as passed is vague and makes no mention of the terms "merger" or "Social Credit League" but calls for support of two-party unity from all wanting to establish a credible alternative to the government.

Ed Nasserden of Saskatoon, provincial P.C. leader, speaking in the course of a 75-minute debate on the topic, said he wantel to have the wording vague.

"One of our pressing needs is to develop strong grass roots, rather than keep an exclusive club going. We want to bring the Social Credit together with us, rather than play into the hands of the Liberals and the New Democratic Party."

He said other provinces likely will follow Saskatchewan's lead in political realignment.

The resolution does not propose a new name, nor does it say which aspects of each party's philosophy would be kept and which discarded.

The' fame o' de Gaulle lies not so much in whut people will say about him but thet ever'body will say SOMETHIN'.

War Act Talk Fans Emotion

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused Monday of leading the Canadian people on an emotional binge after invoking the War Measures Act to deal with trouble in Quebec.

Commons debate continued on the proposed Public Order Temporary Measures Act, 1970.

David MacDonald (PC-Egmont) said the government has "fanned the flame of emotion" and polarized public opinion since the War Measures Act was invoked Oct. 16.

Arnold Peters (NDP-Timiskaming) said that Canadians have gone on a "psychedelic trip" as a result of the act's invocation.

The public order bill, on which debate continues today, carries on but limits government powers proclaimed under the War Measures Act that would be revoked when the new legislation is enacted.

Get Police Powers

The bill, being studied clause by clause in committee-of-the-whole, outlaws the Front de Liberation du Quebec and makes membership in the organization punishable by a jail term of up to five years.

The Commons approved Monday an amendment by John Burton (NDP-Regina East) that would ensure that troops only be given police powers when assigned to specific duty by order-in-council. The motion carried 31 to 28, with only the Liberals opposed.

A surprise vote on the amendment was that of Pierre de Bane (L-Matane) who left party ranks and voted with the opposition. Some 200 members were absent from the House when the vote was called.

Mr. MacDonald, the lone MP to vote against second reading of the public order bill, said that one of the "greatest dis-services of the government" has been that it has built up emotions rather than damping them since the early days of the kidnapping crisis.

'Height of Dishonesty' by PM

The government had not tried to explain the situation through "a reasonable process of facts."

Referring to remarks by Prime Minister Trudeau on television last week about "wishy-washy thinking," MacDonald said:

"It was the height of dishonesty for him to suggest in the public media of this country that this kind of problem can easily be resolved by resorting to strong opinions, to disagreements or to simple answers."

Peters said that there is no doubt 97 per cent of all Canadians supported the government action in invoking the War Measures Act. "We might as well have been taking LSD."

There might be a need for curbing the news media so that news is based on facts, he said.

He also said that police forces failed badly in the kidnapping crisis. The RCMP was more accustomed to dealing with drug problems than with the FLQ.

"Dogs are trained to sniff out marijuana but they are not trained to sniff out explosives."

Illegal Censorship Imposed

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said that illegal censorship is being imposed throughout Canada.

He said that censorship is not permitted under the War Measures Act but there is censorship and "therefore it is censorship that is being illegally applied."

Various radio stations had been made aware that certain types of information would not be in the public interest to broadcast. Certain student newspapers in some universities had been "given to understand" that they were subject to censorship.

This was a "subtle kind" of censorship.

Referring to a remark by Justice Minister John Turner that under the regulations there would be an offence only if journalists were used as a "propaganda vehicle" for the FLQ, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"I should like to know who determines whether they are being used as propaganda agencies."

The former prime minister also said that if the evidence of Bernard Lortie, self-confessed member of the FLQ, to a coroner's inquest in Mont-

Mall Idea Catches Fire Among Brandon Citizens

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — A bold plan by a Brandon farm machinery dealer to turn four blocks of the downtown area into a roofed mall, heated and air conditioned, has caught the imagination of the Prairie city's 32,000 residents.

Glen Lawson grew tired of hearing businessmen talk but do nothing about rejuvenating the deteriorating shopping district, so he commissioned an architect to draw plans for roofing the area.

Lawson took his $1.5 million proposal and architect's drawings to a recent meeting of downtown businessmen and went away as chairman of an 11-man Rosser Avenue Mall Committee, set up to study the project's feasilility.

"If you fellows don't get off your backs now, you will go out of circulation," he told the meeting.

CENTRE POSES THREAT

Under the proposal, the roof would touch the second floors of all existing buildings and would also be used as a parking lot for about 260 cars, with ramps leading from side streets.

"What precipated my thinking," said Lawson, "was the threat to the downtown shopping district posed by the new $4 million shopping centre" now under construction on the southern outskirts of Brandon, less than two miles from downtown.

The centre, with many national retail stores, is scheduled to open in February.

"Today our downtown is faced with the same problems that old downtown in small North American cities face when big shopping centres come up," he said.

Lawson said Brandon's shopping area is losing an estimated $10 million in retail sales every year to Winnipeg and Minto, N.D., both within 200 miles of Brandon.

"This great business leakage is because people simply don't like dingy old downtowns which also have parking problems he said.

"If we had a good downtown shopping area here, most if not all of that $10 million would have been going into Brandon's cash registers."

GOES AFTER FUNDS

The ramp committee has asked the provincial government to apply for department of regional economic expansion funds for the project.

But, added Lawson, "even if we don't get a cent from the government, we will not give up our efforts."

"The roof and the entire mall will belong to the city, so we can ask the city to issue debentures for $1.5 million and recover the money with interest from downtown merchants in property taxes over a period of 20 years."

But he says: "If a man worked only to make a buck, this world wouldn't move."

Aviation Growth Hit By Personnel Lack

MONTREAL (CP) — Insufficient funds and lack of trained personnel could be major hindrances to the growth of civil aviation in the 1970s, the opening session of the Airport Operators Council International convention was told Monday.

Walter Binaghi, president of the International Civil Aviation Organization council, said that the problem of personnel was most serious among developing countries.

"In some countries . . . there is a shortage of qualified young persons available and willing to enter specialized aviation training centres.

"In other countries, difficulties stem from the relatively low salaries paid to government employees so that the manning of aviation ground facilities and services . . . can be handicapped by competition from the private sector which offers higher remuneration."

Binaghi said that between 1963 and 1968 air traffic nearly doubled and personnel employed in aviation increased more than 65 per cent.

NEED GROWS

"We estimate that the trained personnel serving various functions in the air transport system will have to be increased by 10 per cent or more every year . . . and new and greater skills will be required of all aviation personnel," he said.

Tight money even posed a greater problem, and one answer was for countries to give financing of aviation a higher priority than in the past.

Hans Suessenguth, president of Lufthansa German Airlines, said that because of greater traffic and technology, ways would have to be found to streamline operations, even if it meant sacrificing the individuality of particular airlines.

Airlines would be forced to give up some identity "but this must be accepted when we are pursuing a common goal," he said.

RECOGNIZE FAULTS

Two U.S. officials both agreed that noise abatement and environmental pollution were major challenges in the development of new aircraft and airports.

James M. Beggs, under-secretary of transportation, said "Pickets, angry meetings and lawsuits threaten to stop or delay airport improvements vitally necessary to meeting the demands of aviation growth."

He said the U.S. Congress has passed legislation calling for his department to consider the environment in planning new airports.

He added that "almost every major airline has agreed to cooperate in this effort to refit certain engines and to take other necessary flight precautions in order to make the aircraft compatible with life on the ground."

Thomas Rafferty, aviation director for San Antonio, Tex., said that land-use control around airports is essential for combating noise, but the root of the problem was the source of the noise itself—the aircraft engine.

19% Drop In House Construction

New housing starts in Greater Victoria during September took a 19 per cent drop compared with a static situation in Vancouver and 4 per cent decline across the province.

For the first nine months Victoria housing starts have kept approximate pace with B.C. figures, or down 37 per cent compared with a 41 per cent decline. In Vancouver to the end of September, new starts are off 52 per cent.

There were 282 Victoria starts in September, 1969, and 229 this year, of 3,233 for the three quarters a year ago and 2,033 this year.

These consisted of 202 apartment units and 80 single family units in September last year, and 181 apartment and 48 single dwellings this year, for a total 2,229 apartments and 1,004 singles compared with 1,416 apartments and 617 singles in the nine months this year.

Newly completed but unoccupied apartments in Greater Victoria at the end of September totalled 323, up from 249 a year earlier and from 273 in August.

Unoccupied new houses in September totalled 168 compared with 79 a year ago, but down from 195 in August.

Trans-Canada Asks Increase in Rates

TORONTO (CP) — The chief executive officer of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., James W. Kerr, says the company has asked the National Energy Board to permit a 4 per cent increase in rates.

The application is for an interim increase in all rates, which vary depending on volumes delivered and area served, while Trans-Canada's rate schedule is reviewed.

The company had applied for an over-all review of the rate structure. A hearing that was scheduled to begin Oct. 6 was postponed by the energy board.

Trading Suspended In Maverick Mines

The company traded on the exchange's interim listing. Friday's closing quotation was in the $1.20-to-$1.13 range. Earlier, the stock ranged in price between 80 and 91 cents.

Maverick has a potential copper-silver property in the Goosley Lake area, three miles south of Houston, B.C.

The company said in a statement it requested a temporary suspension pending clarification of a possible problem relating to title of a portion of the company's property.

Foreign Investment Supported

WINNIPEG (CP) — The president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said those who advocate that Canada do without foreign investment are "living in an unreal world."

A. G. W. Sinclair, of Port Credit, Ont., told a meeting of the Manitoba branch of the CMA that those economic nationalists cannot dispense with foreign investment "unless they seriously propose a level of unemployment and a reduction of our national standard of living which Canadians would never tolerate."

Sinclair urged increased ownership of Canadian resources and industry wherever possible "provided we do not discriminate against the non-resident investor who has entrusted his capital to Canada with no other motive than a good return."

Canada should be thankful that investment in new industries in this country has been running at record levels, he said.

"It (new business spending) and exports are the reason that unemployment has not been a lot worse than it has.

"Considering the rising curve of public spending at all levels of government in Canada through the 1960s, one can only marvel at this impressive evidence of investors' confidence in Canada's future growth and development."

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Donations of a huge art treasure to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria — a gift which will give it international status — was announced today by director Colin Graham.

It consists of 170 examples of rare and ancient porcelains, carved jade, bronze, lacquer and cloisonne, some of them more than 1,000 years old, he said.

"It's a windfall," he said. "Like the Royal Ontario Museum, we will have a major Oriental art collection.

The gallery's Japanese collection is already widely known and with the addition of the Chen art treasure it would make Victoria one of the important centres for Asian art on the contenent, he said.

The large collection is at Djakarta, Indonesia, packed in 25 crates and weighing five tons, waiting to be shipped to Victoria. It is scheduled to arrive here at the end of November.

●

Graham said the Indonesian government has granted an export permit.

"The gift will give the gallery the largest collection of Oriental art in Western Canada and one of the most important in North America," he said. "The tremendous benefits to the city are obvious."

She made the gift to the Canadian people with the proviso that it become the permanent property of the National Art Gallery and held here in trust for the nation.

The story of the art treasure goes back three generations to the time when the grandfather of the late King Foh Chen began to build up a collection in Peking in the latter years of the 19th century.

His son and grandson added to it, the latter leaving Peking to settle eventually in Djakarta. By the time of his death four years ago the collection had grown to the point where it contained over 400 works of art.

●

"We have been given this extraordinary gift," said Graham, "because Mrs. Chen is impressed by the quickening pace of relations between Canada and the Asian countries."

"She also felt it would be a fitting memorial to her late husband," he added. "It's her contribution to the 1971 centenary."

Graham said a year ago last May Mrs. Chen and her daughter, Mrs. Michael Yang, visited the gallery and decided that it should form part of the institution's permanent collection.

But making arrangements to bring the oriental collection to Canada involved a good deal of planning and organizing.

Bertram C. Butler, a retired Canadian diplomat, who represented Canada in southeast Asia for several years, was the key man in making the arrangements to bring the treasure to Canada. He is a member of the gallery's board.

Butler went to Ottawa last summer to arrange the technical details and received the assistance of the National Museums board and the co-operation of a number of government departments.

●

Last month he travelled to Djarkarta to arrange final clearances with the Indonesian government.

Graham said Butler praised the Indonesian authorities for their spirit of co-operation, expecially in view of the fact that the country has long had on its books laws forbidding the exports of works of art of a kind not represented in the collections of its museums.

Geoffrey Greenhalgh, president, said the project has cost the gallery a substantial amount of money.

"The maintenance of and insuring the Chen collection on behalf of the Canadian people will place a heavy obligation on the gallery," he said. "It is absolutely essential that we receive strong financial backing if the good name of the city is to be maintained."

No 'Enemy' Now Mao-Happy Ship Warmly Greeted

By PAT DUFOUR

The first Chinese freighter to dock at Ogden Point since Canada and China established diplomatic relations began loading 8,000 tons of Manitoba wheat today.

For the crew of the 557-foot Hong Qi, it is the first glimpse of a capitalist country.

Once aboard the Hong Qi there's no mistaking her identity. Quotes of Chairman Mao Tse-tung hang in every cabin, both in English and Chinese.

There are others. One by Lin Piao states:

"Sailing the seas depends on the helmsman, making revolution depends on Mao Tse-tung's thought."

Conversation is difficult. Only the purser, Lin T. Y., speaks any English. He is helped out by a young Chinese journalist, Lo Yi-ching, who has spend a year in Ottawa, reporting for the New China News Agency.

Two "political counsellors" sit in on the conversation. The reporter explains the counsellors are carried aboard to help with the crew's "education."

How do they feel about Canada establishing diplomatic relations with China?

After five minutes of staccato talk, mostly from the elder of the two counsellors the reply is:

"We hail the establishment of diplomatic relations between our two countries."

The reporter is asked what kind of stories he sends back to China.

★ ★ ★

He expands: "A Canadian taught us international understanding. He was a doctor, Dr. Norman Bethune, who came out to help us when we were resisting the Japanese."

Do they think that China will be admitted to the United Nations soon now that both Canada and Italy have established diplomatic relations with China within the past few weeks?

Again, much conversation and a short answer: "We don't know—do you?"

The purser says, "All our people love to wear the badge of our beloved chairman."

"It is much too cold and the rents are too high. In China the rents are one per cent of what they are here."

Through him, the senior counsellor asks questions about the Front de Liberation du Quebec. What are their problems, their aims?

Her captain and crew hope to show her off before they slip lines and head for Vancouver Thursday to take on another 4,000 tons of wheat, then sail for home.

Today they announced they will hold open house from 1:30 to 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Bawdy House Count Laid

A 23-year-old city man was charged in provincial court this morning with keeping a common bawdy house between Sept. 20 and Oct. 16 at 450 Simcoe Street.

Sidney Fry, whose address was given as 739 Burke Street, was remanded to Monday without electing trial method or making a plea.

Bail was set at $750 cash of one surety by Judge William Ostler after prosecutor Cory Stolte suggested the amount. Ostler commented that the bail seemed to be exceptionally "moderate."

Ostler also informed Fry that another charge that he lived on the avails of prostitution between Sept. 15 and Oct. 16 was outstanding and would be officially read when he next appeared in court.

Pickets Upset Hospital Union

The Hospital Employees' Union is "embarrassed" because its members have to cross picket lines at some of the hospitals struck Monday by stationary engineers.

HEU business agent Ray McCready of Vancouver said today two kinds of picketing are taking place at 13 hospitals where engineers have walked out.

At most hospitals, McCready said, picketers are in the area of the heating plant.

But at a few — including the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's — the picket line extends around the entire hospital, and other employees must cross it to get to work.

"Because we're not doing the engineers' work we are respecting their picket lines," McCready said.

"They have assured us over and over that they don't want us to stay outside their picket lines, but our people are trade unionists and they feel very uneasy about crossing any picket line."

At Lions Gate Hospital in North Vancouver Monday, between 20 and 25 clerical staff did not go to work Monday until engineers' pickets were moved back to the heating plant area.

The International Union of Operating Engineers, which bargains for the stationary engineers, announced prior to the strike hospital personnel and vehicular traffic would not be impeded.

Only fuel trucks will be prevented from making deliveries.

'I Know It Looks Funny'

"I know it looks funny," said Ed Callan, the union's international representative for B.C., "but if we stopped the Hospital Employees' we would be interfering with the welfare of the patients."

The union will not interfere with operation of the hospitals because the government has indicated it would retaliate with compulsory arbitration.

Callan said other unions in a position to respect the picket lines are painters, building trades, telephone workers, and the Canadian Union of Public Employees (representing municipal garbage collectors).

In any emergency workers will be able to enter a hospital, Callan said. At the Jubilee Monday a plumber and electrician responded to a request for repairs to an autoclave, a device used to sterilize instruments and dressings.

Engineers at the Nelson and Williams Lake hospitals did not report for work today, bringing to 13 the number of hospitals being struck. Strike notice has been served at 15 other hospitals.

McCready said the Hospital Employees' Union, which represents some 9,000 B.C. workers, could influence the outcome of the stationary engineers' strike.

"Once they have got the situation stabilized I've told both parties I'd like to sit down with them and act as mediator," he said.

"We are in a position to make them sit down.

"The engineers are on strike for the same things we negotiated. Naturally, we're sympathetic to their cause."

In negotiations with the B.C. Hospitals Association, the engineers were offered a 37½-hour week to replace the current 40-hour week and an increase of $50 a month in each year of a two-year contract.

However, the association withdrew the reduced work-week offer when the union sought parity with other tradesmen, an additional $50 to $60.

The union said it is willing to submit the pay issue to arbitration, but the Hospitals Association is not. The union does not want arbitration on the work-week issue because other hospital workers will get a 37½-hour week starting Jan. 1.

Engineers now have five wage classifications ranging from $500 to $780 a month.

New Charge Against Businessman

Saanich businessman Siegfried Marquardt, of 2841 Sea View Drive, was charged today with defrauding V. I. Shipyards of approximately $15,000 in United States funds with a single cheque between Jan. 15 and June 1, of 1969.

He appeared in provincial court before Judge William Ostler and was released in his own recognizance of $1,000 bail.

Marquardt elected trial by judge alone and requested the waiving of preliminary hearing procedures which usually take place in provincial court before a trial before a higher court.

The businessman was committed for trial in a higher court on a 12-count charge of fraud after a six-day preliminary hearing in August.

'Chicken' Man Foils Dastardly Clucks

By STEVE HUME

Brian Suddards, manager of the Scotsman Motel, 490 Gorge Road, foiled the holdup attempt merely by standing his ground when the two men—wearing brown paper bags over their heads—burst into his office.

Suddards retired to Victoria six months ago from the University of Alberta in Edmonton, where he was manager of the branch doing research on chickens.

"Oh, no, you're not going to do that," and pushed the gun aside.

At that point the robbers, described as between 18 and 20, fled.

The faint-hearted gunmen were still at large today.

Suddards said the two men didn't frighten him because they didn't look like criminal types. He said they didn't appear to be "professional" bandits.

Although they were skunked on the robbery attempt "they wouldn't have got much anyway," he said.

THE SALMON THAT Victoria saved are hosting into a replenished Goldstream. These three and four-year-old fish wear the marks of death to come. But the cycle decreed by nature for their species will be renewed.

The fertilized eggs will winter under inches of sterile gravel. In earliest spring, the alevins will hatch, to feed from the yolk-sacs attached to them until their transition from egg to fish is complete.

Then while the catkins on Goldstream's alders are still tight and brown, a chum salmon run of a different sort will begin. It will be a run in reverse, its course downstream to the saltchuck.

All manner of hazards await the free-swimming fry. Still, a fraction of their multitude will survive. Those fish, grown to maturity, will return to the creek as three and four-year-old spawners in their turn.

The cycle has not been broken. In a unique act of conservation, a city has seen to that.

Victorians made a personal issue of the Goldstream crisis. They took to their telephones. They wrote to city hall.

Their letters arrived at the mayor's office in such numbers that Mayor Haddock was forced to resort to a form letter in reply.

And, matching the deed to the word, many householders began to save water where and as they could.

How many? Right now, that's an open question. I've heard from a mother who has taken to dubbing her three little boys as a job lot in a bath that would scarce float a toy duck. Perhaps that family's effort will balance the water-wasting of the man who last weekend chose to flush fallen leaves from an apartment lawn with an open hose.

The water bills that go out late in December, and Greater Victoria Water Commission's dispersal charts, should tell part of a continuing story.

Meanwhile, with the drought-bared bones of Goldstream covered and the night-running chums piling in, city hall's "salmon mail" has pretty well petered out.

A lone letter turned up Monday morning. It was from a pleased citizen who thanked city authorities for bringing the water to the fish.

The car is a spoiler. It permits its owner to forget that feet are for walking. I will circle a parking lot serveral times, looking for a space up front which will save me a few steps.

Ridiculous? Of course! However, I'm not alone in this ingrained disinclination to walk when I can ride.

But last weekend wafted us a guest from the mainland who scoffed at such self-indulgence. She had brought a pair of no-nonsense walking shoes, also plastic galoshes to go over them, and she looked forward to a go-round in Beacon Hill park.

So I spotted my car as close to the duck ponds as could be managed, and we took off at too brisk a pace along autumnal paths.

We walked to the duck ponds where British Columbia's fattest mallards compete for handouts with gulls who should be out catching herring.

We walked to the ancient Chinese temple bell that has hung in its hutch since 1904.

We marched on to inspect the impressive base topped by its peewee bronze of Burns and lass.

We walked to the sun-dial that makes a hub for a wheel of rose beds — gift to the park, the inscription reads, from Victoria's Round Table Club. (Question here that I couldn't answer, although perhaps some reader can: what is this club, and does it still exist?)

Finally, well-exercised, we hiked back to the car. By that time, I had made a discovery worth remembering in this automotive age.

Letter here from a Victorian who suspects that the month-opening words we were talking about may be corruptions of old and probably archaic good-luck charms once spoken in the north of England.

"While I know nothing about 'Swan'," she writes, "'Rabbits' has been the magic word in my family for many years. I picked it up from my mother, who got it from hers, and now my daughter is carrying on the practice."

And a note on a different theme from a retired RCMP officer who maintains a sturdily cheerful outlook on life. He has a beef, however. The London Sketch, he feels, was guilty of an unaccountable omission when that sheet came out with its list of top-rated male heart flutterers.

What were they thinking of, he wonders, when they failed to include the Canadian Mountie?

MAN, WOMAN STRUGGLE FOR LIVES

A 25-year-old man and a young woman remain in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital today after being injured in a three-car pileup early Sunday.

Lack of Business Support Hurting Appeal

But Victorians as individuals, through the residential canvass, have reached 91.5 per cent of their quota — $119,284.

Chairmen for the large corporations, general firms and business districts divisions told an Appeal progress report meeting at Spencerhouse that a decline in corporate donations as well as the closure of some downtown Victoria businesses is responsible for sluggish returns in key areas of the campaign.

The Appeal's backbone division, large corporations, has reached 44.2 per cent of its $253,939, having raised $112,157 by Nov. 9.

Four areas of this division have yet to reach 30 per cent of their goals. Chairman Glyn Jones told the meeting that several large corporations remain to be canvassed.

But he said he expected a shortfall. Large corporations account for 35 per cent of the Appeal's hoped-for total of $701,314.

General firms chairman Bob Coltman also predicted a shortfall. He said donations from reporting firms are down considerably from 1969. Of the 227 firms in his area, he said, 39 remain to report. Even if these show strong returns, his division would still fail to meet its $31,000 goal.

JONES
. . . little from corporations

General firms division has raised $16,992, 54.8 per cent of its goal. A few firms did not donate at all this year, Coltman said.

Reeve said his staff had called 1,300 small businesses.

"Many have moved out of town and gone out of business," he said.

He said he had especially noticed that several business offices in older downtown office buildings had closed. Reeve joined Jones and Coltman in predicting a shortfall for his division.

Residential area reports show Oak Bay-Victoria raising $44,581, 83.5 per cent; Oak Bay-Saanich raising $42,225, 105.1 per cent; Esquimalt-View Royal raising $5,626, 105.2 per cent; Colwood-Langford-Metchosin raising $3,922, 107.5 per cent; Sooke raising $751, 107.4 per cent; Central Saanich raising $4,414, 73.6 per cent; and Sidney-North Saanich raising $11,441, 86.7 per cent.

"We're certainly going to have as much as last year, and maybe even more, so I can say that this part of the campaign has been a success," said campaign chairman Commodore R. V. Henning.

Donations from the professional division — doctors, lawyers, dentists, accountants, architects and engineers — stand at $26,780, 59.2 per cent of the division goal of $45,200.

The construction industry is very low, with donations at $1,316, six per cent of a goal of $22,100. Chairman Cecil Prowse said labor-management troubles this summer have been a factor in this year's returns.

The strongest area of the campaign remains the federal service division. It has raised $63,163, 120.8 per cent of its goal.

The public service division continues a poor showing at 29.7 per cent of its $15,418 goal. Chairman Bob Peterson predicted a shortfall here, too.

This year's campaign is $100,000 behind figures for the same time in 1969. So far the Appeal has raised $450,383, 64.2 per cent of its goal.

Henning said the over-all total is not as bad as it looks. However, he said the large corporations division would have to pick up if the drive is expected to approach its goal.

He said he expected a 10 per cent increase in other

New France Architect Is Dead

COLOMBEY-LES-DEUX-EGLISES — Charles de Gaulle, towering figure of modern French history, died suddenly in his country home Monday night and will be buried in the simple churchyard of this east French village.

His death, at the age of 79, shocked France and the world, and appeared to have resulted from a condition often linked to a hardening of the arteries.

INSIDE

He slipped to the floor, and a servant immediately called the doctor and Rev. Claude Jaugey, the village priest. Father Jaugey said that when he arrived he was hurried to the second-floor room where he saw de Gaulle stretched out on the floor, fully dressed in a dark suit.

Father Jaugey said de Gaulle was not dead, but seemed to be suffering terribly.

"I gave him the last rites of the church."

The priest said that when he left the de Gaulle home the former president was dead. Father Jaugey was asked to promise to remain silent. Mme. de Gaulle, he said, reacted to her husband's death "with perfect dignity, even nobility."

France Is a Widow—Pompidou

De Gaulle died at approximately 7:30 p.m. Monday night (10:30 p.m. PST), 13 days before his 80th birthday.

The leader of the Free French in the Second World War and the founder of the Fifth Republic will be buried Thursday in a simple ceremony at the country churchyard here. He will be interred in the same tomb as his daughter Anne, who died of tuberculosis shortly after the war.

No official government delegation will be at the funeral, in accord with de Gaulle's wishes—which he left with Pompidou, then his aide, in 1952.

But a religious service will be held in Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris for government members and foreign dignitaries.

The death of the heroic and controversial figure removes from the world scene a man who devoted his life to keeping France proud and independent. He left a foreign policy aimed at keeping France free of entanglement in great power blocs.

The former president stepped down dramatically April 28, 1969, and vowed to take no part in active politics.

He warned, at the time of the referendum on regional reform which led to his downfall, that his departure would mean chaos. But the Gaullists and their allies have

CHIANG KAI-SHEK LAST OF 'BIG FIVE'

LONDON (Reuter) — The death of Charles de Gaulle leaves only one surviving member of the Big Five of the Second World War—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, 84, of Nationalist China.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga., in April, 1945, and Stalin died in Moscow in March, 1953. Sir Winston Churchill's death in London in January, 1965, marked the end of the central Big Three of the war.

Shippers May Agree To Pollution Controls

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The international shipping industry may not seriously object after all to the federal government's proposed stiff oil pollution controls within 12 miles of the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, the Commons committee on environmental pollution was told today.

The transport department has been braced for strong protests from shipowners ever since it introduced a bill to amend the Canada Shipping Act which would require all tankers entering Canadian waters to carry up to $14 million pollution liability insurance and pay 15 cents per ton of petroleum cargo into a special fund for covering cleanup costs beyond the insured limits.

But marine regulations director R. R. MacGillivray told the committee studying the bill that no objections have been received from the world shipping industry yet and only minor points may be raised for discussion.

Sir Frederic Harmer, president of the International Chamber of Shipping and an assistant, S. A. Cotton, will fly from the organization's London headquarters next Tuesday, to appear before the committee.

MacGillivray, under questioning by MPs, indicated that at one time he thought he knew what their objections would be but recent indications have suggested there will not be vehement opposition to the precedent-setting Canadian initiative.

"I know they're giving the whole matter very serious consideration," he said.

"It may be that they will say they do not have too serious objection and just want to raise some details for discussion."

"We'll just have to wait and see what he (Sir Harmer) has to say when he gets here."

He told the committee that the 15-cents-per-ton surcharge would produce about $3 million annually for the pollution damages fund without adding too substantial a burden on present costs of about $12.50 per ton of sea-transported oil.

MacGillivray also assured the committee that transport department enforcement of the pollution controls would be meshed with the enforcement program of the proposed environmental affairs department.

SASKATCHEWAN PCs VOTE TO JOIN WITH SOCREDS

REGINA (CP) —Saskatchewan Progressive Conservatives at a convention voted in favor today of the principle of joining with the provincial Social Credit League.

Of the about 50 people attending the annual meeting of the Conservatives, none raised a hand against the idea and only one person spoke against it. (See earlier story on Page 38).

Saskatoon lawyer Ed Raney said the move would be an "unmitigated disaster in which the party is piling stupidity on top of stupidity." He abstained from voting.

The actual resolution as passed is vague and makes no mention of the terms "merger" or "Social Credit League" but calls for support of two-party unity from all wanting to establish a credible alternative to the government.

Ed Nasserden of Saskatoon, provincial P.C. leader, speaking in the course of a 75-minute debate on the topic, said he wantel to have the wording vague.

"One of our pressing needs is to develop strong grass roots, rather than keep an exclusive club going. We want to bring the Social Credit together with us, rather than play into the hands of the Liberals and the New Democratic Party."

He said other provinces likely will follow Saskatchewan's lead in political realignment.

The resolution does not propose a new name, nor does it say which aspects of each party's philosophy would be kept and which discarded.

War Act Talk Fans Emotion

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused Monday of leading the Canadian people on an emotional binge after invoking the War Measures Act to deal with trouble in Quebec.

Commons debate continued on the proposed Public Order Temporary Measures Act, 1970.

David MacDonald (PC-Egmont) said the government has "fanned the flame of emotion" and polarized public opinion since the War Measures Act was invoked Oct. 16.

Arnold Peters (NDP-Timiskaming) said that Canadians have gone on a "psychedelic trip" as a result of the act's invocation.

The public order bill, on which debate continues today, carries on but limits government powers proclaimed under the War Measures Act that would be revoked when the new legislation is enacted.

Troops to Get Police Powers

The bill, being studied clause by clause in committee-of-the-whole, outlaws the Front de Liberation du Quebec and makes membership in the organization punishable by a jail term of up to five years.

The Commons approved Monday an amendment by John Burton (NDP-Regina East) that would ensure that troops only be given police powers when assigned to specific duty by order-in-council. The motion carried 31 to 28, with only the Liberals opposed.

A surprise vote on the amendment was that of Pierre de Bane (L-Matane) who left party ranks and voted with the opposition. Some 200 members were absent from the House when the vote was called.

Mr. MacDonald, the lone MP to vote against second reading of the public order bill, said that one of the "greatest dis-services of the government" has been that it has built up emotions rather than damping them since the early days of the kidnapping crisis.

'Height of Dishonesty' by PM

The government had not tried to explain the situation through "a reasonable process of facts."

Referring to remarks by Prime Minister Trudeau on television last week about "wishy-washy thinking," MacDonald said:

"It was the height of dishonesty for him to suggest in the public media of this country that this kind of problem can easily be resolved by resorting to strong opinions, to disagreements or to simple answers."

Peters said that there is no doubt 97 per cent of all Canadians supported the government action in invoking the War Measures Act. "We might as well have been taking LSD."

There might be a need for curbing the news media so that news is based on facts, he said.

He also said that police forces failed badly in the kidnapping crisis. The RCMP was more accustomed to dealing with drug problems than with the FLQ.

"Dogs are trained to sniff out marijuana but they are not trained to sniff out explosives."

Illegal Censorship Imposed

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said that illegal censorship is being imposed throughout Canada.

He said that censorship is not permitted under the War Measures Act but there is censorship and "therefore it is censorship that is being illegally applied."

Various radio stations had been made aware that certain types of information would not be in the public interest to broadcast. Certain student newspapers in some universities had been "given to understand" that they were subject to censorship.

This was a "subtle kind" of censorship.

Referring to a remark by Justice Minister John Turne that under the regulations there would be an offence only if journalists were used as a "propaganda vehicle" for the FLQ, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"I should like to know who determines whether they are being used as propaganda agencies."

The former prime minister also said that if the evidence of Bernard Lortie, self-confessed member of the FLQ, to a coroner's inquest in Mont
